ITALY MAY USE FORCE TO CONTROL ABYSSINIA

FULL SOVEREIGN RIGHTS SOUGHT

CHARGES BRITAIN IGNORED LEAGUE

MUSSOLINI THEREFORE TO DO LIKEWISE

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 25, 8.50 a.m.)

Rome, June 24. It is authoritatively learned from Rome that Italy intends to demand actual sovereignty in Abyssinia, through the use of arms if necessary, using the Anglo-German naval agreement as partial justification. Hence, the conversations of Mr. Anthony Eden, with Signor Mussolini are expected to be most interesting.

It is reliably stated that Signor Benito Mussolini, Italian Prime Minister, contends he is free to act as he pleases in Abyssinia on the following grounds:

First, that Abyssinia, when admitted to the League of Nations, promised to abolish slavery and establish a firm central Government; and neither of these things has been accomplished;

Second, because Great Britain ignored the League in formulating the Anglo-German naval agreement and hence Italy cannot support the League when adverse policies, such as that seen in the Anglo-German accord, are pursued.

Meanwhile, in London, the Government is being attacked for the framing of a naval pact with Berlin. Labour members of the House of Commons heckled the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, hinting that the Anglo-German naval agreement was a violation of the Treaty of Versailles and the tripartite pact of Stresa. Sir Samuel stoutly denied that such was the case.

All eyes are upon Mr. Eden on a mission to Rome. He will there talk with Signor Mussolini, the Italian Prime Minister, respecting the effect of the Anglo-German naval agreement, but more important, will attempt to ease the tension between Italy and Abyssinia.—United Press.

BRITISH EMISSARY IN ROME

MR. EDEN TALKS WITH IL DUCE TO DISCUSS ABYSSINIA

(Special to "Telegraph")

Rome, June 24. Up to the present Mr. Anthony Eden, Great Britain's peace emissary, has not branched the subject of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute in his conversations with Signor Benito Mussolini, Italy's Prime Minister. However, the Foreign Office experts on African affairs support the view that Mr. Eden is anxious to raise this matter.

After three hours' formal conversation this morning, Signor Mussolini and Mr. Eden conversed alone in a corner of the room where they had lunched. Owing to the extensive ground to be covered Mr. Eden is expected to remain here until Wednesday.

It is probable that up to the moment only the effects of the Anglo-German naval agreement have been discussed.—Reuter Special.

LONG TALKS

London, June 24. In Rome to-day, Mr. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, had long conversations in the morning and again in the afternoon, each of two hours' duration, with Signor Mussolini. They lunched together in the interval.

Mr. Eden was accompanied by the British Ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond. A communique issued this evening stated they discussed the Anglo-German Naval Pact and prospects for an aerial accord and other questions which formed a part of the Anglo-French declaration of February 3. Conversation will be continued to-morrow and Mr. Eden expects to leave Rome for Paris either Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. He will see M. Pierre Laval again before returning to London.

In the House of Commons to-day the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, said the Anglo-French declaration of February 3 still represented the policy of the British Government.—British Wireless.

Major-General Dohara also denied that a written agreement was signed when interviewed after the conference. He is expected to return to Changchun to-day to submit a report of the results of his mission in North China to the Kwantung Administration.—Central News.

Fine Scores In British Open Golf

RECORDS FALL IN QUALIFYING PLAY

SMITH LEADS WITH 66

London, June 24.

The British Open Golf Championship's first qualifying rounds were played at Gullane and Muirfield courses to-day and there were some exceptional scores among the 300 contestants.

Judging by the scores, the players found the harder course at Muirfield, where the championship proper commences Wednesday. R. Burton, the professional of Hooton, broke the record for this newly-constructed meeting place of golf celebrities with a smart score of 70.

Henry Cotton, the present holder, was only one stroke behind, playing a masterly game for 71.

Other notables in the qualifying round ranked as follows:

Jack Maclean, 74;
Picard, U.S.A., 77;
Lawson Little, U.S.A., (British Amateur Champion), 78.

AT GULLANE

At Gullane, Macdonald Smith, U.S.A., shattered the course record with 66, a very remarkable achievement even on the easier course. Sayner, the professional at Birkdale, had a 68.

Scores of other prominent players were:

Percy Allis, winner of the Scottish Open Championship last week, tied with A. J. Lacey, with 70;
Brews, South Africa, Padgham, Russia, Rex Hartley, Davies and R. A. Whitcombe all tied with 71.—Reuter.

Moratorium In Germany

GREAT BRITAIN NOT AFFECTED

Berlin, June 24.

Owing to the fact that "the German foreign exchange situation, far from improving, has got still worse, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Acting Minister of Economy, has declared a complete moratorium for a year, from July 1, on all maturities arising from the medium and long-term obligations to the United States and other nations with whom no clearing quotation has been made.

Instead of cash transfer, creditors will receive "funding debt bonds" which will run to January 1, 1946 and bear three per cent. interest and amortisation at three per cent.

Great Britain, and other creditor nations with which a clearing agreement has been arranged, are not affected.—Reuter.

CATALONIA REVOLT SEQUEL

(Special to "Telegraph")

Oviedo, June 24. A Court Martial, sitting in camera, has passed sentence of death on four accused in a trial in which seventy-five plotters were charged with revolutionary activities during the abortive October-revolt in Asturias, Catalonia.

Thirty-six others were condemned to life imprisonment and seven to twelve years, while eighteen were acquitted. It is believed that 3,500 were killed during the rebellion.—Reuter Special.

POSTHUMOUS AWARD OF HONOUR

RESCUES IN ATLANTIC

London, June 24.

The King has made a posthumous award of the Albert Medal, given only in cases of exceptional gallantry and devotion, to Thomas Gibson, late cook of the s.s. Usworth, for life-saving at sea. Pieces of plate and other awards are made also to the masters and various officers and members of the crews of the Belgian s.s. Jean Jadot and the Cunard White Star Line s.s. Ascania, who displayed great bravery and skill in saving men of the s.s. Usworth during a violent gale in mid-Atlantic last December. Two members of the crew of the Jean Jadot were drowned when a lifeboat was capsized, and posthumous awards are also made in their cases.

Gibson gave his life in trying to save a mess-room boy. He was a member of the crew of the Usworth.

strong swimmer and was within a stroke or two of the lifeboat which the Ascania had launched when the boy cried for help and Gibson turned back for help, both being swept away. The Ascania's lifeboat was commanded with great skill and courage by Lieutenant Pollitt, Royal Naval Reserve, junior third officer of the Ascania, in circumstances of extreme peril. It was several times nearly smashed by the Usworth or the Ascania. The gale was so violent that the oars forced from their rowlocks, were blown out of the men's hands and all but six were broken, while the lifeboat, at one moment in a trough of steep waves, was at the next level with the Usworth's boat deck.

Nevertheless, the remainder of the crew were taken off and with difficulty got aboard the Ascania. Mr. Pollitt, after what is officially described as a "heroic and remarkable rescue," was the last to leave the badly-damaged lifeboat.—British Wireless.

Japanese Competition Beneficial

ANALOGY IN GERMAN EXPANSION

ATTACK ON TARIFFS

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, June 24.

Agreement by British and Japanese speakers that Japanese competition in world markets was beneficial, and not harmful, provided the chief interest in the opening day of the Congress of International Chambers of Commerce, which opened in London to-day, being attended by over a thousand of the world's business leaders.

Sir Arthur Balfour cited the example of Germany in the 19th Century, which made a tremendous industrial expansion, due to the low standard of living. Despite prophecies to the contrary, Germany secured the bulk of the world's trade, the standard of living there rose, and with increasing wealth, Germany became one of the greatest buyers of raw materials.

On the other hand, said Sir Arthur, tariffs, quotas and other trade barriers conferred no benefit and did not eliminate competition.

Mr. Yoshimura said Japan was a debtor country and could only pay her creditors by exports. She needed raw materials. He pleaded with the Congress to foster and not hinder Japan's commercial advance.—Reuter Special.

Yacht Fleet Burned

MILLION DOLLARS OF DAMAGE

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., June 24.

Seventy yachts, including the Mystic, palatial pleasure craft of the Cudahy family of meat-packing fame, and the Scimitar II, owned by Gar Wood, noted American speed-boat driver and holder of the world's record for such craft, were destroyed by fire to-day.

The fire swept the closely packed Phipps Yacht basin.

Damage is estimated at over $1,000,000.—Reuter.

AMERICA BUYS AS SILVER FALLS

HEAVY INDIA SALES WELL ABSORBED

H.K. BANKS OPERATE TO SUPPORT RATES

Messages through Reuter from London explain to some extent the condition of the silver market at yesterday's close and the movements which led to the sharp decline of prices.

It is explained that India sold heavily during the day, but America, China and speculators bought at the fall. The market was steady.

After the official fixing, Reuter continues, there was further heavy India selling which was absorbed by good American buying and, finally, the market remained steady at the fixed rates, 31½, as compared with 32.5/16 the day previous.

New York silver was down from 72 to 70½. Bombay's market was uncertain and prices declined for ready silver from 76 rupees six annas to 75 rupees four annas. August silver was down from 76 rupees 18 annas to 76 rupees one anna.

Unofficial prices, after closing hours in Bombay, were 74 rupees for ready metal and 75 for August. The market appeared uncertain.

HONGKONG DOLLAR

The Hongkong dollar declined a halfpenny this morning to 2s. 3d. on London silver's fall of 13/16d., but the business rate on opening was 2s. 3¼d. sellers and 2s. 3½d. buyers. The market was steady.

Later, the market weakened and the official rate declined to 2s. 2¼d.

Chinese speculators are believed to be overbought in Hongkong and their reaction to the London decline is now awaited with interest. The Bombay silver market is very nervous, and the big banks locally are believed to be keeping rates up.

Indian speculators dominate the market at present and much will depend upon whether or not they sell to-day, according to a banking authority here.

ADVISERS FOR CHINA

QUESTION IN THE COMMONS

London, June 24.

Asked in the House of Commons whether any other Powers were sending financial experts to China to advise their respective Governments on the situation there, Sir Samuel Hoare said as soon as the Chinese Government had been informed of the appointment of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, the British Government communicated with the United States, France, Japanese and Italian Governments and expressed their hope that they would take similar action. He had not as yet received any intimation of their intentions in this respect.—British Wireless.

HASTENS TAX REFORMS

ROOSEVELT ASKS FOR ACTION

Washington, June 24.

President Roosevelt to-day informed Congress leaders that he desires to have his "wealth sharing" taxation programme enacted this session, which will therefore probably be prolonged through the summer.

After an hour-and-a-half conversation with the President, Senator Robinson stated: "It has been decided to press for action on the recommendation of the President as to the present session. Senator Harrison of the Finance Committee will ask that body to consider these proposals with a view to adding them to the pending resolution extending emergency taxes."—Reuter.

ATTACKS ON MORALS OF NATION

FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND ACTS

DEFENSIVE CRITICISM

The drink traffic, betting, gambling, modern films, and the question of mixed marriages are discussed in the committee reports which were submitted at the General Assembly of the United Free Church of Scotland, which opened on Tuesday, June 4, in St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow.

The Committee on Temperance and Public Morals reports on the question of brewers' advertisements in the Press, and criticises the attitude of newspapers towards such advertisements.

The Committee asserts that "the Press must be brought to realise the compulsion, if necessary—that it has no right to abet the drink traffic by circulating 'palpably unscientific falsehoods' in the face of piles of real evidence against the beverage use of alcohol. In despite of Royal Commission findings, and in defiance of recurring police and judicial statistics, all of which consistently testify to drink's ruinous effects on national wellbeing."

With regard to the spirit duty, the Committee expresses its disapproval of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's admission "that he thought the duty too high, and that the financial consideration was the only thing that weighed with him." They take it to mean that when he considers it convenient he will not scruple to jettison the palpable benefits that have incontrovertibly resulted to the nation from a high duty on potable alcohol.

"DRINKING MOTORIST"

The Committee contends that official action with regard to "the drinking motorist" has been lamentably slow. While the Committee welcomes measures like limiting speed in certain areas, use of signal lights, and driving tests, these in themselves, it states, would fail to produce the substantial results required unless more drastic steps were taken to save the public being victimised by the drinking motorist.

The law relating to registered clubs is described as notoriously inadequate, and it is stated that too many clubs are virtually "unlicensed and unsupervised public-houses."

Discussing betting and gambling, the Committee's report states that it is hardly realised to what an extent the "betting disease, the dog disease," has become an epidemic. National gambling is believed to account for a turnover of not less than between £250,000,000 and £300,000,000 a year in Great Britain, of which something like £200,000,000 remains with the bookmaker and those engaged in the trade.

In the proposed deliverance the General Assembly is asked strongly to condemn the exemption of private lotteries and small lotteries from the restrictive and prohibitive clauses of the Betting and Lotteries Act, and to call for passing of a more comprehensive and thoroughgoing measure to cope with "this gigantic and far-reaching national vice."

"Multifarious and nefarious attacks, masked and open, are being made on the common morals of the nation."

FILM CENSORSHIP

These words preface the Committee's comments regarding films. "Reactional filmdom," the report continues, "has become moral filthdom. The position may be gauged by the necessity for over eleven educational and religious bodies forming a deputation last

Heat thoroughly, and serve in patty shells, after sprinkling with chopped parsley.

January to the Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Scotland, and the Home Secretary to urge immediate inquiry into film censorship, and to plead for decent films in the interests of public morality."

A paragraph in the report of the Committee on Christian Citizenship, headed "Romanism and Ritualism," states that "the past year has witnessed a further development among Presbyterians in Scotland of what are called Holy Week and Lenten Sermons." The tendency is in the direction of what may be called the Anglican movement in the Established Church of Scotland, and it seems desirable to utter a word of caution to our people as to the danger of sacramentalism and priestcraft by any departure from the simplicity and naturalness and real spirituality of New Testament religion."

Referring to the provisions of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1918 which gives special privileges to those desiring control of religious teaching in the State schools, the Committee recalls that these privileges were claimed as promising a peaceful settlement of a difficult educational problem. It had, however, proved no settlement. Out of it had arisen a prominence to the cleavage between Roman Catholicism and Protestantism, resulting in sectarian strife.

MIXED MARRIAGES

Mixed marriages are discussed with particular reference to the No Temere decree of the Roman Catholic Church. Note is taken of the Papal pronouncement that the marriage of Catholic with non-Catholic, except according to Roman Catholic sanction, is not valid. It is stated that in Scotland marriage is a purely civil contract, and its validity and the legitimacy of children are guaranteed by statute law.

"No priest or other person," the report states, "has any right to

TRAGEDY ON SAHARA

MAN AND WOMAN DIE OF THIRST

HORRIBLE END

Paris, June 2.
An Englishwoman and an Englishman, Mrs. Knight and Mr. Peyton, have been found dead from thirst and exposure about five miles out of Inghessam in the southern Sahara.

Their two French companions, Huebert and Chauvin, French traders established at Kano, in Nigeria, with whom they set out on May 22 from Agadez, in the French Soudan, to motor to Taman Rasset, 500 miles to the north in the Hoggar, were found lying, delirious and wasted under their car about 25 miles from Inghessam.

The four travellers had apparently presumed, from the frequency with which cars now cross the Sahara, that the expedition could be undertaken without a guide and, it would seem, with insufficient provisions.

On leaving Inghessam, which is 300 miles from their goal, they followed an old trail no longer in use. Discovering their error they tried to cut across the desert to pick up the regular route.

They found, however, that their petrol had evaporated. Their provisions seem to have been sufficient only for one or two days at the most.

PUSHED ON

The Frenchmen proposed to wait under the car until a search party was sent from Taman Rasset or Inghessam, but Mrs. Knight, a vigorous woman of 28, and Mr. Peyton proposed to make their way back by night to Inghessam on foot. After the travellers had been missing for two days the chief mechanic of Taman Rasset, M. Coquet, and M. Jean Estienne set out to look for the car. It took them three days to find it.

The two Frenchmen were lying emaciated in a pit that they had dug under the car for better shelter. They told the rescuers that the two English people had started to walk back to their starting point. The rescuers then set out down the track to look for Mrs. Knight and her companion.

LETTER TO FRIEND

Mrs. Knight had evidently suffered terribly. Her hair and clothes were torn, and the sand round her body was very disturbed. She seems to have opened the veins of her arms and legs in the hope of dying more quickly. She had a pencilled letter to a friend in her handbag.

Mr. Peyton, who is said to have been a half-caste resident in Switzerland, was found lying at some distance quite peacefully. They had apparently walked for a day and a night. The rescuers buried the two bodies, but the authorities have ordered their exhumation and a very strict inquiry.

A rigorous regulation lays it down that no travellers may set out to cross this section of the desert with less than eight days provision of water and food, in case of accident.

call these things in question. But humble people, who may be truly religious, are deeply distressed and often cruelly treated by attempts to enforce against them the Decree Ne Temere.

"In New Zealand and New South Wales, where this evil was prevalent, in 1920 and 1925 respectively, Acts were passed making it an offence to declare any marriage lawfully made to be not true, sufficient, and valid, or that the children are illegitimate."

"There is a movement to have similar legislation applicable to Scotland, and we recommend all our people to support any Parliamentary Bill for that purpose. We desire also to warn our own people as to the grave troubles that may be involved by entering into such a mixed marriage."

GLIMPSE OF QUEEN OF THE FUTURE LOVELY BRIDE OF PRINCE FREDERICK OF DENMARK

BY CONSTANCE DREXEL

Her Highness, Princess Ingrid, who recently married Frederick, Crown Prince of Denmark, is more a queen than the fairy story type of princess.

I got an interesting close-up of the young woman when assigned to interview marriageable princesses. I naturally put Ingrid on my list, but when I got to Stockholm, the Princess' father, Crown Prince Gustav Adolf, said she was too young to be interviewed, and besides, he did not like publicity. However, I was invited to attend the marriage of Princess Ingrid's cousin, Princess Astrid (now Queen of the Belgians), to the Crown Prince Leopold.

On that occasion, the star, next to the tall, radiantly happy bride, was the Princess Ingrid. She was Sweden's premier unmarried princess, therefore important, since Scandinavian princesses are much sought after for royal marriages in Europe. There have been few of them in this generation because the royal families of Denmark, Norway and Sweden have produced chiefly sons.

The fact that the daughter of Sweden's next king had as her partner in all the wedding festivities the tall, handsome, blonde Crown Prince Olaf of Norway, gave rise to many significant glances. But fate decreed that nothing was to come of that, for not many months later, the announcement of Olaf's engagement to Princess Mærta, sister of Princess Astrid, was made.

DRESSES METICULOUSLY

In appearance, Princess Ingrid is not what is thought of as the Scandinavian type at all. Perhaps this is because along about 1810, the reigning dynasty having run low, one of Napoleon's generals, Marshal Bernadotte, Prince of Ponte Corvo, was elected to the throne by act of the Swedish Parliament. She is above medium height, her hair is brown and her skin is olive. She has large hazel eyes and a rounded figure.

She takes great care always to present an exquisite picture, chic and well-groomed. I have seen her, looking on at tennis matches at Wimbledon, at the theatre and at cinema. She is always perfectly dressed, perfectly coiffed and rather dignified, even distant.

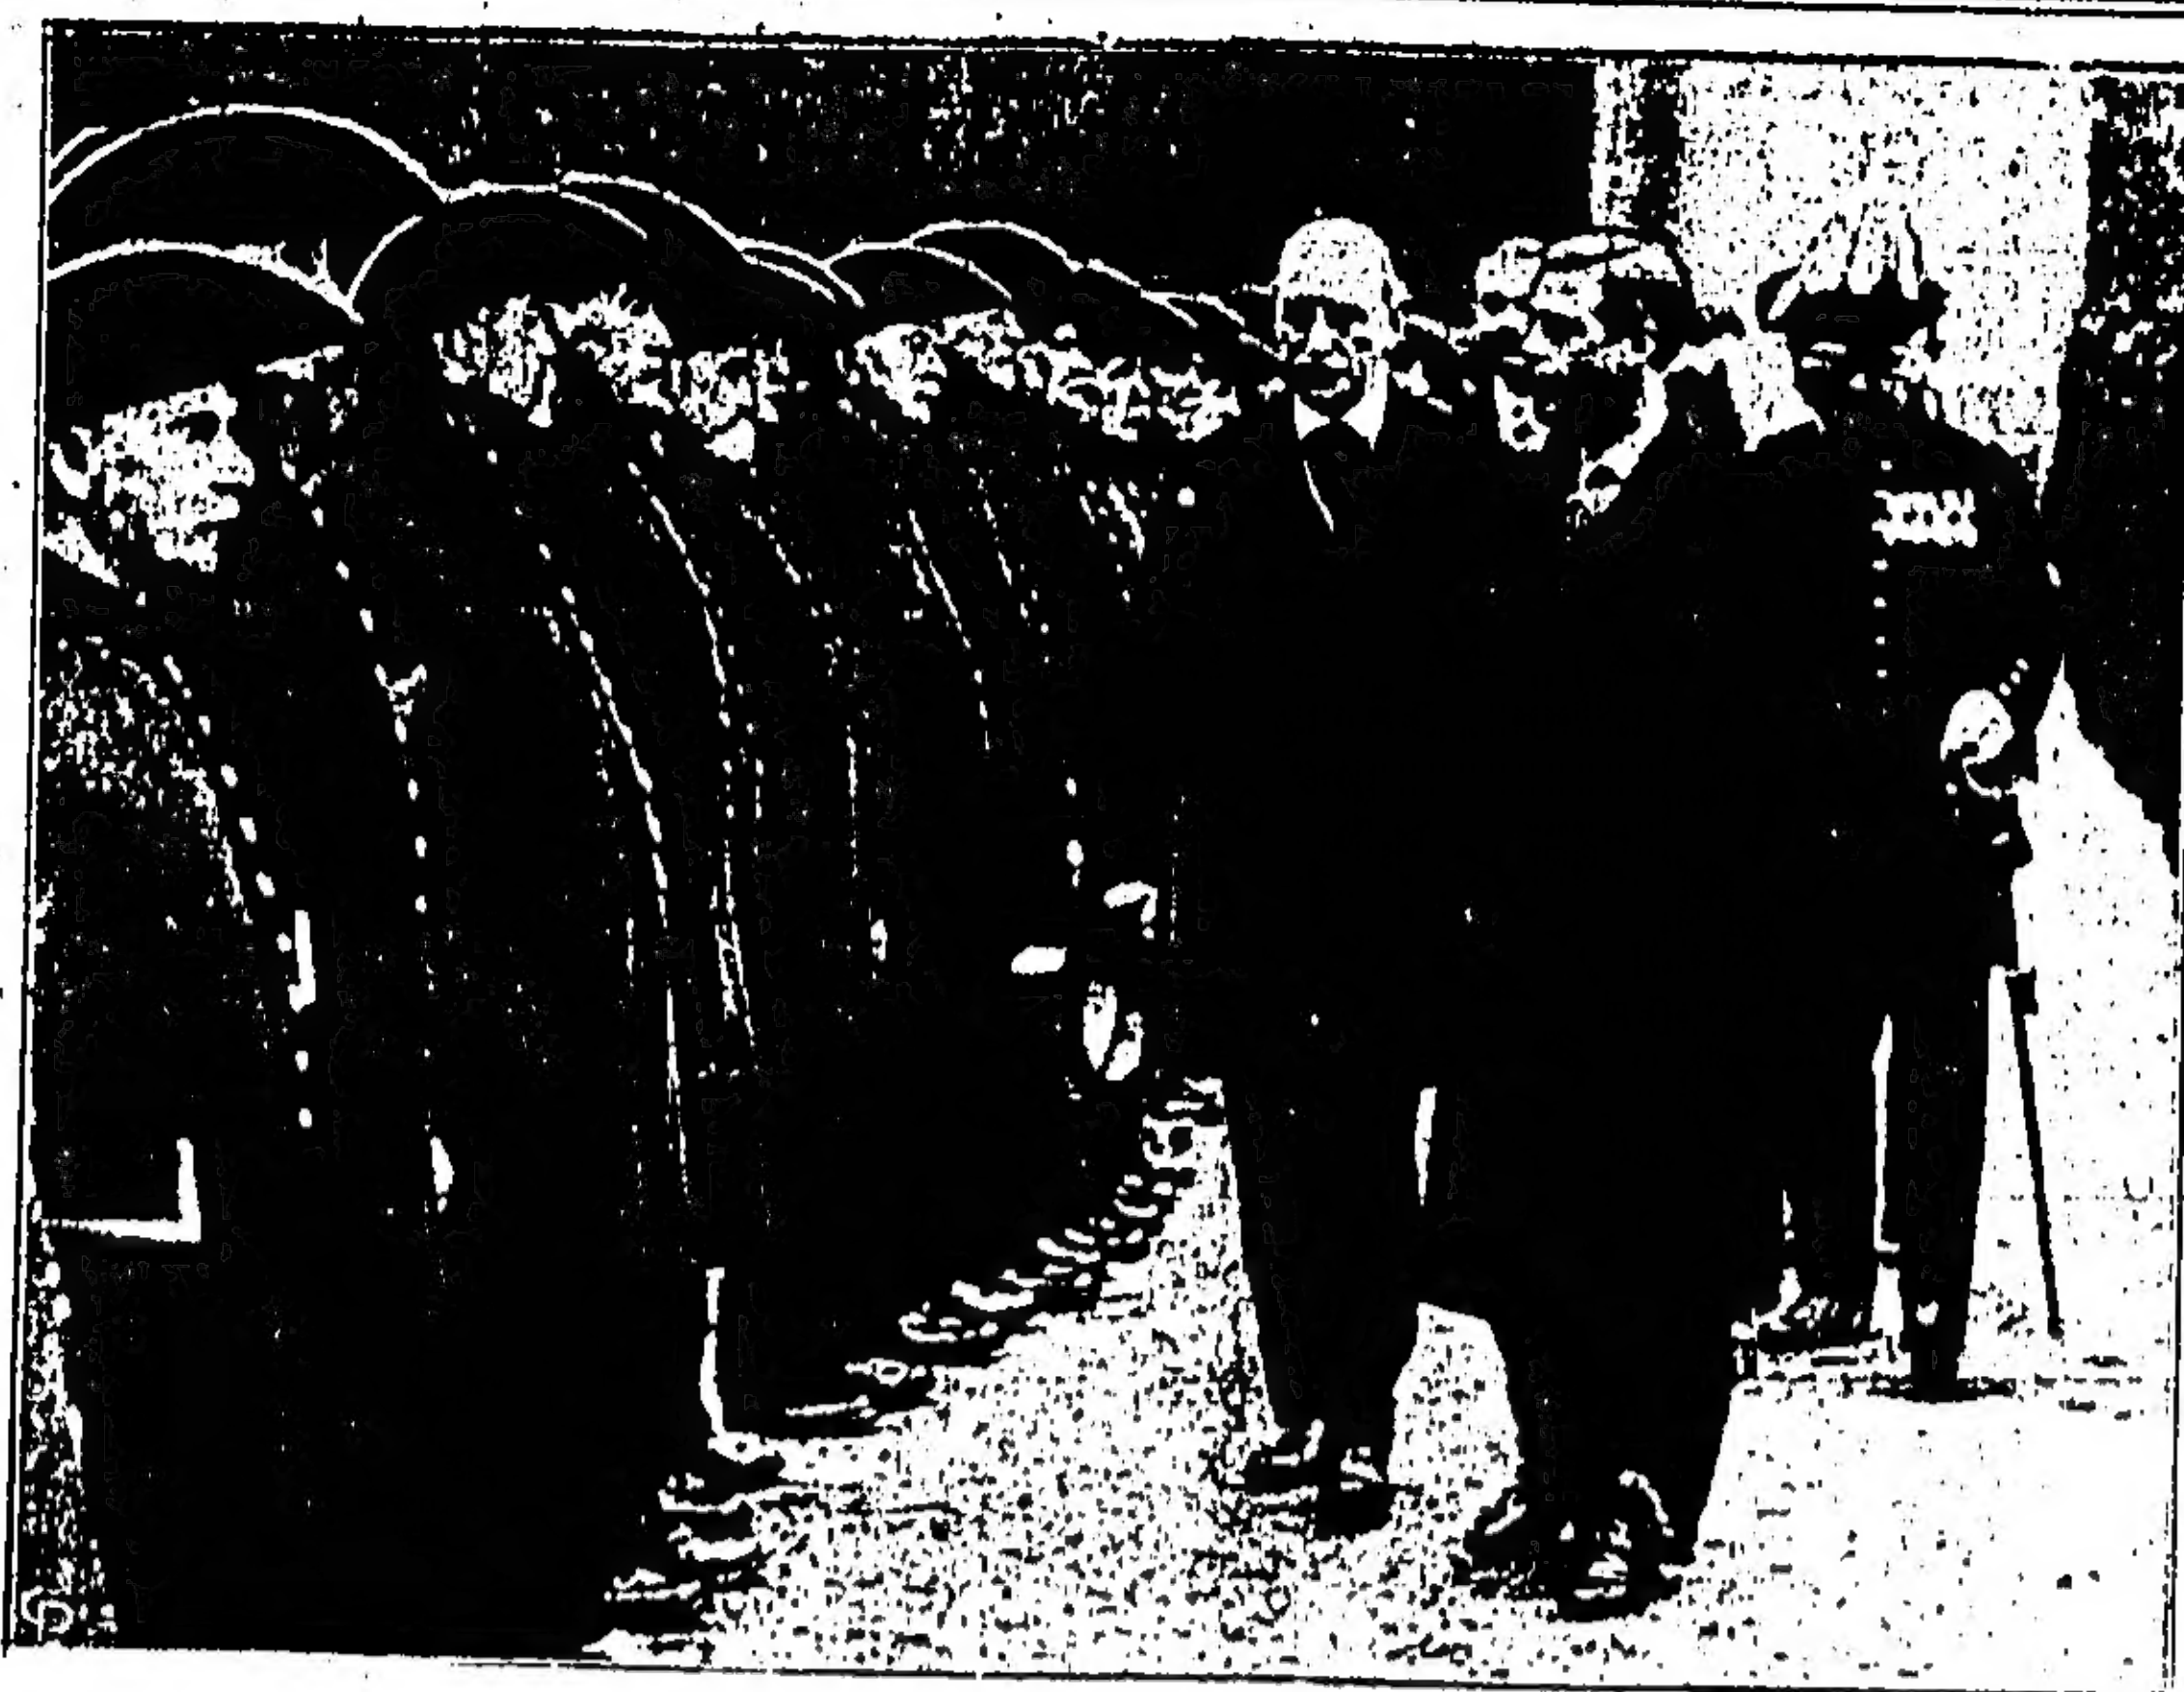

Not for her are hoydenish ways and over-dramatic demonstrations. She is the queenly type. One evening, I remember, she wore severe white satin, diamond earrings and bracelets, an ermine cape and orchids, that suited her beautifully. She looks particularly well in the evening anyway, because of a well-shaped head which she dresses with taste to ring out the exquisite lines.

In Stockholm, this Princess is said to be more English than Swedish. Swedish girls of all ranks of life go to school, and along with cultural studies, must learn to cook, keep house, take care of babies, and run farms and other estates. Princess Ingrid's mother died when she was ten and a girl has spent a large part of every year with her grandfather, the Duke of Connaught, either in England or on the Riviera. She has been brought up almost entirely by a high-born English lady who has been her governess, companion and chaperon.

The Princess' older brother is in line for the throne and married to the German Princess Sybille of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. Her second brother renounced his title and his rights to have a career in writing and designing for the cinema and to marry a German girl with talents similar to his, whom he had met in Berlin. Her two younger brothers are unmarried. Many believed that Ingrid was being groomed for marriage into the English royal family. Though the Prince of Wales never had bestowed anything but discreet cousinly attentions upon her, gossip frequently linked his name to hers. Of course, from the racial, political and religious points of view, she was about the only foreign princess left whom he

Chelsea pensioners formed a guard of honour when the Prince of Wales visited the Royal hospital, Chelsea, to preside at the 50th annual meeting of the National association for the employment of regular sailors, soldiers and airmen. Here is the prince reviewing the ranks of the men as they welcomed him.

"Let 'em roar!" That was the defiance of the inventor, as he sat in the cockpit of an aeroplane as it was set afire. He was testing a special asbestos suit for the Royal Aeronautical Society, London.

ANGLICAN CHURCH

SPLENDID BUILDING FOR KOWLOON TONG

Plans are in the course of preparation for a new Kowloon Tong Anglican Church to be erected on a site which has been levelled opposite the Kowloon Tong Garden City Club in Waterloo Road.

The new church, which is to cost $50,000, will have a long nave and an artistic tower in front. There will be seating accommodation for a congregation of 300.

The architects are Messrs. Leigh and Orange.

Site levelling has been almost completed. This is to be followed by the erection of a retaining wall, and construction of the building will be commenced in October. The work is expected to be completed by October, 1936.

When the old St. Peter's Church in West Point (which is now used each winter as a street sleepers' shelter) was vacated, Government offered several new sites and the Church authorities finally decided on the one in Waterloo Road. Government then wrote informing them that the $50,000 promised would be paid in instalments as the erection of the church proceeded.

It was the Church authorities' intention at first to erect half the building at a cost of $25,000, and a vicarage, but it was eventually decided to erect the church building in whole.

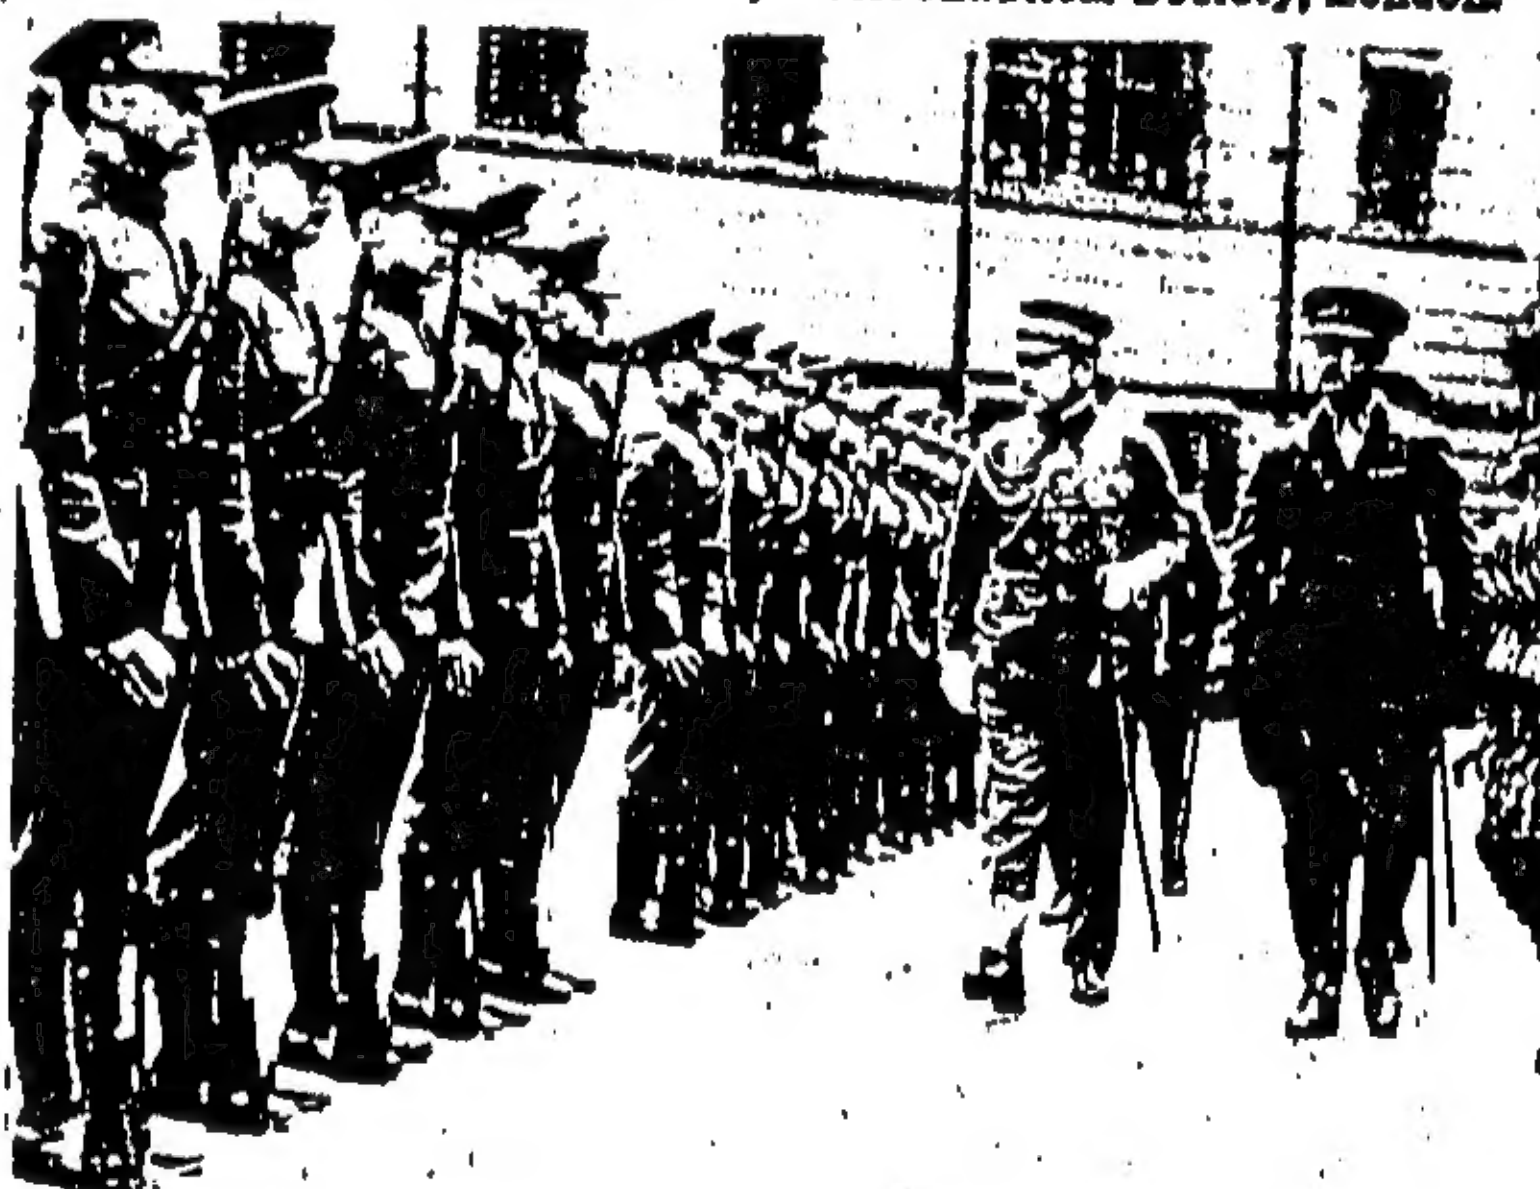

For the levelling of the site and erection of the retaining wall $7,000 is being spent.

The new building will combine modern and ancient architectural features, the exterior being carried out in concrete and the interior in effective colour crete.

When completed the building should be a striking monument to the growth of Kowloon Tong district, which now has a large Anglican community.

could have married. Moreover, everyone remembers the popularity of Ingrid in the Scandinavian Princesses who, as consort to Edward VII, became Queen Alexandra of England.

Then Ingrid, having quite often been seen with the Duke of Kent during visit to England, was linked to him in rumours. Destiny, however, had marked the stately lass for a throne, and she will grace it.

Major-General R. Isogaya, Military Attaché to the Japanese Legation in China, paid an official call upon the Shanghai Municipal Council for the purpose of announcing his assumption of office recently. He was greeted at the entrance to the Administration Building by a guard of honour mounted by the Russian Regiment, S.V.C., which he is seen inspecting in the above photograph.

KWANGTUNG FLOOD SAMSHUI ENDANGERED BY DESTRUCTION OF DYKES

Canton, June 24.

Owing to the sudden rise of the West River most of the low-lying districts in the Samshui are reported under water. The Yungtsai and Tallong Dykes, two important dykes in Samshui, are in a very dangerous position.

Mr. Liao Hock-chau, Magistrate of Samshui has sent out orders to all villagers near the two dykes to prepare for emergency. In an urgent telegram to the local Association of the Samshui Natives, The Magistrate requested them to purchase 50,000 sacks and ship them to Samshui for reinforcing the dykes in case of emergency.

Mr. Liao Hock-chau has arrived here. He is to report to the Canton Government the seriousness of the flood. It is also understood that Mr. Lin Yun-kai, the Chairman of the Provincial Government has instructed the Canton Board of Conservancy to send an emergency party for Samshui immediately to investigate the situation.

Further reports received by the Canton-Samshui Railway indicate that several sections of the river dyke at Kamchuk (near Ho Hau) have been swept away by the flood and that the river is still rising. Train services can reach as far as Chau Mah Ying, while downward trains also started from there in view of the threatening situation in upper river.

An engineering party of the Board of River Conservancy with Mr. Fan Tsang-hon and others left here for Samshui yesterday.

A later report says that the dyke at Yingchau has been swept away by the flood yesterday morning. Great perturbation has been caused among the residents. Numerous sand bags are being used to reinforce dangerous portions of the dyke. The Board of River Conservancy has been requested to send officers to Shing-shui to inspect the situation. —Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Rivers Recede

Canton, June 24.

Reassuring reports have been received to-night from the various districts affected regarding the floods caused by the recent excessive rains.

The East, West and North Rivers are all receding, saving thousands of villages, for a further rise would devastate a considerable area.

Already 100 villages have been ruined and many crops have been destroyed. Normal traffic on the Canton-Samshui section, and on the Canton-Hankow Railway have been resumed. —Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, June 24.
The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:
The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: Stocks today were irregular and receded after an early advance. Traders were nervous, believing that a technical reaction is overdue. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were also irregular. Bonds were upward, featured by secondary railroad and Corporation issues.
S. C. & P. New York office cables: The market is marking time, with Traders adopting a cautious attitude. Sears Roebuck's sales were up 23 per cent. for the month ended June 18. Steel mill activity is estimated at 37.7 per cent. of capacity compared with 38.3 per cent. the previous week. The General Motors Company reports automobile production at 38,000 units, whilst the Chrysler Motor Corporation's production totals 16,850 units.
New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz:
Cotton: There is little cotton available outside Government control, but demand was poor. The market was without any special feature.
Wheat: There was some demand under the 80-cent level. The market is governed by weather conditions. The visible supply of wheat shows a decrease of 948,000 bushels.
Corn: The visible supply of Corn has decreased by 277,000 bushels. There was some covering on delayed planting. Offerings were on the light side.
Rubber: The evening up of July options was the chief activity. The tendency is steady.
Sugar: The market has ruled dull, but steady. Some nervousness was noticeable, due to the injunction regarding the processing tax on hogs.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Practically all border towns are lawless, according to the author of "Bordertown," the Warner Bros. production, which is now showing at the Alhambra with Paul Muni in the stellar role. He speaks of this as "the last which seems to develop all boundaries." "Bordertown" is the story of a young man who grows up to be a power in his particular part of the underworld. The role of Johnny Ramirez, seems particularly suited to Paul Muni, suggesting a great similarity to his part in "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang." In "Bordertown," however, Muni is called upon for a greater dramatic range, since this story has greater scope. It takes him from the cantaloupe fields of Imperial Valley to the vice haunts of "Bordertown" and thence to the drawing rooms of his American society friends. Muni is supported by Hette Davis, Margaret Lindsay, Eugene Fallette, Robert Barrat, Henry O'Neill, Robert Cavanaugh and Gavin Gordon. Archie L. Mayo directed the picture from the screen play by Laird Doyle and Wallace Smith. The story is by Robert Lord.

"Reckless"

"Reckless," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production starring Jean Harlow and William Powell, which terminates its successful engagement today at the Queen's Theatre is the story of a song. The song is "Reckless," which began as a song yet one that grew and grew until it has become one of the most spectacular musical numbers introduced through the medium of motion pictures. Jerome Kern, dean of American composers, who has created the scores of "Show Boat" and numerous other famous operettas, wrote it and gave it the title of the picture. To sing the song, Miss Harlow took vocal lessons for eight weeks. To dance to its barbaric rhythm she studied dancing for nine weeks. For it, an entire metropolitan theatre was built to introduce the opening bars of the song. Upon the stage of the great theatre was constructed one of the most unusual motion picture "sets" in film history, a modernistic girl's dormitory.

"Imitation of Life"

Seldom, if ever, has there been such a combination of elements which mean good entertainment as there are in "Imitation of Life" coming to the Queen's Theatre on Thursday. Fannie Hurst's great novel will interest millions of women. "Back Street" proved that Fannie Hurst understands thoroughly what women like to see in a moving picture. John Stahl in that picture proved that he knew how to translate to the screen every last ounce of interest which lay in a Fannie Hurst story. There is no director in the world who has this faculty in the same degree that John Stahl possesses it. And he directed "Imitation of Life" ably. Then there is the popularity of Claudette Colbert, who is an ideal heroine for Fannie Hurst's story. The cast supporting her is of excellent proportions. A new baby star, this time a three-year-old, named Baby June, plays the tiny daughter and for her work was given a starring contract by Universal. Rochelle Hudson plays the baby grown up, with Anna Hale, Ned Sparks, Henry Armetta, Louis Weaver, Henry Kolker, Alma Tell, G. P. Huntly, Jr., Wyndham Standing and Paul Porcasi.

"Adventure Girl"

Jean Lowrey, "Adventure Girl," is the thrilling screen record of a trip to the wilds of Central America by the author of "The Cradle of the Deep." In the screen story her ship has no more than red sail before the incredible adventures begin, and they continue in unbroken succession to the end. Sea storms that carry away the masts and wreck the water tank, hand-to-hand fights with sharks and octopi, amazing encounters with lion constrictors and snakes of other kinds, searches for hidden treasure and an emerald "sea bag and green that men die looking at its beauty," fights between the explorers and natives, a last-minute rescue of Jean as she is about to be burned at the stake, her fight from enraged savages who pursue her in their war canoes, a wall of fire on the water and an underwater swim by her fugitives to escape it—these and many other adventures go to make up the photoplay, which was produced and sponsored by the Van Beuren Corporation.

"Double Door"

When Sophocles wrote "Oedipus Rex" he little realized that it and others of his great tragedies, would serve as a training school for the modern screen's greatest villainess, Mary Morris. Yet Miss Morris, now appearing as the insanely dominant spinster in Paramount's film version of "Double Door," coming to-day to the Star Theatre, declares that she owes her ability to put over menacing roles to her early training in Greek drama. Those who have seen her on the screen predict an equally brilliant career for Miss Morris in that medium, due to the fact that the slight gestures and tonal inflections which she uses record so perfectly on celluloid. "Double Door," as a play, was one of the outstanding successes of the current Broadway season. It is a vivid and gripping drama of the fantastic happenings behind the sedate portals of one of New York's most respectable Fifth Avenue Mansions. In it, Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, Sir Guy Standing and Anne Revere are featured with Miss Morris. Charles Vidor directed.

"The Witching Hour"

A famous play by a famous American playwright is having its initial screenings to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. "The Witching Hour" is the play and August Thomas is the playwright. With a theme of intense interest to modern psychologists, the story of "The Witching Hour" is both

ROUND THE WORLD FOR £90!

GOOD NEWS FOR TRAVELLERS TO EUROPE

Substantial reductions in certain of their fares which affect Hongkong residents have been announced by the N. Y. K. line. The reductions will take effect from August 3, the date of the departure of the Hakusan Maru for Europe.

The two main lines affected are those between Hongkong and London and round-the-world.

In the case of the Yawukuni Maru and the Tsurukuni Maru the present rates between the Colony and London remain unaltered (£91 1st. and £63 2nd.)

On the "H" class steamers, the Hakusan, Hakone, Haruna and Hakozaki Maru, the reduction on first class passages will be £5, and on 2nd, £10.

On the "K" class steamers, the Fushimi, Suwa, Katori, and Koshima Maru, the reduction will be £10 on both first and second class passages. Fares on these boats will be reduced proportionately between Hongkong and Gibraltar, Marseilles, Naples, and Port Said.

In the case of round-the-world fares the reduction will be slightly more than £15. This trip constitutes 1st. class from the Colony to San Francisco on the Asama Maru or one of her sister ships, 1st. class rail across America or Canada, 1st. class from New York to England by the Berengaria, and 1st. class from London to Hongkong by one of the Katori Maru type vessels. The present rate is £176.15, and the new rate is £162.17.

Doing is similar trip 2nd. class to America, and tourist class across the Atlantic and 2nd. from London to Hongkong will now cost £102.18.7 instead of £115.14.1, as previously.

There are two further alternative methods of travelling round the world, both following the same route as the previous trips, but using different ships. These fares will now be £108.7.8 and £90.1.3; previously having been £120.10.11 and £103.7.11.

The result of these reductions means that travellers may go round the world first class, visit England and America and all the cities on the Suez route for as little as £163 odd, while doing the same trip 2nd. class the fares are now only £90.

...and peculiarly poignant, at the time. Something of the sentimental, nostalgic quality of "Smilin' Thru" is found in the romance of Judge Prentice which survives through many years of frustration to come to the aid of two young lovers badly in need of help. In fact, the theme of the story might be "Love comes back again when you need it most." The young lovers are played by Tom Brown and Anita Louise. Both are rising young luminaries in the cinema sky. In the story, Brown as Clay Thorne has a phobia or complex on cat-eyes, which are semi-precious jewels and not the eyes of a feline. Superstition has long attached itself with these strange jewels, and the superstition works in the cinema sky. "Wagon Wheels"

Searching for ideal location scenes to be used in the Paramount production of Zane Grey's "Wagon Wheels," which comes to the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow, studio production executives came across a section of land in northern California, that is rich in early western legend and history. It was the huge ranch of Al Garretman, thirty miles from Sonoma, California, where for more than two weeks 85 members of the troupe, including Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick, Billy Lee, Monte Blue and Raymond Hutton, lived as early 1844 pioneers. Other scenes were photographed in rivers, lakes, mountains and in the red-wood country near Sonoma. Adapted from the novel, "Fightin' Caravans," by Zane Grey, "Wagon Wheels," depicts the actual historic trip of the first wagon train to Oregon in 1841. The film shows in dramatic style the hardships, adventures and perils.

"Clive of India"

The overworked superlatives seem futile indeed when one comes to estimating the merits of "Clive of India," Darryl F. Zanuck's first million dollar production for 20th Century Pictures, which brings the personable and popular Ronald Colman to the King's Theatre. But, until a better term is coined we must be content to tag it "great," "magnificent" and "stirring" entertainment. It is a new Colman, a star who will see suspected power, whom you will see in this Joseph M. Schenck presentation, based on the London stage hit of the same name whose authors, W. P. Lipscomb and R. J. Minett, were brought to Hollywood by the producers to assure a true and accurate adaptation of their play to the screen. Loretta Young evidences new powers and gives an unforgettable portrayal of the lovely English girl to whom Clive wrote proposing marriage after seeing her picture in her brother's pocket. The love story of this heroic pair is one of the most beautiful and moving the screen has ever shown. The huge cast of principals, including Colin Clive, Francis Lister, C. Aubrey Smith and Cesar Romero, turns in performances of uniform excellence.

A NAVAL QUARREL

Unfortunately, Hongkong is still the haven of refuge of the Chinese cruisers Hai Chi and Hai Shen, which, for reasons not yet wholly explained, chose to leave Canton last week. The presence in port of Northern cruisers, for the purpose of escorting the other two ships back to the North, adds to the difficulties of a complicated situation. The quarrel between two sections of the Chinese Navy—for such it is—is no direct concern of the British authorities, and, as has been explained, until the two vessels which escaped from Canton are definitely regarded by the Central Government as rebels, there is no option left to the authorities here but to regard them as part and parcel of the Chinese Navy. It is clear, from the statements made by Vice-Admiral Chen and Commodore Morse, that there has yet been no settlement reached between the Hai Chi and the Hai Shen on the one hand and the Northern warships on the other. Hongkong's position in the matter is somewhat delicate from the fact that the Nanking naval craft can do nothing, whilst the ships are in British waters, except with the consent of the Hongkong authorities. At the moment, it is not clear why the escaping cruisers should have been driven back into Hongkong when they were encountered outside British waters, thus further complicating the situation. If, as there seems little reason to doubt, the Ning Hai had authority from Nanking to take the vessels North, the matter might have been more satisfactorily settled outside British waters, by the more superior craft insisting on the Hai Chi and Hai Shen proceeding to the nearest Chinese port. Whatever the reasons for the cruisers leaving Canton, it would seem that they made their decision, without having first taken the precaution to learn Nanking's attitude towards them, doubtless in the hope that they would be welcomed back with open arms. Matters have not worked out quite as expected, however. These two cruisers have, for many years, been a source of anxiety to Chinese naval circles. They have for long maintained a more or less semi-independent status and have seemingly been unable to count on financial support either from the Central Government or

NOTES OF THE DAY

NO MEN FOR MANY JOBS

With more than 2,000,000 still unemployed in Great Britain, certain industries are complaining bitterly, even desperately, that they cannot find men to fill the jobs now open in their factories. The reason is that there are thousands of untrained, or semi-trained, men in the country, who are willing to work but who are not competent. If a factory wants a machinist there is no use in its hiring a longshoreman, employers point out. And yet that is what will have to be done. In a little, employers will be forced to train unskilled labour to certain work in Britain if they are to keep up with production demands. And in the training of these unskilled hands Britain is going to lose valuable time: time which means orders, and pounds, shillings and pence. This is a natural sequel to the industrial slump, it is to be supposed. But in order to guard against it in the future it would seem necessary to reform the system by which the industrial workers are trained. In the past it was possible for factories to keep large staffs of apprentices that the business of learning could be carried on without any effect upon production. The apprentice system has been virtually abolished in most branches of industry. The result is that those who during the years of the depression might have been learning an expert's trade, now that their services are required are not fitted to accept employment. They have not been educated.

CHANGE NEEDED

What is needed in Britain, as elsewhere, is a reformed educational system. Men should be able to fit themselves for work in aeroplane or automobile factories, textile mills or engine-rooms, at advanced technical schools, supported by the Government and the industries for whose benefit they largely exist. This, more than ever, is an age of specialisation. The opportunities for untrained men are few and far between, and it becomes harder to educate one's self with employment increasingly difficult to find. A square peg's edges have to be trimmed, now, to fit in a round hole. And one does not have to be a radical to appreciate it. The time has passed, furthermore, when the untrained man can find the vague "something" in the Colonies. These Colonies, which prefer to be known as Dominions now that they have got into long trousers, don't want unskilled men. They have enough of them already, and to spare. Farming on Canada's prairies and ranching in Australia's vast hinterland is not a job for a "tenderfoot." It takes skill and patience, hard work to grow No. 1 wheat in Alberta and beef cattle in Queensland. And boys don't learn how under the present school system.

TO-DAY'S MOTORING TIP

DRIVING DOWNHILL

Motorists differ considerably in the manner in which they descend hills. Many owner-drivers make a practice of switching off the ignition when the car is travelling downhill.

This is a mistake, since the firing mixture induced into the combustion chambers is not fired, so the unburnt fuel vapour tends to wash the oil from the cylinder and piston walls. This is a serious thing, for until fresh oil seal is formed—this may take two or three minutes after switching the ignition again—wear is excessive.

The best way of descending a hill when the driver is expert at changing gear and the brakes are known to be reliable is to coast in neutral with the engine idling. Failing this the throttle should be closed and a gear should be engaged. A low gear is advisable on a steep hill, since this allows the engine to be used as a more powerful brake.

provincial authorities. Various rumours are current as to how they have been able to carry on, but, whatever the truth of these may be, it seems certain that financial reasons compelled their departure from Canton. At the moment, the officers of these vessels would appear to be attempting to bargain with Nanking for the best terms possible in the circumstances. The pity of it all is that Hongkong has unwillingly been brought into the picture.

LAND OF BLUFF AND TERRORISM

By F. BRITTEN AUSTIN

It may be that one day the U.S.S.R. will, ceremoniously add to its Communist Valhalla of Marx, Lenin, and Stalin the plump, bespectacled, charmingly benevolent figure of Mr. Litvinoff (alias Mr. Finklestein, alias Mr. Wallach). For if Marx and Lenin created the Communist Dictatorship, and Stalin very ruthlessly made it work, it is Mr. Litvinoff who has saved it—at least temporarily. Two years ago the Communist Dictatorship was in a very bad way. Russia, indeed, was dotted with the grandiose modernities of the last year of the First Five Year Plan, but these colossal factories had been purchased with the almost complete exhaustion of an enslaved people—and they functioned in an absurdly minimal ratio to the schedule decreed.

The collectivisation of agriculture had also been more or less enforced, amid the agonies of five million exiled kulaks, but the result had been an appalling famine—particularly in the fertile region of the Ukraine which, under the old regime, had made Odessa one of the great wheat-ports of the world.

Soviet Russia could no longer dump these out-price agricultural exports which provided it with foreign credits; it could no longer pay the salaries of its American experts, and it could no longer purchase the foreign machinery, the foreign material of transportation, of which it was in such urgent need. Soviet Russia had no friends, and none knew better than the Stalin group that a foreign war would be the signal for immediate internal insurrections, especially in the Ukraine and in the Caucasus—where the oil comes from. It was a bad outlook.

Mr. Litvinoff has changed all that. He looked around the world, seeing it in terms of diplomacy. Mr. Litvinoff went to Washington, talked charmingly, if somewhat vaguely, of eventually paying the Russian debts to America, and secured the boon, charged with immense prestige, of American recognition, so long denied. If he did not secure a loan, he secured a promise of railroad material, war material, aviation material, to be financed by a specially created Import and Export Bank, for which America would find the capital and the credits. That Soviet Russia does not to-day enjoy all the advantages he expected is due to the Soviet habit of being too frankly cynical apropos of the ineffectuality of bourgeois peoples. In the west also Mr. Litvinoff had an opportunity. Hitler's advent sent a shock of alarm throughout Europe. It meant that at no distant date the carefully piled pile of Versailles was going to be upset. Particularly it meant, on the evidence of Nazi leaders, that Russia was menaced in her wheat-growing province of the Ukraine. The German-Polish accord confirmed that hideous suspicion.

Once more the Russian steamroller is to loom on the German frontier. We have had some experience of Russian steam-rollers. Will the Soviet pattern prove to be more efficient? The Soviet comarilla loudly asserts that it will. "Nobody in fact doubts that the Soviet military machine is very formidable. The Soviet authorities have spent fifteen years in building it up, and almost the entire population is militarily trained. But will that machine work in the day of trial? It may be doubted. From first to last, the Soviet regime has been one gigantic bluff. It bluffs its own people (with the execution-squads of the O.G.P.U. to make good the bluff when necessary). It bluffs the outside world, with the most magnificently mendacious propaganda on record. It allows no Soviet citizen to cross its frontiers, except on an official mission. It allows only carefully-shophored foreigners to enter and censors their photographs on their exit. It is difficult to know what goes on inside Russia. It is only certain, from the Soviet newspapers—which the outside world does not read—that the colossal "modernism" imposed on primitive Russia functions very badly. Russians, it must be remembered, are always Russians. In the days of Catherine the Great, her favourite, Potemkin, stage-managing her visit to the new territories of the Crimea, territories which were to be an Eldorado, improvised a series of gaudy villages filled with happy dancing peasants. The peasants had been specially imported by the hundred thousand. On the return journey, the show over, hundreds of thousands of them died.

That did not matter. It was Russia. It is still Russia, a land of bluff. But in Soviet Russia the victims are numbered in millions. That does not matter either. The Western world sees beautiful photographs of vast new factories, of vast new hydro-electric plants, of vast new this and that. It reads magnificent statistics. In point of fact, the factories—paralysed by an utter lack of co-ordination between the State Trusts, and by the phenomenal instability of labour for ever wandering off elsewhere in search of a better job and better living conditions—function far below capacity, even according to Soviet statistics. And Soviet statistics, on the evidence of the bitter denunciations in Soviet newspapers, are utterly false from the beginning upwards. Trust managers, factory managers, departmental managers, all have to satisfy, first and last, the demands of a colossal bureaucracy wallowing in a sea of official papers. From first to last, the statistics are faked. This applies not only to industry but to agriculture and transportation, fluvial and railroad. On the collective farms, the bright new tractors rust uselessly because of the lack of repairs. On the river wharves the badly repaired steamers break down with a frequency which is the despair of those who compile optimistic returns for the benefit of the "higher-up." On the railroads, well—the story of the Soviet railroads would make a book, and a very funny one. Everywhere reigns—on the voluminous and detailed evidence of the Soviet newspapers—papers—inefficiency and corruption. Nor is the Soviet population imbued with that universal enthusiasm which the Soviet propagandists, and our parlour-Bolsheviks, would have us believe. The mass-terrorism, the mass-executions, of last winter are proof of it. Even the Soviet Government does not waste cartridges unnecessarily. There was something serious there which had to be stamped out. The subject erstwhile Republics of the Ukraine and the Caucasus notoriously await only the outbreak of a foreign war to make a fight for freedom. And the Soviet Government, which used to make a crime of anything that was not "internationalism," now exhorts its citizens "in the name of the Fatherland." Most assuredly, all is not well. Soviet Russia is a monstrous bluff. Let those beware who trust to it.

COLD STORAGE

DAIRY FARM COMPANY'S KOWLOON SCHEME

In order to cope with the increasing demand for cold storage space in Kowloon, the Dairy Farm, Ice and Cold Storage Co., Ltd., has, it is learned, leased extensive premises from the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company, Ltd. wherein will be installed a modern refrigerating plant.

At the present time Kowloon is largely dependent upon Hongkong for these facilities, and by the adoption of the new scheme much inconvenience will be eliminated. Storage will be provided for the use of market dealers for fresh fruits, meats, poultry, etc. Householders will be able to send winter clothing, carpets and so forth for storage during the hot months; while shipping companies and others concerned in the transshipment of perishable goods will find adequate and efficient storage. The scheme will also allow the Dairy Farm Company to carry large stocks on the Peninsula.

There will be six rooms in all, three of which will be used for goods requiring freezing temperatures, and the other three for fruit, etc., which require chilling temperature only.

The necessary machinery is being supplied by the Jardine Engineering Corporation, Ltd., agents for the well-known York Shipley Company. The construction and other insulating material has arrived, and the work in connection with the conversion of the building (previously known as Godown No. 28) has already commenced. It is anticipated that the building will be ready to receive goods by September 1.

CANTON DISPLEASED

LEAGUE, NANKING AND JAPAN BLAMED

Canton, June 24. Addressing a gathering of high officials at the weekly meeting at the Sun Yat-sen Memorial Hall meeting, Mr. Chow Lu, a member of the South-West Political Council and one of Canton's elder statesmen, declared that Japan, the League of Nations and Nanking had been guilty of action which had precipitated the present crisis in the Far East and had menaced the peace of the world. The speaker condemned Japan for her violation of the Nine Power Pact in seizing Manchuria and pursuing an aggressive policy in North China, and severely criticized the League of Nations for its failure to apply sanctions against Japan according to the Covenant. Finally he assailed Nanking for her policy of non-resistance expressing the conviction that such a policy could only lead to ultimate destruction. He was convinced that the conciliatory policy of the Japanese Foreign Office was only camouflage, and in reality the differences between the Foreign Office and the Japanese military were non-existent.

Nanking was attempting to achieve unification through a policy of submission to Japan but this was bound to fail.—Reuter.

EXTRADITION CASE

CROWN SUBMITS FUGITIVE'S STORY CONCOCTED

Wanted in Canton by the Chinese authorities for the alleged larceny by bailee of jewellery pledged at the On Cheong pawnshop on November 16, 1932, the protracted extradition proceedings against Tong Wan-kui alias Tong Chan-mung, a partner of the shop, were brought to a close yesterday afternoon before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy, when the fugitive was committed to gaol to await orders from His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government.

Yesterday's hearing was marked by closing addresses by Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, Assistant Attorney General, and Mr. F. X. D'Almada, arr., defending the fugitive.

Mr. Lockhart-Smith opened by making a reference to a suggestion by the defence that warrants for an extradition case should be laid as strictly as in an indictable offence, which he said His Worship had characterized as extraordinary.

Case for the Crown

Replying to the submission by the defence that there was no case to answer, Mr. Lockhart-Smith indicated the case which the fugitive would have to meet by stressing six points. The first, he said, was the evidence of Chung Cheuk-kan and Wong Yau-sheung (complainants) as to the pawning by the fugitive personally and the loss of the valuable pledges; secondly, the evidence of Wong Pui-sun that the whole of the pledges were removed by, or by the direction of the fugitive and his son to their house in Canton on the night of November 16, 1932 and that the fugitive had absconded that very night; thirdly, the evidence of Chung that the shop was doing business and that the fugitive was present about 6 p.m. on the afternoon of November 16; fourthly, the evidence of the Canton Police that the shop was closed on the morning of November 17 and that the fugitive was missing and all the valuable pledges, including those of Chung and Wong Yau-sheung, were not to be found; on the fifth point, the evidence of Wong Pui-sun on the conversations as to the disposal of the stolen property, and the suggestion of the handing over of something, inferred to be the property that remained unsold. Lastly there was the evidence of Wong as to the fugitive's admission of his possession of some of the pledges, and his hope of selling some of them to relieve Wong from pressure by creditors, whom he had personally introduced to the pawnshop.

Continuing Mr. Lockhart-Smith said it would be seen that the case against the fugitive depended mainly on the evidence of Wong Pui-sun, but he would submit that the case for the defence materially, if indirectly, strengthened the case for extradition.

Wong Pui-sun's absence had been criticised; firstly it was said by the defence that he was not a free agent, and then that he had been spirited away. It was, however, to the interest of the Chinese Authorities to have kept Wong in Hongkong.

Points of the Defence

The first point the defence raised, said Mr. Lockhart-Smith was that the accused had left Canton at 4.30 p.m. on November 16 on the Lung Shan, the time the Crown alleged the offence had been committed, and that he had gone under the name of D. C. Jong, and had cards bearing that name. The fugitive had also called the secretary of the Hongkong, Canton and Macao Steamship Company to produce the passenger list which showed a name of "de Jong," which the fugitive claimed had been misspelled for D. C. Jong.

The Crown had, however, proved that five tickets had been bought by a Mr. Cohen de Boer on the previous day. This clearly indicated a party of Dutch people, one of whom was a "de Jong," and hence the fugitive's name had not appeared in the list, nor any of his other names.

"I make no criticism of my friend Mr. D'Almada," said Mr. Lockhart-Smith. "He is the most energetic but one of the solicitors in the Colony. Moreover he must take his instructions, but the construction I place upon the transaction is that the fugitive and his friends deliberately concocted a story to deceive this Court. A name on the passenger list had been somehow obtained and cards printed for the purposes of this case to show a name approximating to the most likely name on the list. The name was

APOSTOLIC CHURCH

KAYING AND SUCHOW RAISED TO VICARIATS

Vatican City, June 24. Monsignor Francis X. Ford, the Brooklyn member of the Mary Knoll fathers, has been named Titular Bishop and has been promoted Vicar of the Apostolic Church of Kaying, Kwantung Province.

Since 1929 Bishop Ford has been head of the Prefecture of the Apostolic Church at Kaying which has now been raised to the rank of a Vicariat.

Monsignor Philip Cote, a Jesuit of Lawrence, Mass., has been appointed a Titular Bishop and promoted to the head of the Apostolic Vicariat in Suchow, Kiangsu Province, which previously has been an Apostolic prefecture.—United Press.

One case each of Diphtheria and Typhoid were reported to the local Health authorities during the week-end.

not very happily adapted and the trap was not detected."

Deliberately Faked

Continuing, Mr. Lockhart-Smith said that the second point raised by the defence was the receipt from the Wan Kau boarding house, but he would not hesitate to say that it had been deliberately faked.

After dealing with some other points raised by the defence, Mr. Lockhart-Smith said that he wanted to stress that the proceedings were genuine, as there had been some suggestion they were not.

"If the interpretation I have placed on the defence is correct, there can be only one conclusion. If the fugitive's only answer can be found in a concocted story, a faked alibi and a forged receipt, then I say the case for extradition has been abundantly made out."

Mr. D'Almada, replying, submitted that the fugitive was charged with larceny by bailee of certain goods pledged with the On Cheong pawnshop, and there was, he said, not a title of evidence to show larceny by bailee.

Wong Pui-sun's evidence was mainly relied on, and he had related how the fugitive with his son and nephew removed the jewellery. Was it conceivable, he asked that if the fugitive wanted to steal the pledges, he should require the assistance of his nephew?

Not a Free Agent

On the point of the absence of Wong Pui-sun for cross-examination by him, Mr. D'Almada first regretted having taken ill on the day when he should have cross-examined Wong, and then went on to say that Wong was not a free agent while in Hongkong, and that he had been under the surveillance of the Canton detectives, who for some purpose went to Canton and took him with them and kept him in custody until his return to Hongkong with them. The opportunity then favouring him, Wong availed himself and escaped.

"Although I cannot vouch for the truth of this statement, I have not the least doubt of the fact," said Mr. D'Almada.

Explaining the incident of the passenger ticket, Mr. D'Almada said that the fugitive did come down to Hongkong on the Lung Shan under the name of D. C. Jong, and that the clerk who had made out the passenger list had apparently taken the name "de Jong" as explained by the Crown for D. C. Jong, without making any enquiries as to whether they were separate persons.

In committing the fugitive to gaol, Mr. Schofield remarked a prima facie case had been made out against the fugitive, and said there was no evidence that it was a political prosecution.

Matrimony frequently becomes a matter of money.

ALLEGED ARSON

PREVIOUS ATTEMPT TO FIRE BUILDING ALLEGED

It was alleged by the prosecution that a previous attempt to set fire to the building had been frustrated by folks of the factory, when two men were brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon on charges of arson. Hearing of the case was adjourned until 2.30 p.m. this afternoon.

Ng Yuen-chow was charged with the arson of the San Man Toy Manufacturing Company and Ng King-chiu, a partner of the firm, was charged with the alleged procurement of the crime.

Mr. P. H. Sin appeared on behalf of the second accused while Mr. J. A. General appeared for the prosecution.

Mr. Fraser in outlining the case stated the two accused were charged with setting fire to No. 104 Fuk Wah Street, ground floor, with intent to defraud. The first defendant was the principal and the second defendant was an accessory before the fact. No. 104 Fuk Wah Street was one of the three premises which used to be kept by the firm, the other two premises being No. 100 and 108.

Until three years ago the three premises were used as a factory. Six months after that one of the premises was given up and from two and a half years ago they carried on at No. 104 until the rate of exchange deprived them of the Singapore trade, and they had to depend on local trade, but that was insufficient to meet expenses.

The firm was previously run by five partners. Three withdrew, and left second accused and another man named Tang Kan-woing who acted in the capacity of managing partner.

The alleged arson took place at 2 a.m. on May 24. On May 18 the managing partner left and went to Canton, and had not been seen until Saturday. Some time before he left there was some talk of closing down the premises. The two were properly insured, but latterly the insurance had been reduced to an insurance on No. 104 and 108; amounting to $11,000; about $5,000 on No. 104. Twenty people were employed at No. 104 and the machines there made of wood.

On the night of May 21, an attempt to set fire to the premises was made, but some of the folks were sleeping on the premises and they frustrated the alleged attempt of arson by the first defendant at the instigation of the second. However, in the course of the folks who slept on the premises knew of the intention to set fire to the premises. They stayed away at a restaurant until 2 a.m., and when they returned to their homes, they heard police whistles and found the premises on fire.

Partly Cracked Pillars. The Fire Brigade officers state that the amount of materials found on the floor, wooden machines, fabric, etc., would not account for the amount of blackening on the under side of the verandah. Besides that there was the statement of the first defendant who blames the second accused of instigating the crime.

C. C. Moss, Deputy Superintendent of Fire Brigade, Kowloon, testified that he attended a fire at No. 104 Fuk Wah Street in the early morning of May 24. The fire took place about three quarters of an hour to extinguish. The building was a three storey building, with concrete floors and staircase. There was also a room on the roof.

Inside the premises considerable damage was done by the fire, and on the outside, two concrete pillars of the verandah outside No. 104 were partly cracked and partly broken away. This might have been caused by water on the hot stone. From 104 to 110, the space under the verandah was badly blackened by smoke. From his examination witness was positive that the fire started from the ground floor of No. 104, but could not say more than that.

On the afternoon of May 24 witness returned to the premises with Detective-Inspector Darling and found on the ground floor and No. 104, the burnt remains of tawelling and wooden frames of machinery. From the blackening under the verandah witness drew the inference that more must have been burnt than the tawelling and the machinery.

Mr. Sin: When witness went to the fire, how long had it been burning?—I couldn't say how long the fire had been burning. We got the call at 2.05 a.m. and arrived there in two minutes.

Mr. Sin: Do you know the exact time the fire started?—No.

Mr. Sin: Was it in your opinion a serious fire or not?—Yes.

Smell of Spirits. Further evidence was given by Ho Tim, supervisor of the San Man factory. In the course of his evidence witness stated that first defendant was the cook and general servant, and claimed to be the nephew of the second accused.

Between 1 a.m. and 2 a.m. on May 22 he was at No. 88 Fuk Wah Street, when he was called by Chiu Wai-wan and Li Ho, folks of the firm. Witness went with them to No. 104 Fuk Wah Street and there he saw Ng Yuen-chow lying on a bed. When witness entered there was a smell of methylated spirits and he saw what appeared to be cotton waste under a coiled cloth. It was up against the machines. Witness also noticed that there were some spindles piled up amongst the waste.

After a conversation with the men who called him, witness then went to bed, and about quarter-of-an-hour after a second accused came in and said, "You keep quiet. This is my business; it has nothing to do with you folks." The next morning witness saw the first accused remove the waste. On the evening of the 23rd second accused said to witness, "You go out to-night and don't come back." Defendant did not give witness any reason for saying this.

The hearing was then adjourned.

Do You Know Where Sploot Is?

The chances are that you do not, yet from this suburb of Cardiff, Wales, comes a message of hope for people who are suffering from any of the various ills arising from blood impoverishment.

Writing from her home at No. 9 Smith Street, Sploot, Miss I. M. Jones states:—"For years I suffered from anaemia, I was always languid, nervous and irritable, and often had fainting fits. Last October I had a nervous breakdown, and was kept away from my work for over two months."

"I lost my appetite entirely. Fits of depression came over me and I used to cry on the slightest provocation. I lost weight to an alarming extent."

"I could not go out alone for fear of being seized with a fainting fit. I was utterly listless and had no interest in anything. I could not sleep at night. I was often overcome by violent headaches."

"I began to pick up some of my lost weight, my nerves grew steady, fainting fits no longer troubled me, and before long my ailments were a thing of the past."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are just what you need if you are run-down and ailing. When the plentiful supply of rich, pure blood which these pills create is flowing in your veins your whole system becomes invigorated. They are obtainable from chemists everywhere.

BOWLS FINALIST ELIMINATED

D. RUMJAHN OUT OF TOURNEY

ARCULLI WINS

(By "Sax")

D. Rumjahn, runner-up last year to A. W. Grimmett, in the Open Lawn Bowls Singles Championship, has joined the unhappy band of pilgrims whose journeyings through the various rounds of the tournament have been unexpectedly terminated. Yesterday he met E. C. Arculli on the Civil Service C. C. green and was eliminated by a score of 20 shots to nine.

Rumjahn, on paper, was and possibly still is, considered the better of the two players but like other local giants of the level green game, he was not able to reproduce his best form at the right time and so he too had to take the count. Arculli, however, has always been one of the leading players of the Craigengower C. C. from where Rumjahn also comes, but of recent years ill health has kept him out of active bowls with the result that his form has not been as good as formerly.

This season Arculli has been playing regularly and seems to have regained his best form again. The standard of bowls yesterday, however, was rarely or never worthy of two such seasoned players and there were really very few bowls which could be termed anything like brilliant.

Yesterday Arculli was by far the better of the two and played more consistently than did his opponent. He fully deserved to win and although the margin of victory, ordinarily may seem small, it was in fact the difference in the standard of the two yesterday was well indicated by the score.

Rumjahn was dead off form and could not reveal the same high standard which carried him into the final twelve months ago.

The scoring was on the low side throughout and neither player scored a three, although there were quite a number of twos. The match ended on the 21st end.

Arculli registered singles on the first four ends and was somewhat lucky on the second to draw first shot when his opponent was lying four. However, Rumjahn partially had his revenge on the fourth end when Arculli was lying four and he drew second shot.

By steady scoring Arculli took the score to 10-5 and finally 10-8 on the 16th. On this end Arculli had a lucky wick to draw first shot when Rumjahn was lying four.

COUNTY CRICKET FIXTURES

MATCHES FINISH IN TWO DAYS

UNIVERSITIES BEATEN

London, June 24.

Gloucestershire defeated Glamorgan by an innings and five runs in a County Cricket match concluded at Bristol to-day.

Glamorgan in their first visit to the wickets could only realise 93 against the deadly accurate bowling of Goddard who secured six wickets for 36 runs. In their second knock, Glamorgan did a little better but could not pass the double century mark scoring a total of 195. Parker took five wickets for 86 runs.

Gloucester in their innings scored 233.

The Marylebone defeated Cambridge University by eight wickets, at Lord's, Sims and Hearne shining with the ball.

Cambridge scored 100 in their first innings, Sims claiming no less than eight victims for only 31 runs. The Varsity totalled 139 in their second innings, Hearne dismissing four batsmen for 18.

Notts gained victory over Sussex by an innings and 64 runs at Nottingham.

Sussex fared very badly against the bowling of Vane (15 for 31) and scored only 96 in their first innings. They totalled 110 in their second innings.

Notts amassed a total of 270 runs. Mr. H. D. G. Leveson-Gower's XI defeated Oxford University by ten wickets at Reigate. Baxter, a member of the winning team, did extremely well with the ball, claiming no less than 13 wickets for 72 runs.

The Oxonians totalled 145 in their first innings at the wicket, Baxter claiming six wickets for 39. In their second visit they were less successful and were dismissed for 78, Baxter dismissing seven batsmen for 33.

Leveson-Gower's XI scored 191 and, in the second innings, knocked up 33 runs with all their wickets intact. — Router.

Two Bowls Matches To-day

J. C. BROWN AND R. BASA TO PLAY

There now remains only four matches in the second round of the Open Lawn Bowls Singles Championship and two of these will be decided this afternoon.

No date has been fixed for the game between F. L. Rapley and T. Armstrong owing to the recent indisposition of the former. It is more than probable that Rapley will concede a walk over to his opponent.

This afternoon R. Basa, of the Craigengower C. C. will meet J. C. Brown, of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, on the Club de Recond Green while H. Rozario, of the Club de Recond, will play J. J. Whyte, of the Tai Koo R. C. on the Kowloon C. C. green.

There is still one match which was started but not concluded owing to rain.

New York Giants Nosed Out By Cubs

BASEBALL DEFEAT FOR LEADERS

YANKEES BEAT INDIANS

New York, June 24. The New York Giant failed to maintain their winning form in the National Baseball League to-day when they played Chicago Cubs, to whom they lost by a single run after the game had been extended to ten innings.

However, they have a commanding lead and the Cardinals' victory against Brooklyn Dodgers has not made a great difference in the relative positions of the two leading teams.

The Yankees, in the American League, won against Cleveland Indians this further widening the gap between the two top teams.

Results of today's matches as called by Router follow:

THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES

Not Better Than The Male In Horse Races

Palo Alto, Cal., June 8. The male of the species, Equus Caballus, (otherwise, the horse) is a faster stepper than the female, according to statistics compiled by Dr. Calvin P. Stone.

Using racing records dating back for several years, Dr. Stone, psychologist at Stanford University, showed that in 2,400 stake races on principal American tracks from 1923 to 1929, seventy-eight per cent. of the winners were male horses.

Records for a period of twenty-five years, covering distances from 440 yards to four miles, showed that stallions and geldings won 86 per cent. of all the races.

VICTORY OVER ALLISON

BEATS AMERICAN IN THE FIRST ROUND

BY EXPLOITING TWO-HANDED BACK-HAND STROKE

London, June 24.

The Wimbledon lawn tennis championships to-day opened in sweltering heat before an attendance of approximately 6,000 spectators. There was a sensation in the first round of the singles championship when Vivian McGrath, the young Australian Davis Cup player, who lost all his recent matches in this competition, eliminated Wilmer Allison, the leading American player in four sets. A number of notable names appear among the first round winners, Fred Perry, the present holder of the title, G. von Cramm, the German champion, Jack Crawford, the Australian champion, Sidney Wood, the American player and Jean Borotra, still the idol of the Wimbledon crowd, all entering the second round.

John Yamauchi, the Japanese Davis Cup player, had little difficulty in accounting for H. L. de Morpurgo, the former Italian Davis Cup player, and now of the Belgian Congo, by scores of 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

The Japanese quickly realised that his opponent, who has not been playing much serious tennis of recent years, was out of touch with his back hand strokes and Yamauchi hammered this department of the Italian's game mercilessly.

De Morpurgo's main stroke was his first service which was excellent and which he exploited successfully to obtain many points, but his second service was singularly weak.

The Italian tried desperately to evade the back hand shots by running round them but he not only lost time but became out of position.

There was a close struggle for the first set although the Japanese only lost three games, but the second went to the Japanese with comparative ease.

The Italian made a fight for the third set but Yamauchi's quickness on the court and brilliant drop shots won him a deserved victory.

De Morpurgo lacked his pristine power and was rarely able to produce the form of his Davis Cup days.

HOW MCGRATH WON

By exploiting his brilliant two-handed back-hand shot with lightning pace and great accuracy, Vivian McGrath, the young unseeded Australian, furnished a sensation on a glorious first day at the Jubilee Wimbledon by defeating Wilmer Allison, America's leading player, by 6-1, 6-3, 7-5, 7-5.

There was a record crowd, including Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, who was not engaged to-day, to see Allison win under McGrath's inspired play. Allison made a great recovery and won the third set after being 3-5 down, and then he obtained a lead in the fourth but McGrath made an irresistible rally and won six games in a row.

Allison, however, showed a strong hand throughout and made McGrath go all out for victory.

FRED PERRY THROUGH

Fred Perry, the holder, has an easy passage into the second round when he was drawn against Marcel Rainville, Canada's No. 1 ranking player, who entered unopposedly. The Wimbledon champion won by 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 without being extended.

Bunny Austin, England's No. 2 player, also had an easy task against E. R. Avery, a nephew of the late Judge Avery, who died last week. Austin won 6-2, 6-1, 6-2. G. P. Hughes accounted for an American player named Culley by 6-3, 11-9, 6-2 but Great Britain lost many players, including F. H. D. Wilde, Freshwater and I. G. Collins.

Jean Borotra, the French International, who is still the idol of Wimbledon crowds, dispelled the idea that he is now unable to last five sets by defeating H. Henkel, Germany's second rank player, who recently beat both Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath in the Davis Cup, by scores of 6-1, 1-6, 8-6, 2-6, 6-2.

John Van Ryn, the American, beat the Australian Davis Cup reserve, D. Donald, who is still the idol of Wimbledon crowds, dispelled the idea that he is now unable to last five sets by defeating H. Henkel, Germany's second rank player, who recently beat both Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath in the Davis Cup, by scores of 6-1, 1-6, 8-6, 2-6, 6-2.

Vivian McGrath's two-handed back-hand as exploited against Wilmer Allison.

P. Turnbull, 6-2, 6-3, 8-6 while in addition to Sidney Wood, other Americans to survive the first round are Gene Mako, Donald Budge and Wilmer Hines. The last named (at present ranked eighteenth in America, five places above his 1933 ranking) recently surpassed himself by a straight set victory over G. Palmieri in the final of the Italian Championship.

Jack Crawford, of Australia, beat Jacques Brugnon, the French Davis Cup player, by 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 and G. von Cramm, the German Davis Cup player, won from DeLeon, of South America, 6-1, 6-0, 6-3.

WOOD WINS

S. B. Wood, the American Davis Cup player, easily eliminated the Japanese player, E. Itoh.

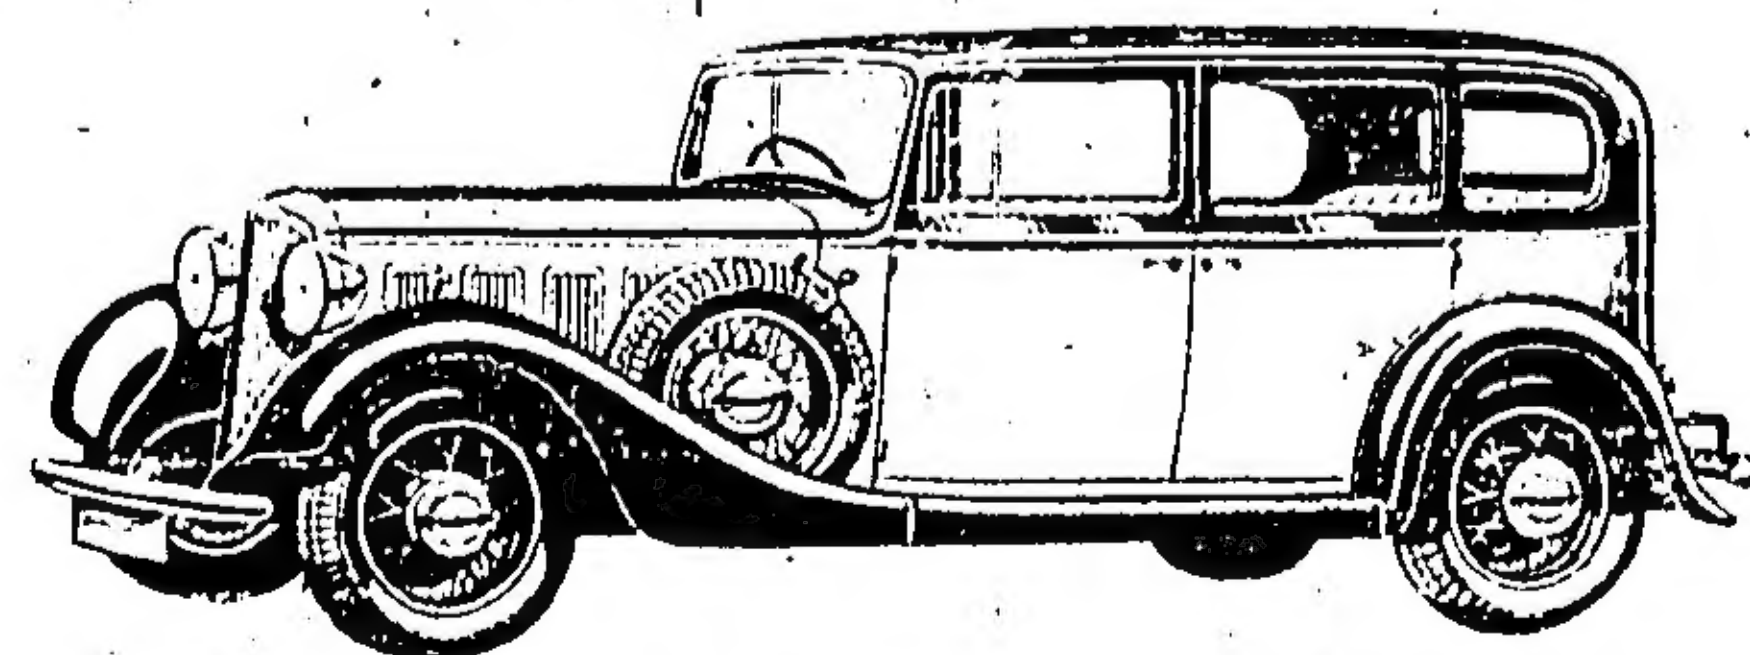

The American player was entirely confident of his superiority, and showed his ability to win when and how he liked.

He aimed piercing returns into the far corners of the court and quickly rushed to the net, and dealt as he liked with the Japanese player's returns.

Wood ran away with the first set taking five games without a reply, from his opponent who seemed de-

Miss Wanda Morgan Wins Golf Title

BEST FINAL SINCE MISS WETHERED
BEAT MISS COLLETT

By Eleanor E. Helme

London, May 31.

Miss Wanda Morgan beat Miss Pam Barton 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final of the Championship at Newcastle, Co. Down, and so holds at last the title which has seemed overdue to her ever since she was runner-up to Miss Enid Wilson at Portmarnock in 1931.

Never has Miss Morgan, given on-lookers such a glorious feeling of confidence as she did in this final. Hitting the iron shots without a trace of effort, playing everything well within herself, and above all, putting supremely well. That old bogey of being an uncertain putter is once and for all buried and done with, and there was much to test nerve.

It has also been said of Miss Morgan that she lacks the little grain of cruelty which enables the golfer who is up to rub in her advantage, or to fight to the death when it is threatened. Miss Morgan can no longer be criticised on that score. Down in the early stages, she squared the match at the 9th in the morning, took the lead at the 11th, made it two at the 12th, lunched 2 up, made it 3 immediately after, was pulled back to one at the turn, and yet hung on all the way until the final putt was dead.

THE LOSER'S COURAGE

As for Miss Barton, she, too, played grand golf, and if it were more of the brilliant recovery and one putt type than Miss Morgan's, that is only all the more tribute to her splendid pluck and the power which she can apply applause. Miss Morgan had a ten-yard putt for the hole; the ball crept up and up, with cries from the crowd of "Go on with you, go on," but the ball stuck a foot short, and the hole was halved.

MISS BARTON UNDERCLUBS

Miss Barton won the next, Miss Morgan again nearly holing the long putt. At the 3rd again she near as nothing holed the chip, but this time she had no need of it, for Miss Barton had underclubbed the second shot in taking an iron, and so found a bunker instead of the green, which was undoubtedly within shot if she had taken wood. At the 4th Miss Morgan showed that she was going to sink the doubtful putts as well as shave the hole with the long ones, for after a frightening bold try for a 2, she rattled in the return one for the half.

Both bunkered their drives to the 5th, Miss Morgan was perhaps unlucky to be stymied at five yards' range and could only halve the hole, and failing to complete the mastery chip with a two-yard putt, at the 6th, Miss Barton was 1 up again.

Two halves followed, and then once again Miss Barton seemed to underclub the second shot, and so lost the hole, which Miss Morgan felt no shame to take wood to with the second and so took the par figure. Square at the turn, both out in 38. Good putting from both of them halved the 13th in 3, good putting from Miss Morgan, and suddenly faultily from Miss Barton, gave Miss Morgan the 11th, and a particularly perfect iron second to the 12th won her that in 4 as well. Two up.

To the 13th Miss Barton got her very long drive to precisely the right spot, and her iron second four yards past the pin, winning the hole, since Miss Morgan's three-yarder is only to come out again. A technical four yards from the 14th pin, and Miss Barton away on the left, gave Miss Morgan that hole, and she ought to have added another at the 15th, but she missed a short one after Miss Barton had holed a moralised and made many mistakes.

The final result was:
Wood beat Itoh, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0.
G. Palmeri beat Hideo Nishimura 6-2, 3-0, 6-3, 6-4.

Palmeri's extra dash prevailed in a splendid match in which neither player spared himself. Play continually covered the whole court and both players indulged in low, back-hand volleys, many of which were picked up and returned almost from the baseline.

Nashimura imparted more spin to his backhand shot, but his positioning was weak and long rallies frequently ended in Nishimura being beaten by yards but still gallantly chasing the ball.

Nashimura showed signs of being very tired in the fourth set, but after holding his service for four games, the Italian player broke through to finish the set and match. In the first round, C. E. Malfroy (New Zealand) beat W. C. Choy (China) 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.—Reuter.

JUBILEE DONATION

A donation is being made jointly by the Lawn Tennis Association and the All England Club to King George's Jubilee Trust. The whole of the cash receipts taken at the gate of the Championship Meeting to-day will be set aside for this purpose.

good one, and it was a half. The putt again looked at the hole only to stay out at the 16th, Miss Barton running up beautifully to win it in 3, but Miss Morgan's faultless 4 won the 17th, and the 18th was halved, Miss Barton again having a clever run up and one putt.

Miss Morgan's figures read: 5, 5, 4, 3, 5, 5, 3, 5, 4—39 out; 3, 4, 4, 5, 3, 5, 4, 4, 5—37 in.

Miss Barton's figures were: 5, 4, 5, 3, 5, 4, 3, 5, 5—39 out; 3, 5, 5, 4, 4, 5, 3, 5, 6—39 in.

UNDISMAYED

After lunch Miss Morgan holed a good putt to win the 1st in 4, and that was 3 up, but Miss Barton showed herself entirely undismayed was a magnificent recovery at the 2nd and won it in 4, and the next in the same figure, one putt again being enough. That was a crucial point, especially when, at the 4th, she nearly holed a long putt, and Miss Morgan only got a win by laying the chip dead. At the 5th, however, Miss Barton had an encounter with a cavernous bunker, whence she went into another, and Miss Morgan was 3 up.

Back came Miss Barton again, with a couple of 3's, lost the 8th, won the 9th, halved the 10th. Still anybody's match.

The 12th would have seemed a crisis had not every hole in such a match merited that word. A two-yard putt of Miss Morgan's followed in for a 4, Miss Barton missed a short one, but Miss Morgan only halved the 12th, lost the 13th and was now again only one up.

A faultless 3 won her the 14th, she halved the 15th, and put a perfect tee-shot home at the 16th. Miss Barton was short, the chip by no means dead, in a silence broken only by a cuckoo away in over the gorge, Miss Morgan studied her long putt, run it up stone dead, and when Miss Barton failed to hole hers, the match was over.

Miss Morgan's figures read: 4, 5, 5, 3, 5, 4, 4, 5, 6—41 out; 3, 4, 5, 5, 3, 5, 3—28 in.

Miss Barton's were: 5, 4, 4, 4, 6, 3, 3, 6, 4—39 out; 3, 5, 5, 4, 4, 5, 4—30 in.

The cups and medals were presented by Mrs. Thompson, wife of the captain of the Royal County Down Club. The special bogey competition prize, presented by the Royal County Down Club, was won by Miss Elsie Corlett with all square.

CHEVROLET KNEE-ACTION

Proved By Engineers And By Hundreds Of Thousands Of Owners.

Your present car is stiff-legged.

FOR VALUE

1935 Chevrolets step over a bump.

Why does Chevrolet keep repeating
"DRIVE IT ONLY 5 MILES" ?

Chevrolet engineers have tried all the cars in to-day's low-priced field. They have compared performance on rough roads, in traffic, over hills, through sand and mud and water. They have proved the same thing that hundreds of thousands of Chevrolet owners are proving in their daily driving:

HOW MUCH MORE SMOOTHLY A CAR TRAVELS WITH GENUINE FULLY ENCLOSED KNEE-ACTION.

HOW MUCH MORE COMFORTABLY IT HANDLES WITH SHOCKLESS STEERING.

HOW MUCH MORE RESTFULLY YOU RIDE IN A FISHER BODY CAR WITH TURRET TOP.

HOW MUCH MORE SAFELY YOU DRIVE WITH CABLE CONTROL BRAKES AND IN A STEEL BODY.

They have proved how much finer performance and better economy are secured, from an over-head valve 6-cylinder engine.

In other words Chevrolet engineers and the hundreds of thousands of owners know for sure that the Chevrolet ride simply cannot be matched by any other in the low price field. AND NOW WE WANT YOU TO KNOW IT TOO, BEFORE YOU MAKE YOUR FINAL CHOICE OF A LOW-PRICE CAR.

THAT'S WHY WE URGE YOU TO "DRIVE IT ONLY 5 MILES" AND THAT'S WHY WE PROMISE YOU WILL NEVER BE SATISFIED WITH ANY OTHER LOW-PRICE CAR.

SERIAL STORY

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

KATHARINE STRYKHURST, 20, is a contented and restless because her wealthy father, VICTOR STRYKHURST, and her mother, MRS. STRYKHURST, refuse to let Katharine undertake any sort of work. Katharine rides daily with MICHAEL HEATHCOTE, young westerner who runs a riding club. She assures herself she is not interested in Michael but feels a pang of jealousy when SALLY MOON, local coquette, engages at the club for tomorrow.

ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, returns from Europe where she has been taking a long holiday with GIBBS LARKIN, of whom her parents disapprove. Zoe tells Katharine she must see Gibbs, begs Katharine to help her arrange a meeting.

CHAPTER IV

Zoe glanced at the riders—Michael and Sally Moon—and said contentedly, "So she's got her hooks into him!"

Katharine felt the hot colour burn her cheeks. She pretended not to hear. Her heart had plunged—now righted itself. She steeled her hand against the door of the car so that Zoe should not see how it was trembling.

Ahead of them, under the high arch of trees, Michael and Sally rode on. The sound of horses' feet was strangely loud in the stillness. Katharine could see a flash of sunlight on the red crest of Michael's head. Sally dropped toward him and his attitude toward her, even at this distance, seemed protective, solicitous.

It was all absurd; it was not Katharine's affair, certainly, if Michael rode with Sally Moon. "So I'll count on you, then, Kay," she heard Zoe say, in the silence.

"What?—I didn't hear you!" Katharine's tone was confused, her cheeks flaming.

"But a darling and think over what I said about taking a trip to Maine," Zoe coaxed. "Mother wouldn't mind a bit if you suggested it. She wouldn't even suspect."

"Oh, really?" Katharine was unaccountably nettled by the suggestion that she, at 20, was so stupid as to like him. "What did people think she was made of, anyhow? She had feelings like the rest of them. Anger swept her, swift and unreasoning. She wanted, recklessly, to strike out, to hurt someone. She was usually so cool and judicious."

Zoe was in no hurry to get on. She lit a cigarette now, from the little silver case she always carried, and offered Katharine one. The other girl refused.

Zoe nodded in the direction of Sally Moon's departing figure. The absurd yellow cap could be seen, bobbing in time with the mare's bound trotting movements. "Hear she's refused Howe MacKenzie?"

"Oh, I don't believe it," Katharine said sharply.

Zoe giggled. "Why, Kay, I believe you don't like that girl."

Katharine shrugged her shapely shoulders. She hated the subject, but she was fascinated by it. "I never knew you, but rather stupid, a bore at 20, was in the nature of a town joke. Yet Sally had been sought in marriage."

That was something. Howe was rich. Some day he would be important in local politics; that was why the staid, prim, stuffy, old-fashioned and deceitful and cheaply pretty, had had a chance to become a wife.

"Not that Katharine wanted marriage. But, from her chilly and rather bewildered heights, she wondered how it was done. She knew how. She had a system, involving the use of eyes, of furtive, fleeting caresses, of murmured words on dance floor and veranda. Katharine had always held herself aloof from what she called 'that sort of thing.' Now, suddenly, she was curious."

"Sally has," Zoe said carelessly, as if she read her companion's thoughts.

"Oh, I don't doubt it!" Even to Katharine herself the words sounded vaguely bitter. She wouldn't stop, she told herself, to the sort of thing Sally indulged in—prancing against a man's shoulder, appearing to stumble and catching the nearest masculine hand or arm, spraying oneself with the most seductive perfumes.

"You're a funny girl," Zoe said curiously, almost speculatively. "Don't you like men?"

Katharine slid the door lever open, jumped lightly to the ground. In the bright light of early morning her skin was flawless, ivory stained faintly with an apricot glow. Her fair hair curled in little tendrils about her face.

"Why, she's gorgeous looking, really," the other girl thought. "What wouldn't she be like if she waked up!"

"Don't be a goose," Katharine said good-naturedly. "I don't know how we got on the subject. Of course, I like men. Don't I line and dance and swim with them?"

"Oh, it isn't that. I know you have heaps of beaux," Zoe hastened to amend contritely. "It's just that—well, you're so sort of casual with them. I don't believe you've ever even felt a flutter. Have you?"

Katharine shrugged. "All this talk of flutters," she said with distaste. "It makes me—well, just a bit sick."

"There, you see!" cried Zoe. "I knew it! You're on the heights most of the time. And," she added mysteriously, "they don't like it!"

"Why, Johnny Kaye!" Katharine exclaimed. "Wherever did you drop from?"

Zoe, remembering her tears and furies and imprecations, when dragged away from the adored Gibbs, had the grace to colour.

"Not—not fun, exactly. Oh, but it's what makes life worth living. Haven't you ever, not one single time, waked up in the morning to find the sky blue and the sun brighter and everything—oh, marvellous—just because you were going to see someone?"

"No, I haven't."

"I don't," murmured Zoe, "quite believe it."

Any moment now, Katharine's errand thoughts ran, any moment Michael and Sally Moon would be fording the low river. Sally's dark curls would bob deliciously on her shoulders—if you like that sort of thing, it was all right—and Michael would be speaking in a low tone to Zoe, urging her up the bank.

Suddenly everything was hushed. Zoe with her bubble of puppy love and surprises and blue skies—everything!

"I've simply got to see Gibbs," Zoe cried, abruptly, reverting to her original theme.

"I won't have a thing to do with it," Katharine declared.

"Oh, how mean of you!" Katharine strode up the lane without a single backward look as Zoe, after one or two reproachful mutterings, slid the car into gear. Oh, it was altogether a horrid day! Now Zoe would be angry and Katharine felt within herself the murmurings of a deep discontent. She longed, suddenly, to be doing something important—going to Paris to study art, taking a school in the southern mountains as Harriet Greene had done, making something real and important of her life.

Terrible to be a girl—even in this day of much vaunted freedom for women. Poor girls, Katharine mused, had all the luck. They could strike out for themselves. They could have the infinite satisfaction of doing work that was fascinating or important or both. She hated her soft, lousy, uninteresting life. To go back home, to listen to her stepmother talk prettily of bridge and new silvers for the morning room, seemed unendurable.

The house was dim and shaded when Katharine reached it. Wisteria and ivy swung before the drawing room windows. Striped cherry and white awnings shut out the sun from the long veranda facing the water. The Parker place was some few hundred yards away, separated from the Strykhurst's only by the grounds of a convent. Through the wooden lattice work, Katharine could see a few novices moving gently up and down the paths. An old nun was reading from her daily office book. In the grape arbor, two or three lay sisters worked busily, talking softly together. How happy and busy they all seemed, thought Katharine with envy. Here there was literally nothing to do. In the garden a garbled Italian worked as Mrs. Strykhurst, moving capably from bush to bush, gave orders in her condescending voice. Maids were busy above stairs, shaking out fresh linen for the beds. The cook sang over her pudding sauce in the kitchen.

Katharine clenched her hands. "I've got to do something," she said. "I can't just drift around here. It seems to me that everyone else in the whole world has a place—a meaning."

Her eyes filled to her dismay and anger, with tears.

Ellen, the pleasant Irish parlour-maid, came out upon the veranda at the moment.

"There's a gentleman to see you, Miss. I left him in the library."

Katharine took the card from the little silver tray and read, "John Gilder Kaye."

Instantly she was on her feet, running along the hall to the dark, cool vault that was lined with her father's books.

"Why, Johnny Kaye! Wherever did you drop from?"

The people in France who thought Katharine Strykhurst cool and self-contained would have been amazed at this transformation in her. The man of 30 who rose from the deep leather chair evidently was not surprised at the warmth of her welcome. Her two hands were clasped in his. There was a dunt of voices as Mrs. Strykhurst passed the window and glanced curiously within.

"So John Kaye's back," observed Berline Strykhurst with satisfaction. "Well, perhaps we don't have Katharine nipping any more."

CANTON CHANGES

FURTHER REPORTS OF HU HAN-MIN REACTION

Canton, June 24. Important changes in the South-west Government highest posts are expected, according to political circles. These changes have been prompted by the recent departure for Europe of Mr. Hu Han-min and the desertion of the northern cruisers, making it necessary for wholesale changes in the Navy. Political circles predict that General Yu Han-mow, commander of the First Kwangtung Army, may be appointed to the Provincial Government Chair as successor to Mr. Lin Yun-kai, who has been governor for five years. Mr. Lin Yun-kai may become Chancellor of the Shengchi University. Another prominent military officer for many years commander of the Second Army, General Heung Hon-ping may be Canton's next Mayor in succession to Mr. Liu Chi-wen.

The municipal government departments may also be subjected to important changes. A new Director of Reconstruction may be chosen to succeed Mr. Ho Kai-lai and already Mr. Lu Yau-kong of the Municipal Council has been referred to as the most likely successor.

The commander of the Third Army, General Li Young-king, will become superintendent of the Yintong Military Academy. It is said that a new Chief of Police may be appointed. General Cheung Tai of the Third Kwangtung Army is cited as a probable candidate. Although important, these changes of posts are not expected to have any serious effects on the general political situation in South China, as the military party which has been in control here since 1928, under the leadership of General Chan Chai-long, will remain in power.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Canton Troops

Canton, June 24. According to Military Headquarters the Canton troops recalled from Kweichow and Kwangsi are making rapid progress on their march back to Kwangtung, the Fifth Division arriving at Luchow to-day while the Sixth Division has reached Holsien.

The transfer of the troops is expected to be completed in the next few days. Meanwhile General Chang Chang-shou, Chief of the Staff of the Second Army, and General Wu Chun-yang, commander of the training regiment, have already arrived at Canton to report to General Chan Chai-long.

General Teng Lun-kwung, Commander of the Ninth Army has also arrived from Swatow.—Reuter.

Bocca Tigris Strengthened

Canton, June 24. It is reported that the 6th Division has been recalled from Kweichow and will be stationed on the West River area, while the 6th Division on the North Kwangtung border will be stationed there for defence.

Meanwhile according to the vernacular press the authorities have ordered artillery and machine gun units of the Military Academy all to be sent to the Bocca Tigris to strengthen the garrison.—Reuter.

Political Comedy

London, June 24. "Full effects of this military adventure without tears in North China have yet to be seen," declares the Manchester Guardian. "China and Mongolia have both been thrown back on themselves by the advancing wedge between them."

CHARHAR EASIER

BRIGHTER PROSPECT FOR SETTLEMENT

Tokyo, June 24. Another day of conflicting reports from North China has passed. Some reports are to the effect that a complete agreement has been reached and a written document signed. A report from Peking says, however, that Major-General Kenji Doihara denied such an agreement. But he asserts that conversations are continuing and possibly the two sides may reach an agreement to-morrow.

Dentist reports confusion resulting from the resignation of General Chin Teh-chun, acting Chairman of the Charhar provincial government, which the Nanking Government is expected to refuse. The Nanking Government will instruct General Chin Teh-chun to continue in office.

General Doihara indicated that only a few points remain unsettled. The Foreign Office said that it had not received any official information of an agreement signed on Sunday night. It also intimated that the tension in North China is lessening. In reply to a question regarding the subjects discussed at the meeting the Chinese Ambassador, Mr. Chang Tso-pin and Mr. Koki Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, on Friday, the spokesman of the Foreign Office said that he was unable to report on the conversations, but it is understood that very few Charhar questions remained for discussion.—United Press.

Terms Remain Secret

Shanghai, June 24. It is learned authoritatively that no further meetings between the Charhar delegates and the Japanese military concerning the Changpei incident will be arranged. A conviction is growing, therefore, that the incident will be finally settled, although it is believed that the terms of the settlement will not be published.—Reuter.

Japan Wants Peace

Shanghai, June 24. Chinese and Japanese diplomatic circles are again trying to consolidate friendly relations between the two nations by settling such outstanding issues as the liquidation of the old debts, pilotage, wireless and civil air service problems.

In an interview with Mr. Chiang Tso-pin, Chinese Ambassador to Japan, Mr. Hirota, Japanese Foreign Minister, informed him that the Japanese Government regarded the suppression of anti-Japanese boycott as essential if real Sino-Japanese co-operation was to be carried into effect.

Mr. Hirota also intimated that Japan would assure China of a non-aggressive policy in China, if China could show her sincerity in settling the outstanding issues between the two nations.—Central News Agency.

and Nationalist revivals may be expected. Already a naval comedy is being played between Canton and Nanking. It is proof of the renewed energy in Chinese politics, which may end the unity of Chinese in China south of the Yellow River or return to internal dissension.

"For Japan herself the path is clear, though when the next step will be can only be known when her foot is already firmly planted on the ground."—Reuter.

HUEY'S CHALLENGE

WEALTH REDISTRIBUTION IN UNITED STATES

Washington, June 24. Members of the Administration in Congress have decided to ask President Roosevelt whether the redistribution of wealth scheme will be passed during the present session of Congress.

Members of the Left Wing are in favour of its prompt introduction.

Senator Huey Long has sent a letter to President Roosevelt challenging his new programme.

An immediate operation of the new programme, however, is expected and it is predicted that such immediate enactment would assure President Roosevelt's re-election.

Industrial and Union labour leaders are at present drafting a strong programme of N.R.A. legislation.

Both groups are agreed to find common ground to have their programme placed before Congress for adoption during the present session.—United Press.

Washington, June 24. Senator William E. Borah has indicated that he intends to give his support to President Roosevelt's income tax programme.

At the same time he has expressed the opinion that the programme would not have the effect of re-distributing wealth.

Further he has indicated that he also intends to give his support to higher inheritance taxes and corporation taxes.

Senator Borah's statement came to a confused Congress, awaiting President's return to-morrow before deciding whether to press passage of the scheme at the present session or leave it until the next session.

President Roosevelt's recommendations are not only sound economically but morally, said the Senator and, denying that the programme even approaches that of Huey Long's said: "It is absurd to call it a 'share wealth' programme; it is in fact merely a 'share burden' Government programme."—United Press.

CONSERVATIVE WIN

MEMBER FOR THE SCOTTISH UNIVERSITIES

London, June 24. The Scottish Universities' by-election held to fill the vacancy caused by the former representative, John Buchanan, Baron Tweedsmuir, being appointed to the Governor-Generalship of Canada, resulted in the election of Professor J. Graham Kerr, National Government candidate.

The final figures were: Prof. J. Graham Kerr (Nat. Gov.) 20,507.

Naomi Margaret Mitchison (Labour) 4,293.—Reuter. Professor John Graham Kerr has been Regius Professor of Zoology at Glasgow University since 1902. He had a brilliant scholastic career and spent two years in the Gran Chaco investigating the habits and life history of the South American Lungfish.

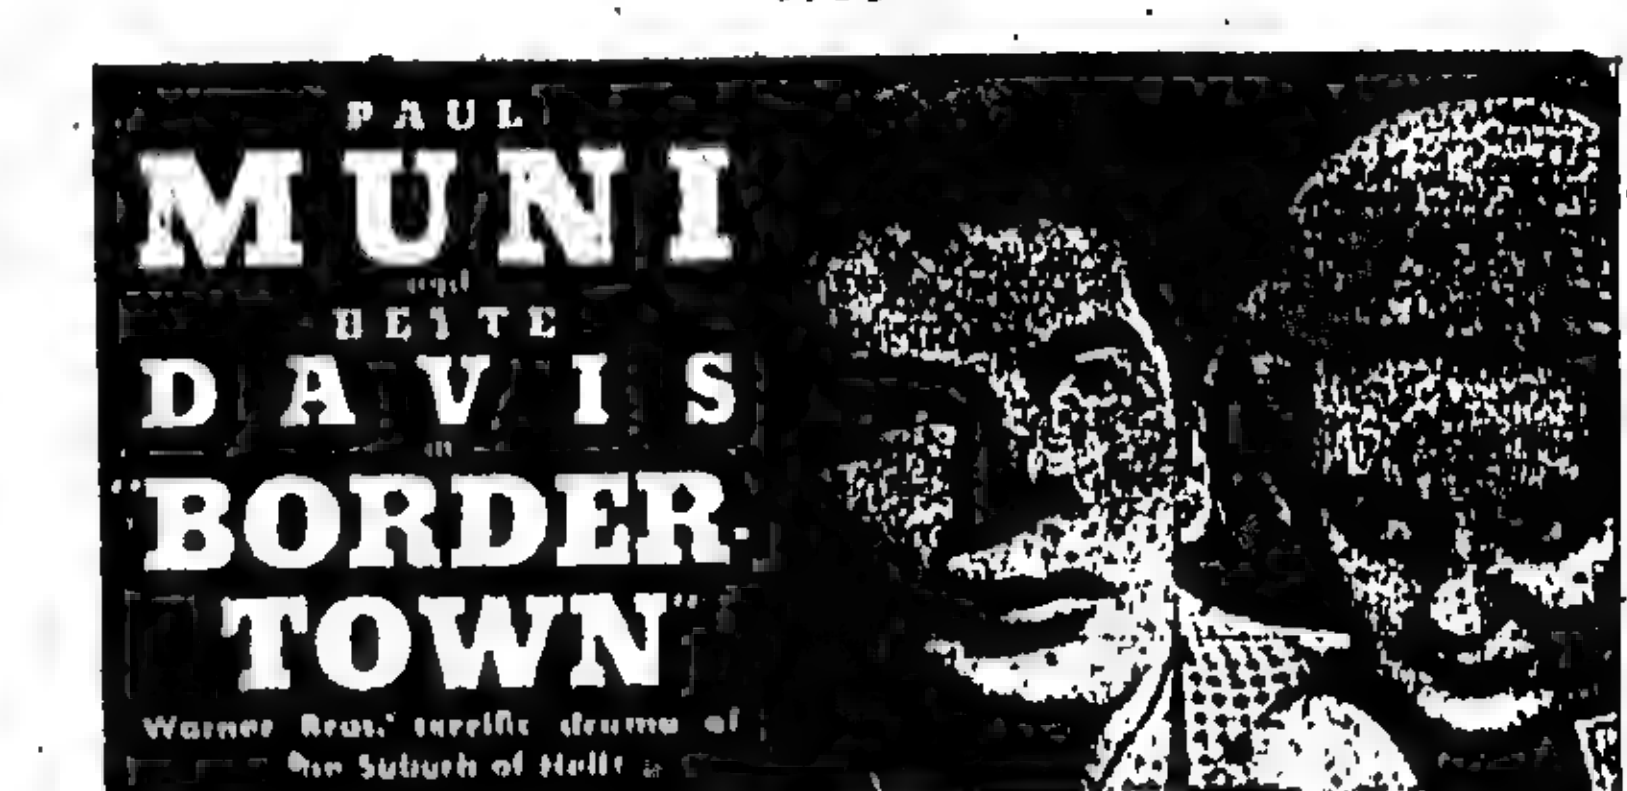

Naomi M. Mitchison was educated at Oxford and has since published a large number of books mainly brilliant novels of classical times. She is also an ardent Socialist and atheist.

The newly elected member will represent the three Universities of Glasgow, Edinburgh and St. Andrews.

Amoy, June 24. The local Kuomintang Headquarters have advised local rice importers to suspend importation of Siamese rice immediately thus setting an example for other ports to follow, as a retaliatory measure against the treatment of Chinese residents in Siam.

A report from Ningpo states that rice merchants there have actually suspended importation of Siamese rice.—Central News Agency.

ITALY CONTINUES AFRICA WAR PREPARATIONS

BRITAIN SEEKS TO INTERVENE EDEN SERVING AS PEACE DELEGATE PERFUNCTORY GREETING FROM MUSSOLINI

Rome, June 24.
Signor Benito Mussolini, Italian Prime Minister, was virtually perfunctory during his conference with Mr. Anthony Eden, Great Britain's Minister for League of Nations Affairs, to-day.
Il Duce showed his preoccupation with the continued preparations for swift and decisive action in East Africa, the campaign against Abyssinia, long-threatening.
In spite of this preoccupation, however, he politely spent two hours with Mr. Eden, presumably discussing the problems in Africa, among others.

An official communique states: "Signor Mussolini and Mr. Eden conversed at Venice Palace to-day, and discussed the Anglo-German naval pact, projects for an aerial accord in Europe and other questions which formed part of the Anglo-French statement from London on February 8."
No official mention of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute is made. However, it is known that Mr. Eden is attempting to intervene and to prevent a clash between the two nations whose dispute over the Italian Somaliland frontier has long caused apprehension.
Advices from London state that the Foreign Office Abyssinian expert, Mr. Geoffrey Thompson,

BOMBAY SILVER MARKET

Reuter despatches from Bombay to-day state that the market continues weak on further liquidation of uneasy holders.
The conversations were described officially as explanatory and terminated shortly after lunch to-day. They will be resumed to-morrow morning.—United Press.
(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1926. Received, June 25, 6.50 a.m.)
It is authoritatively learned from Rome that Italy intends to demand actual sovereignty in Abyssinia, through the use of arms if necessary, using the Anglo-German naval agreement as partial justification. Hence, the conversations of Mr. Eden, with Signor Mussolini are expected to be most interesting.

FREE TO ACT
It is reliably stated that Signor Mussolini contends he is free to act as he pleases in Abyssinia on the following grounds:
First, that Abyssinia, when admitted to the League of Nations, promised to abolish slavery and establish a firm central Government; and neither of these things has been accomplished.
Second, because Great Britain ignored the League in formulating the Anglo-German naval agreement and hence Italy cannot support the League when adverse policies, such as that seen in the Anglo-German accord, are pursued.
Meanwhile, in London, the Government is being attacked for the framing of a naval pact with Berlin. Labour members of the House of Commons heckled the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, hinting that the Anglo-German naval agreement was a violation of the Treaty of Versailles and (Continued on Page 7).

Seventeen Perish In Air Crash PLANES COLLIDE IN HIGH WIND FIRE TAKES AWFUL TOLL

Panama, June 24.
Seventeen persons, including the Argentine tenor and film star, Carlos Gardel, were killed in a plane collision at the Medellin, Colombia, airport to-day.
Gardel was en route to Panama with a troupe, having just completed a South American tour.
Their tri-motor plane was taking off from Medellin when, buffeted by strong headwinds, it turned out of control and crashed into another tri-motor airliner, whose pilot was among the dead.
A director of the air service also perished.
Fire claimed the lives of the majority. It is feared, for it broke out on the instant of impact and could not be controlled.—Reuter.

EARLIER REPORT
Medellin, Colombia, June 24.
Sixteen persons are reported to have been burned to death, including the well-known Argentine actor Carlos Gardel, and the director of the Saco Airlines, Ernesto Samper, when a tri-motor Saco plane, taking off for Cali, crashed into another machine.—British Wireless.

Yacht Fleet Burned MILLION DOLLARS OF DAMAGE

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., June 24.
Seventy yachts, including the Mysle, a palatial pleasure craft of the Cuddey family of meat-packing fame, and the Scimitar II, owned by Car Wood, noted American speed-boat driver and holder of the world's record for such craft, were destroyed by fire to-day.
The fire swept the closely packed Pilington Yacht basin.
Damage is estimated at over $1,000,000.—Reuter.

PLOTTERS TO DIE CATALONIA REVOLT SEQUEL

(Special to "Telegraph")
Oviedo, June 24.
A Court Martial, sitting in camera, has passed sentence of death on four accused in a trial in which seventy-five plotters were charged with revolutionary activities during the abortive October revolt in Asturias, Catalonia.
Thirty-six others were condemned to life imprisonment and seven to twelve years, while eighteen were acquitted.
It is believed that 3,500 were killed during the rebellion.—Reuter Special.

SHAI EXCHANGE MARKET VERY UNEASY AT OPENING

Shanghai, June 25.
The foreign exchange market was very uneasy to-day on account of the drop in London Silver prices.
There are few transactions being made but the majority of traders are simply sparing and not carrying out any actual operation.
The market was steadier at 10.20 a.m.

Gallant Cook Of Usworth POSTHUMOUS AWARD OF HONOUR RESCUES IN ATLANTIC

London, June 24.
The King has made a posthumous award of the Albert Medal, given only in cases of exceptional gallantry and devotion, to Thomas Gibson, late cook of the s.s. Usworth, for life-saving at sea. Pieces of plate and other awards are made also to the masters and various officers and members of the crews of the Belgian s.s. Jean Jadot and the Cunard White Star Line s.s. Ascania, who displayed great bravery and skill in saving men of the s.s. Usworth during a violent gale in mid-Atlantic last December. Two members of the crew of the Jean Jadot were drowned when a lifeboat was capsized, and posthumous awards are also made in their cases.
Gibson gave his life in trying to save a mess-room boy. He was a

JACK DOYLE VICTORIOUS In First Fight In America

New York, June 25.
The Irish heavyweight, Jack Doyle, 21-years-old giant, won his first fight in America last night, knocking out Phil Donato, a little known fighter, in the first round.

strong swimmer and was within a stroke or two of the lifeboat which the Ascania had launched when the boy cried for help and Gibson turned back for him, both being swept away. The Ascania's lifeboat was commanded with great skill and courage by Lieutenant Pollitt, Royal Naval Reserve, junior third officer of the Ascania, in circumstances of extreme peril. It was several times nearly smashed by the Usworth or the Ascania. The gale was so violent that the oars forced from their rowlocks were blown out of the men's hands and all but six were broken, while the lifeboat, at one moment in a trough of steep waves, was at the next level with the Usworth's boat deck.
Nevertheless, the remainder of the crew were taken off and with difficulty got aboard the Ascania. Mr. Pollitt, after what is officially described as a "heroic and remarkable rescue" was the last to leave the badly-damaged lifeboat.—British Wireless.

Fine Scores In British Open Golf RECORDS FALL IN QUALIFYING PLAY SMITH LEADS WITH 66

London, June 24.
The British Open Golf Championship's first qualifying rounds were played at Gullane and Muirfield courses to-day and there were some exceptional scores among the 300 contestants.
Judging by the scores, the players found the harder course at Muirfield, where the championship proper commences Wednesday. R. Burton, the professional of Hooton, broke the record for this newly-constructed meeting place of golf celebrities with a smart score of 70.
Henry Cotton, the present holder, was only one stroke behind, playing a masterly game for 71.
Other notables in the qualifying round ranked as follows:
Jack Maclean, 74;
Picard, U.S.A., 77;
Lawson Little, U.S.A. (British Amateur Champion), 78.

AT GULLANE
At Gullane, Macdonald Smith, U.S.A., shattered the course record with 66, a very remarkable achievement even on the easier course. Snyner, the professional at Birkdale, had a 68.
Scores of other prominent players were:
Percy Allis, winner of the Scottish Open Championship last week, tied with A. J. Lacey, with 70;
Brews, South Africa, Padgham, Busson, Rex Hartley, Davies and R. A. Whitecombe all tied with 71.—Reuter.

Moratorium In Germany GREAT BRITAIN NOT AFFECTED

Berlin, June 24.
Owing to the fact that "the German foreign exchange situation, far from improving, has got still worse," Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Acting Minister of Economy, has declared a complete moratorium for a year, from July 1, on all maturities arising from the medium and long-term obligations to the United States and other nations with whom no clearing quotation has been made.
Instead of cash transfer, creditors will receive "funding debt bonds" which will run to January 1, 1946 and bear three per cent. interest and amortisation at three per cent.
Great Britain, and other creditor nations with which a clearing agreement has been arranged, are not affected.—Reuter.

BELGRADE DEMOCRACY "AN APPEASEMENT GOVERNMENT"

(Special to "Telegraph")
Belgrade, June 24.
Hailed as an "Appeasement Government," a new Cabinet has been formed by Dr. Milan Stojadinovic, former Finance Minister, who is also assuming the office of Foreign Minister.
Most of the party groups are represented in the new Cabinet, except M. Matchek's Croatian bloc.
The new Government is taking office with the mission of wiping out all the former regime's dictatorial legislation, thus paving the way to an election in a few months to inaugurate a new democratic regime.—Reuter Special.

AMERICA BUYS AS SILVER FALLS HEAVY INDIA SALES WELL ABSORBED H.K. BANKS OPERATE TO SUPPORT RATES

Messages through Reuter from London explain to some extent the condition of the silver market at yesterday's close and the movements which led to the sharp decline of prices.
It is explained that India sold heavily during the day, but America, China and speculators bought at the fall. The market was steady.
After the official fixing, Reuter continues, there was further heavy India selling which was absorbed by good American buying and, finally, the market remained steady at the fixed rates, 31 1/2, as compared with 32.5/16 the day previous.

WATCHING WARSHIPS MOVE OUT NOW ANCHORED NEAR WAGLAN NO REASON GIVEN

There were rumours current this morning that two of the Northern Chinese cruisers, the Hai Yung and the Hai Chen, which have been anchored for some days in Junk Bay apparently watching the Canton run-away ships, had left British waters.
On enquiry, we learn that the two warships have merely changed their anchorage. They moved late yesterday afternoon to a point N.W. of Waglan, where they anchored, but are still in British waters.
No reason can be ascertained for the change of anchorage.

REBELS' DEMANDS Shanghai, June 25. It is authoritatively learned here that the negotiations for the surrender of the two rebel warships in Hongkong have reached a deadlock in consequence of the delegates of the rebel warships having submitted fresh demands, including one for a pay bonus.

HASTENS TAX REFORMS ROOSEVELT ASKS FOR ACTION

Washington, June 24.
President Roosevelt to-day informed Congress leaders that he desires to have his "wealth sharing" taxation programme enacted this session, which will therefore probably be prolonged through the summer.
After an hour-and-a-half conversation with the President, Senator Robinson stated:
"It has been decided to press for action on the recommendation of the President as to the amendments in tax laws at the present session." Senator Harrison of the Finance Committee will ask that body to consider these proposals with a view to adding them to the pending resolution extending emergency taxes.—Reuter.

New York silver was down from 72 to 70 1/2.
Bombay's market was uncertain and prices declined for ready silver from 76 rupees six annas to 75 rupees four annas. August silver was down from 76 rupees 13 annas to 76 rupees one anna.
Unofficial prices, after closing hours in Bombay, were 74 rupees for ready metal and 75 for August. The market appeared uncertain.

HONGKONG DOLLAR
The Hongkong dollar declined a halfpenny this morning to 2s. 3d. on London silver's fall of 13/10d., but the business rate on opening was 2s. 3 1/2d. sellers and 2s. 3 3/4d. buyers. The market was steady.
Later, the market weakened and the official rate declined to 2s. 2 1/4d.
Chinese speculators are believed to be oversold in sterling in Hongkong and their reaction to the London decline is now awaited with interest. The Bombay silver market is very nervous, and the big banks locally are believed to be keeping rates up.
Indian speculators dominate the market at present and much will depend upon whether or not they sell to-day, according to a banking authority here.

GIRL STUDENT IMPRISONED WOUNDED CHINESE YOUTH

Talequah, Okla., June 24.
Miss Lois Thompson, Teachers' College student, was found guilty of shooting with intent to do grievous harm to a fellow-student, Daniel Shaw, a Chinese from Hongkong.
She was sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment and commenced to serve her term at once.
The victim of the shooting is recovering. Miss Thompson said she thought he had written her threatening letters, but it transpired that her own sister wrote the notes which demanded money, with threats.—United Press.

ATTACKS ON MORALS OF NATION

FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND ACTS

DEFENSIVE CRITICISM

The drink traffic, betting, gambling, modern films, and the question of mixed marriages are discussed in the committee reports which were submitted at the General Assembly of the United Free Church of Scotland, which opened on Tuesday, June 4, in St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow.

The Committee on Temperance and Public Morals reports on the question of brewers' advertisements in the Press, and criticises the attitude of newspapers towards such advertisements.

The Committee asserts that "the Press must be brought to realise—by compulsion, if necessary—that it has no right to abet the drink traffic by circulating 'palpably unscientific falsehoods' in the face of piles of real evidence against the beverage use of alcohol, in spite of Royal Commission findings, and in defiance of recurring police and judicial statistics, all of which consistently testify to drink's ruinous effects on national wellbeing."

With regard to the spirit duty, the Committee expresses its disapproval of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's admission "that he thought the duty too high, and that the financial consideration was the only thing that weighed with him." They take it to mean that when he considers it convenient he will not scruple to jettison the palpable benefits that have inconvertibly resulted to the nation from a high duty on potable alcohol.

"DRINKING MOTORIST"

The Committee contends that official action with regard to "the drinking motorist" has been lamentably slow. While the Committee welcomes measures like limiting speed in certain areas, use of signal lights, and driving tests, these in themselves, it states, would fail to produce the substantial results required unless more drastic steps were taken to save the public being victimised by the drinking motorist.

The law relating to registered clubs is described as notoriously inadequate, and it is stated that too many clubs are virtually "unlicensed and unsupervised public-houses."

Discussing betting and gambling, the Committee's report states that it is hardly realised to what an extent the "betting disease, the dog disease," has become an epidemic. National gambling is believed to account for a turnover of not less than between £250,000,000 and £300,000,000 a year in Great Britain, of which something like £200,000,000 remains with the bookmaker and those engaged in the trade.

In the proposed deliverance the General Assembly is asked strongly to condemn the exemption of private lotteries, and small lotteries from the restrictive and prohibitive clauses of the Betting and Lotteries Act, and to call for passing of a more comprehensive and thoroughgoing measure to cope with "this gigantic and far-reaching national vice."

FILM CENSORSHIP

These words preface the Committee's comments regarding films. "Reactional film-making," the report continues, "has become moral filthdom. The position may be gauged by the necessity for over eleven educational and religious bodies forming a deputation last

Heat thoroughly, and serve in patty shells, after sprinkling with chopped parsley.

January to the Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Scotland, and the Home Secretary to urge immediate inquiry into film censorship, and to plead for decent films in the interests of public morality."

A paragraph in the report of the Committee on Christian Citizenship, headed "Romanism and Ritualism," states that "the past year has witnessed a further development among Presbyterians in Scotland of what are called 'Holy Week' and 'Lenten Sermons.' The tendency is in the direction of what may be called the Anglican movement in the Established Church of Scotland, and it seems desirable to utter a word of caution to our people as to the danger of sacramentalism and priestcraft by any departure from the simplicity and naturalness and real spirituality of New Testament religion."

Referring to the provisions of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1918 which gives special privileges to those desiring control of religious teaching in the State schools, the Committee recalls that these privileges were claimed as promising a peaceful settlement of a difficult educational problem. It had, however, proved no settlement. Out of it had arisen a prominence to the cleavage between Roman Catholicism and Protestantism, resulting in sectarian strife.

MIXED MARRIAGES

Mixed marriages are discussed with particular reference to the Ne Temere decree of the Roman Catholic Church. Note is taken of the Papal pronouncement that the marriage of Catholic with non-Catholic, except according to Roman Catholic sanction, is not valid. It is stated that in Scotland marriage is a purely civil contract, and its validity and the legitimacy of children are guaranteed by statute law. "No priest or other person," the report states, "has any right to

TRAGEDY ON SAHARA

MAN AND WOMAN DIE OF THIRST

HORRIBLE END

Paris, June 2.
An Englishwoman and an Englishman, Mrs. Knight and Mr. Peyton, have been found dead from thirst and exposure about five miles out of Ingesam in the south-western Sahara.

Their two French companions, Hubert and Chavain, French traders established at Kano, in Nigeria, with whom they set out on May 22 from Agadez, in the French Sudan, to motor to Taman Rasset, 500 miles to the north in the Hoggar, were found lying deliciously and wasted under their car about 35 miles from Ingesam.

The four travellers had apparently presumed, from the frequency with which cars now cross the Sahara, that the expedition could be undertaken without a guide and, it would seem, with insufficient provisions.

On leaving Ingesam, which is 300 miles from their goal, they followed an old trail no longer in use. Discovering their error they tried to cut across the desert to pick up the regular route.

They found, however, that their petrol had evaporated. Their provisions seem to have been sufficient only for one or two days at the most.

PUSHED ON

The Frenchmen proposed to wait under the car until a search party was sent from Taman Rasset or Ingesam, but Mrs. Knight, a vigorous woman of 28, and Mr. Peyton proposed to make their way back by night to Ingesam on foot. After the travellers had been missing for two days the chief mechanic of Taman Rasset, M. Coquet, and M. Jean Estienne set out to look for the car. It took them three days to find it.

The two Frenchmen were lying emaciated in a pit that they had dug under the car for better shelter. They told the rescuers that the two English people had started to walk back to their starting point. The rescuers then set out down the track to look for Mrs. Knight and her companion.

LETTER TO FRIEND

Mrs. Knight had evidently suffered terribly. Her hair and clothes were torn, and the sand round her body was very disturbed. She seems to have opened the veins of her arms and legs in the hope of dying more quickly. She had a pencilled letter to a friend in her hand.

Mr. Peyton, who is said to have been a half-caste resident in Swilzerland, was found lying at some distance quite peacefully. They had apparently walked for a day and a night. The rescuers buried the two bodies, but the authorities have ordered their exhumation and a very strict inquiry.

A rigorous regulation lays it down that no travellers may set out to cross this section of the desert with less than eight days provision of water and food, in case of accident.

call these things in question. But humble people, who may be truly religious, are deeply distressed and often cruelly treated by attempts to enforce against them the Decree Ne Temere."

"In New Zealand and New South Wales, where this evil was prevalent, in 1920 and 1925 respectively, Acts were passed making it an offence to declare any marriage lawfully made to be not 'true, sufficient and valid, or that the children are illegitimate."

"There is a movement to have similar legislation applicable to Scotland, and we recommend all our people to support any Parliamentary bill for that purpose. We desire also to warn our people as to the grave troubles that may be involved by entering into such a mixed marriage."

GLIMPSE OF QUEEN OF THE FUTURE LOVELY BRIDE OF PRINCE FREDERICK OF DENMARK

BY CONSTANCE DREXEL

Her Highness, Princess Ingrid, who recently married Frederick, Crown Prince of Denmark, is more a queen than the fairy story type of princess.

I got an interesting close-up of the young woman when assigned to interview marriageable princesses. I naturally put Ingrid on my list, but when I got to Stockholm, the Princess' father, Crown Prince Gustav Adolf, said she was too young to be interviewed, and besides, he did not like publicity. However, I was invited to attend the marriage of Princess Ingrid's cousin, Princess Astrid (now Queen of the Belgians), to the Crown Prince Leopold.

On that occasion, the star, next to the tall, radiantly happy bride, was the Princess Ingrid. She was Sweden's premier unmarried princess, therefore important, since Scandinavian princesses are much sought after for royal marriages in Europe. There have been few of them in this generation because the royal families of Denmark, Norway and Sweden have produced chiefly sons.

The fact that the daughter of Sweden's next king had as her partner in all the wedding festivities the tall, handsome, blonde Crown Prince Olaf of Norway, gave rise to many significant glances. But fate decreed that nothing was to come of that, for not many months later, the announcement of Olaf's engagement to Princess Martha, sister of Princess Astrid, was made.

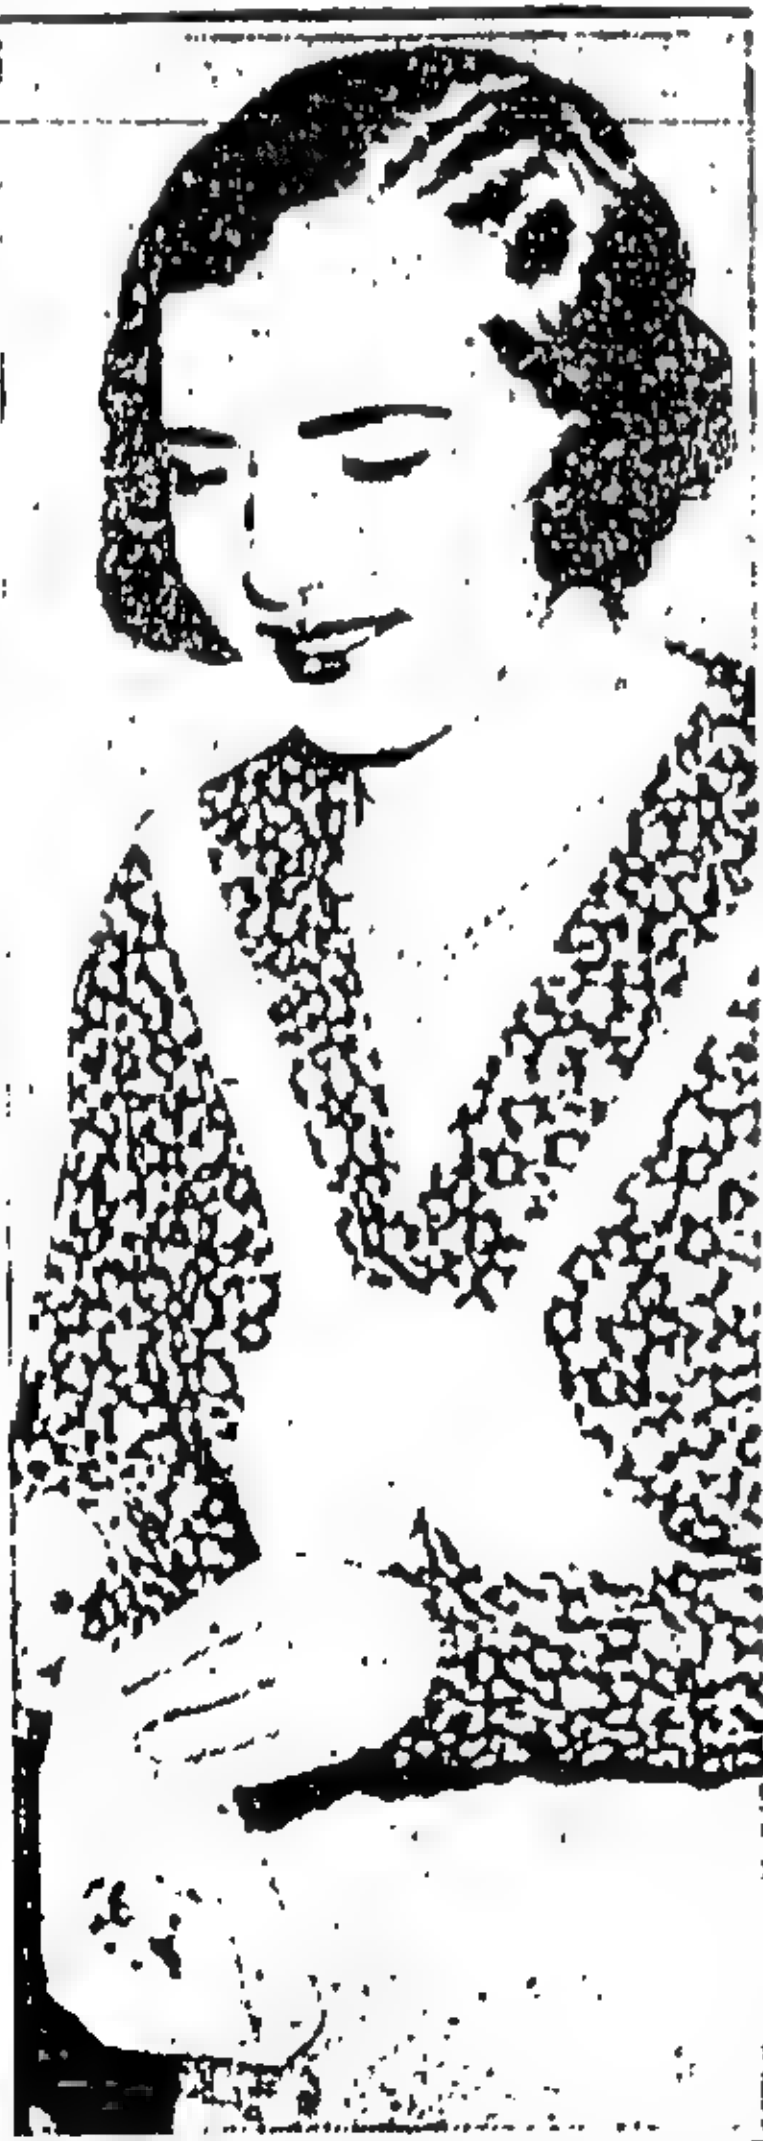

DRESSES METICULOUSLY

In appearance, Princess Ingrid is not what is thought of as the Scandinavian type at all. Perhaps this is because, along about 1810, the reigning dynasty having run low, one of Napoleon's generals, Marshal Bernadotte, Prince of Ponte Corvo, was elected to the throne by act of the Swedish Parliament. She is above medium height, her hair is brown and her skin is olive. She has large hazel eyes and a rounded figure.

She takes great care always to present an exquisite picture, chic and well-groomed. I have seen her, looking on at tennis matches at Wimbledon, at the theatre and at cinemas. She is always perfectly dressed, perfectly coiffed and rather dignified, even distant.

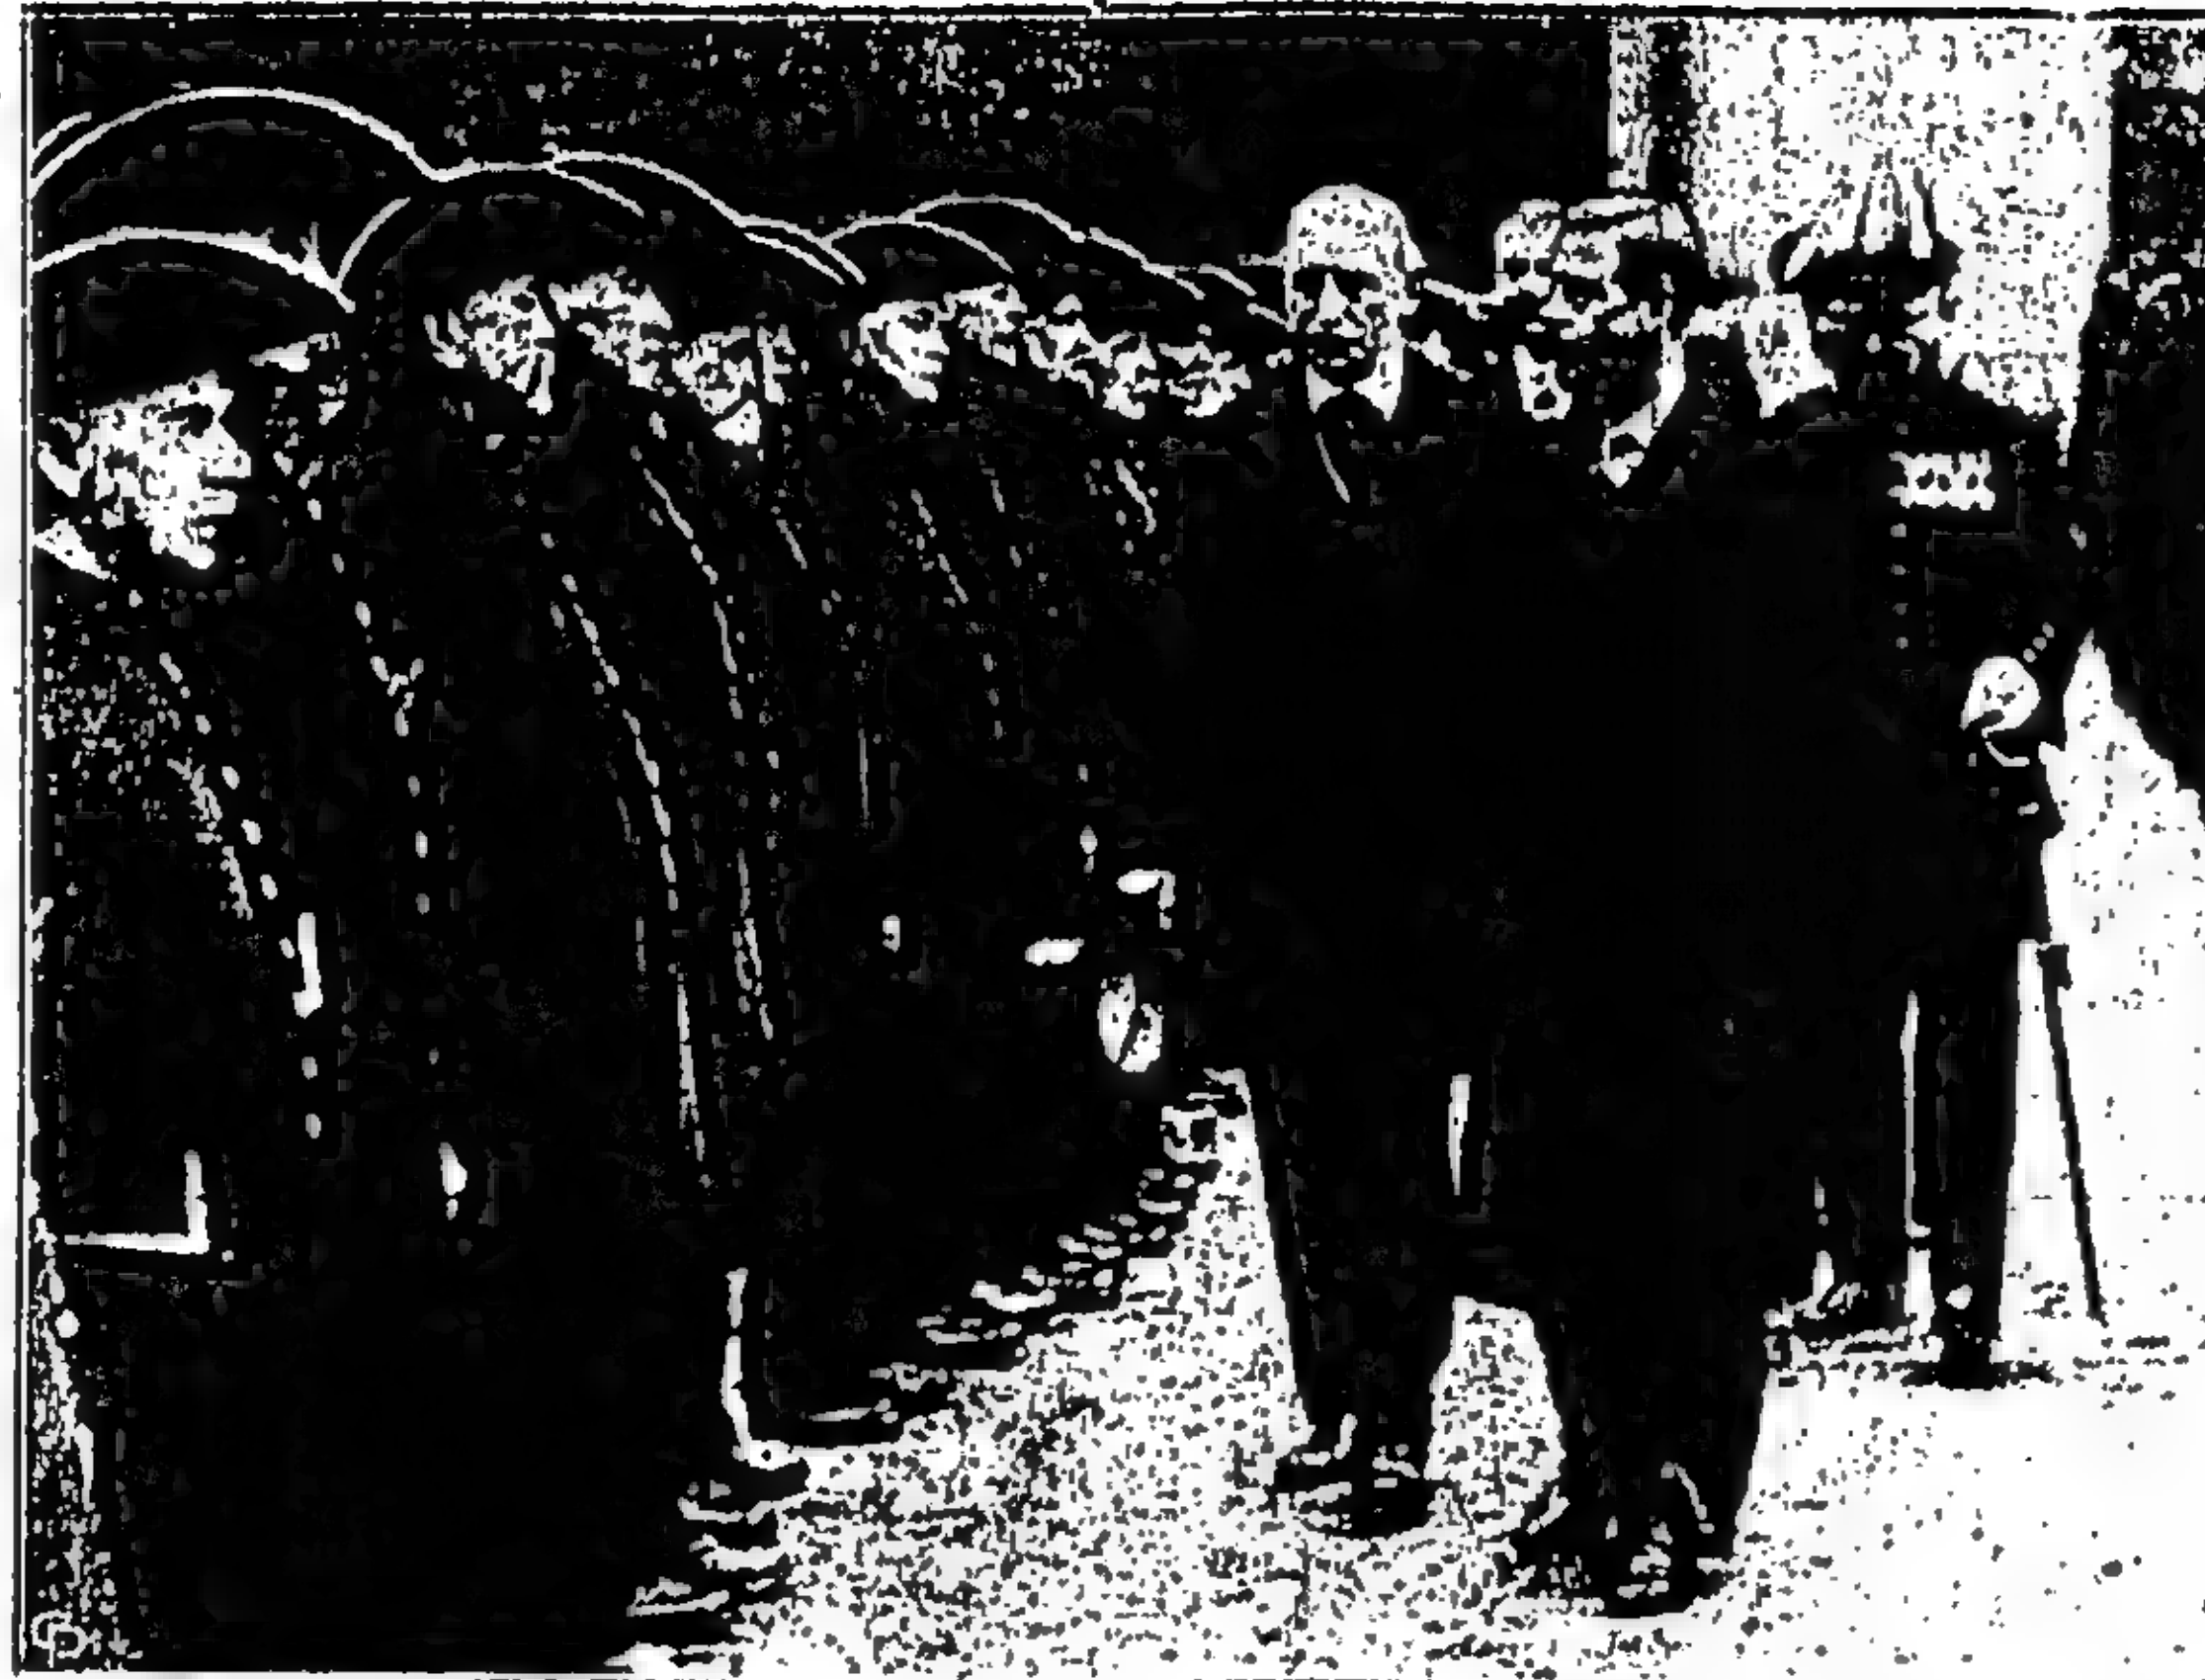

Not for her are boydenish ways and over-dramatic demonstrations. She is the queenly type. One evening, I remember, she wore severe white satin, diamond earrings and bracelets, an ermine cape and orchids, that suited her beautifully. She looks particularly well in the evening anyway, because of a well-shaped head which she dresses with taste to bring out the exquisite lines.

In Stockholm, this Princess is felt to be more English than Swedish. Swedish girls of all walks of life go to school, and along with cultural studies, must learn to cook, keep house, take care of babies, and run farms and country estates. Princess Ingrid's mother died when she was ten and the girl has spent a large part of every year with her grandfather, the Duke of Connaught, either in England or on the Riviera. She has been brought up almost entirely by a high-born English lady who has been her governess, companion and chaperon.

The Princess' older brother is in line for the throne and married to the German Princess Sybille of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. Her second brother renounced his title and his rights to have a career in writing and designing for the cinema and to marry a German girl with talents similar to his, whom he had met in Berlin. Her two younger brothers are unmarried. Many believed that Ingrid was being groomed for marriage into the English royal family. Though the Prince of Wales never had bestowed anything but discreetly cousinly attentions upon her, gossip frequently linked his name to hers. Of course, from the racial, political and religious points of view, she was about the only foreign princess left whom he

Chelsea pensioners formed a guard of honour when the Prince of Wales visited the Royal hospital, Chelsea, to preside at the 50th annual meeting of the National association for the employment of regular sailors, soldiers and airmen. Here is the prince reviewing the ranks of the men as they welcomed him.

"Let 'em roar!" That was the defiance of the inventor, as he sat in the cockpit of an aeroplane as it was set afire. He was testing a special asbestos suit for the Royal Aeronautical Society, London.

ANGLICAN CHURCH

SPLENDID BUILDING FOR KOWLOON TONG

Plans are in the course of preparation for a new Kowloon Tong Anglican Church to be erected on a site which has been levelled opposite the Kowloon Tong Garden City Club in Waterloo Road.

The new church, which is to cost $50,000, will have a long nave and an artistic tower in front. There will be seating accommodation for a congregation of 300.

The architects are Messrs. Leigh and Orange.

Site levelling has been almost completed. This is to be followed by the erection of a retaining wall, and construction of the building will be commenced in October. The work is expected to be completed by October, 1936.

When the old St. Peter's Church in West Point (which is now used each winter as a street sleepers' shelter) was vacated, Government offered several new sites and the Church authorities finally decided on the one in Waterloo Road. Government then wrote informing them that the $50,000 promised would be paid in instalments as the erection of the church proceeded.

It was the Church authorities' intention at first to erect half the building at a cost of $25,000, and a vicarage, but it was eventually decided to erect the church building in whole.

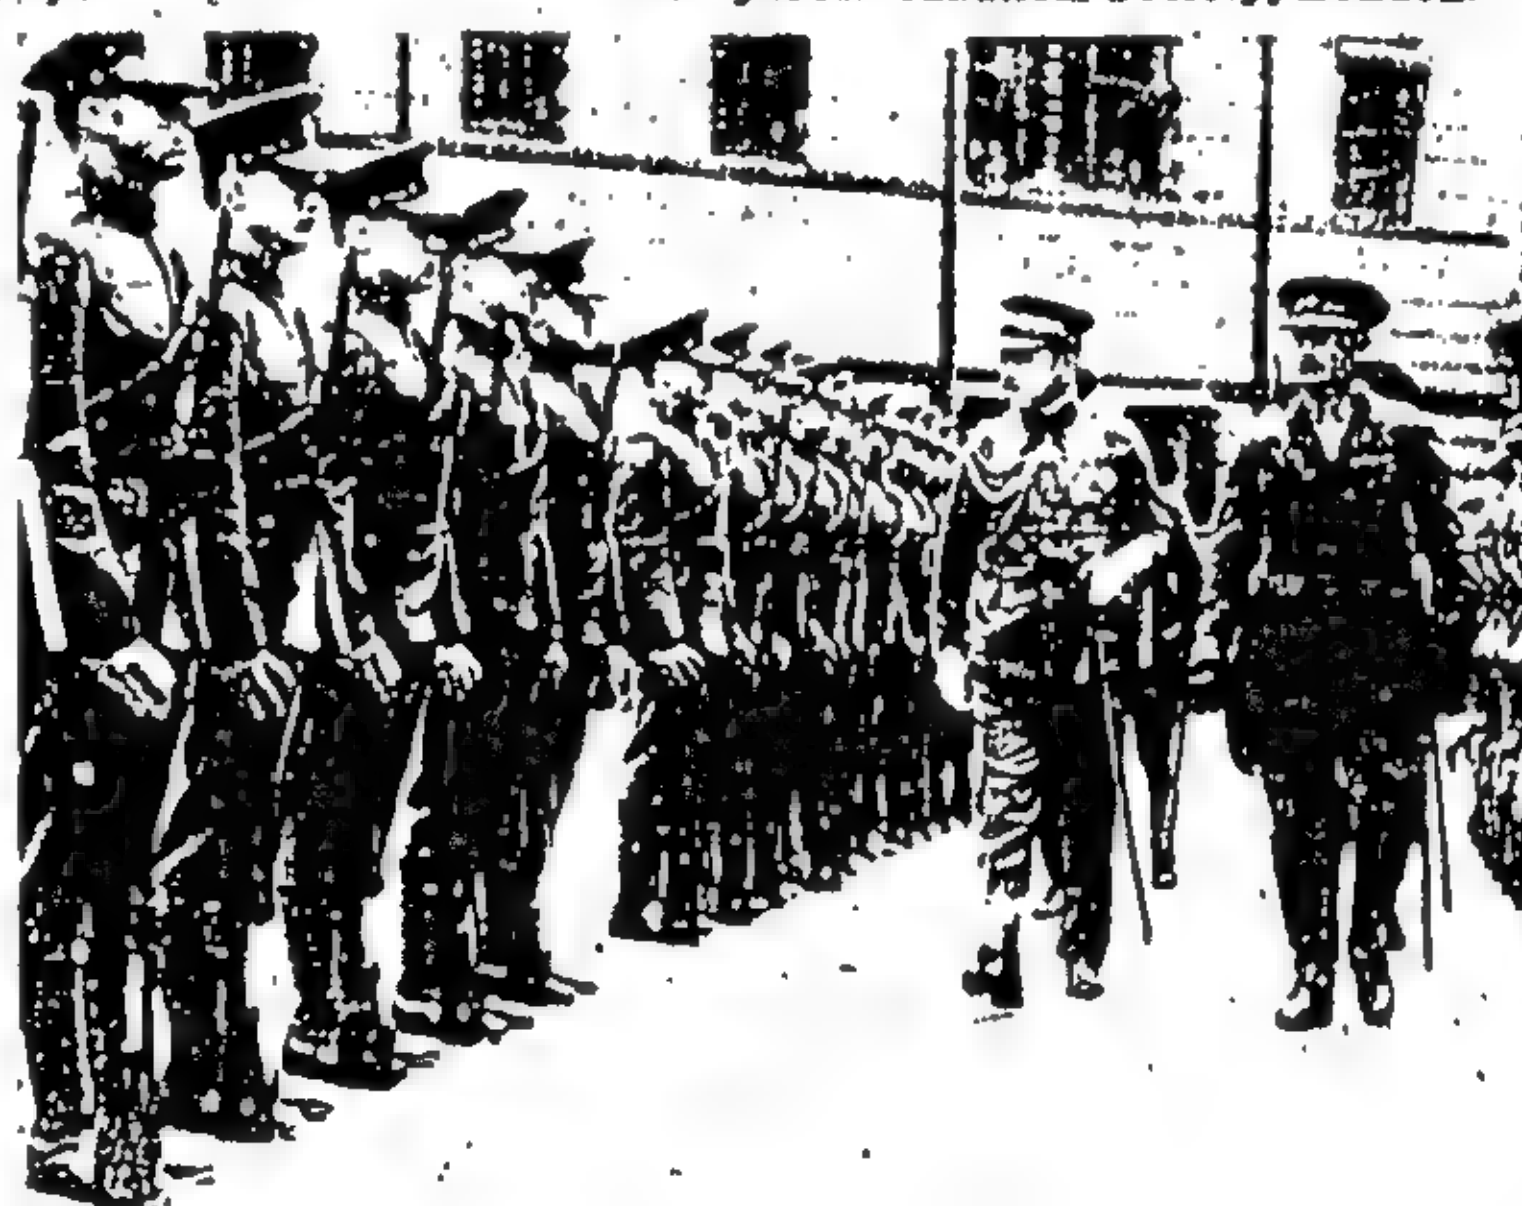

For the levelling of the site and erection of the retaining wall $7,000 is being spent.

The new building will combine modern and ancient architectural features, the exterior being carried out in concrete and the interior in effective colour crete.

When completed the building should be a striking monument to the growth of Kowloon Tong district, which now has a large Anglican community.

could have married. Moreover, everyone remembers the popularity in England of the Scandinavian Princess who, as consort to Edward VII, became Queen Alexandra of England.

Then Ingrid, having quite often been seen with the Duke of Kent during visit to England, was linked to him in rumours. Destiny, however, had marked the stately lass for a throne, and she will grace it.

Major-General R. Isogaya, Military Attaché to the Japanese Legation in China, paid an official call upon the Shanghai Municipal Council for the purpose of announcing his assumption of office recently. He was greeted at the entrance to the Administration Building by a guard of honour mounted by the Russian Regiment, S.V.C., which he is seen inspecting in the above photograph.

KWANGTUNG FLOOD SAMSHUI ENDANGERED BY DESTRUCTION OF DYKES

Canton, June 24.

Owing to the sudden rise of the West River most of the low-lying districts in the Samshui are reported under water. The Yungtsai and Tailong Dykes, two important dykes in Samshui, are in a very dangerous position.

Mr. Liao Hock-chau, Magistrate of Samshui has sent out orders to all villagers near the two dykes to prepare for emergency. In an urgent telegram to the local Association of the Samshui Natives, The Magistrate requested them to purchase 50,000 sacks and ship them to Samshui for reinforcing the dykes in case of emergency.

Mr. Liao Hock-chau has arrived here. He is to report to the Canton Government the seriousness of the flood. It is also understood that Mr. Lim Yun-kai, the Chairman of the Provincial Government has instructed the Canton Board of Conservancy to send an emergency party for Samshui immediately to investigate the situation.

Further reports received by the Canton-Samshui Railway indicate that several sections of the river dyke at Kamechuk (near Ho Hau) have been swept away by the flood and that the river is still rising. Train services can reach as far as Chau Mah Ying, while downward trains also started from there in view of the threatening situation in upper river.

An engineering party of the Board of River Conservancy, with Mr. Fan Tsang-hon and others left here for Samshui yesterday.

A later report says that the dyke at Yingchau has been swept away by the flood yesterday morning. Great perturbation has been caused among the residents. Numerous sand bags are being used to reinforce dangerous portions of the dyke. The Board of River Conservancy has been requested to send officers to Shingling to inspect the situation.—Wah Kin Yat Po.

Rivers Recede

Canton, June 24.

Reassuring reports have been received to-night from the various districts affected regarding the floods caused by the recent excessive rains.

The East, West and North Rivers are all receding, saving thousands of villages, for a further rise would devastate a considerable area.

Already 100 villages have been ruined and many crops have been destroyed.

Normal traffic on the Canton-Samshui section, and on the Canton-Hankow Railway have been resumed.—Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, June 24. The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: "The market was irregular, with a tendency to be nervous, believing that a technical reaction is overdue. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were also irregular. Bonds were upward, featured by secondary railroad and corporation issues. S. C. F. New York office cables: The market is marking time, with Traders adopting a cautious attitude. Sears Roebuck's sales were up 29 per cent. for the month ended June 18. Steel mill activity is estimated at 97.7 per cent. of capacity compared with 88.3 per cent. the previous week. The General Motors Company reports automobile production at 38,000 units, whilst the Chrysler Motor Corporation's production totals 16,850 units.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz: Cotton: There is little cotton available outside Government control, but demand was weak. The market was without any special feature. Wheat: There was some demand under the 80-cent level. The market is governed by weather conditions. The visible supply of wheat shows a decrease of 948,000 bushels. Corn: The visible supply of Corn has decreased by 277,000 bushels. There was some covering on delayed planting. Offerings were on the light side. Rubber: The evening up of July options was the chief activity. The tendency is steady. Sugar: The market has ruled dull, but steady. Some nervousness was noticeable, due to the influx of sugar regarding the processing tax on hogs.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Practically all border towns are lawless according to the author of "Bordertown," the Warner Bros. production, which is now showing at the Alhambra with Paul Muni in the stellar role. He speaks of this as "the taint which seems to develop on boundaries." "Bordertown" is the story of a young man who grows up to be a power in his particular part of the underworld. The role of Johnny Ramirez seems particularly suited to Paul Muni, suggesting a great similarity to his part in "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang." In "Bordertown," however, Muni is called upon for a greater dramatic range, since this story has greater scope. It takes him from the cantaloupe fields of Imperial Valley to the vice haunts of "Bordertown" and thence to the drawing rooms of his American society friends. Muni is supported by Betty Davis, Margaret Lindsay, Eugene Pallette, Robert Barrat, Henry O'Neill, Robert Cavanaugh and Gavin Gordon. Archie L. Mayo directed the picture from the screen play by Lind Doyle and Wallace Smith. The story is by Robert Lord.

"Reckless"

"Reckless" the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production starring Jean Harlow and William Powell, which terminates its successful engagement today at the Queen's Theatre is the story of a song. The song is "Reckless" which began as a song and one dot grew and grew until it has become one of the most spectacular musical numbers introduced through the medium of motion pictures. Jerome Kern, dean of American composers, who has created the scores of "Show Boat" and numerous other famous operettas, wrote it and gave it the title of the picture. To sing the song, Miss Harlow took vocal lessons for eight weeks. To dance to its barbaric rhythm she studied dancing for nine weeks. For it, an entire metropolitan theatre was built to introduce the opening bars of the song. It was the story of the great theatre was constructed one of the most unusual motion picture "sets" in film history—a modernistic girls' dormitory.

"Imitation of Life"

Seldom, if ever, has there been such a combination of elements which mean good entertainment as there are in "Imitation of Life" coming to the King's Theatre on Thursday. Fannie Hurst's great novel will interest millions of women. "Back Street" proved that Fannie Hurst understands thoroughly what women like to see in a moving picture. John Stahl in that picture proved that he knew how to transpose to the screen every last ounce of interest which lay in a Fannie Hurst story. There is no director in the world who has this faculty in the same degree that John Stahl possesses it. And he directed "Imitation of Life," also. Then there is an ideal heroine for Fannie Hurst's story. The cast supporting them is of real star proportions. A new baby star, this time a three-year-old, named Baby Jane, plays the little daughter and for her work was given a starring contract by Universal. Baby Jane's mother is the baby grown up, with Alana Hale, Ned Sparks, Henry Armetta, Louise Beavers, Henry Kolker, Alma Tell, G. P. Huntly, Jr., Wyndham Standing and Paul Porcasi.

"Adventure Girl"

Joan Lowrey—"Adventure Girl", is the thrilling screen record of a trip to the wilds of Central America by the author of "The Cradle of the Deep." In the screen story her ship has no more than set sail before the incredible adventures begin, and they continue in unbroken succession to the final fadeout. Sea storms that carry away the masts and wreck the water tank, hand-to-hand fights with sharks and octopi, amazing encounters with lion constrictors and snakes of other kinds, searches for hidden treasure and an emerald "so big and green that men die looking at its beauty," fights, battles, the explorers and natives, a last-minute rescue of Joan as she is about to be burned at the stake, her fight from enraged savages who pursue her in their war canoes, a wall of fire on the water and an underwater swim by the fugitives to escape it—these and many other adventures go to make up the photoplay, which was produced and sponsored by the Van Beuren Corporation.

"Double Door"

When Sophocles wrote "Oedipus Rex" he little realized that it, and others of his great tragedies, would serve as a training school for the modern screen's greatest villainess, Mary Morris. Yet Miss Morris, now appearing as the insanely dominant spinster in Paramount's film version of "Double Door," coming to-day to the Star Theatre, declares that she owes her ability to put over menacing roles to her early training in Greek drama. Those who have seen her on the screen predict an equally brilliant career for Miss Morris in that medium, due to the fact that the slight gestures and tonal inflections which she uses record so perfectly on celluloid. "Double Door," as a play, was one of the outstanding successes of the current Broadway season. It is a vivid and gripping drama of the fantastic happenings behind the sedate portals of one of New York's most respectable Fifth Avenue mansions. In it, Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, Sir Guy Standing and Anne Revere are featured with Miss Morris. Charles Vidor directed.

"The Witching Hour"

A famous play by a famous American playwright is having its initial screenings to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. "The Witching Hour" is the play and August Thomas is the playwright. With a theme of intense interest to modern psychologists, the story of "The Witching Hour" is both

ROUND THE WORLD FOR $901

GOOD NEWS FOR TRAVELLERS TO EUROPE

Substantial reductions in certain of their fares which affect Hongkong residents have been announced by the N. Y. K. line. The reductions will take effect from August 3, the date of the departure of the Hikusan Maru for Europe.

The two main lines affected are those between Hongkong and London and round-the-world.

In the case of the Yasukuni Maru and the Terukuni Maru the present rates between the Colony and London remain unaltered (£91 1st. and £63 2nd.).

On the "H" class steamers, the Hakusan, Hakone, Haruna and Hikoaki Maru, the reduction on first class passages will be £5, and on 2nd, £10.

On the "K" class steamers, the Fushimi, Suwa, Katori, and Kashima Maru, the reduction will be £10 on both first and second class passages. Fares on these boats will be reduced proportionately between Hongkong and Gibraltar, Marseilles, Naples, and Port Said.

In the case of "round-the-world" fares the reduction will be slightly more than £13. This trip constitutes 1st. class from the Colony to San Francisco on the Asama Maru or one of her sister ships, 1st. class rail across America or Canada, 1st. class from New York to England by the Berengaria, and 1st. class from London to Hongkong by one of the Katori Maru type of vessel. The present rate is £176.1.5, and the new rate is £162.18.7.

Doing is similar trip 2nd. class to America, and tourist class across the Atlantic and 2nd. from London to Hongkong will now cost £102.18.7, instead of £115.14.1, as previously.

There are two further alternative methods of travelling round the world, both following the same route as the previous trips, but using different ships. These fares will now be £108.7.8 and £90.1.3, previously having been £120.10.11 and £103.7.11. The result of these reductions means that travellers may go round the world first class, visit England and America and all the cities on the Suez route for as little as £163 odd, while doing the same trip 2nd. class the fares are now only £90.

and peculiarly poignant, at the same time, something of the sentimental, nostalgic quality of "Smilin' Thru" is found in the romance of Judge Prentice which survives through many years of frustration to come to the aid of two young lovers badly in need of help. In fact, the theme of the story might be "Love comes back again when you need it most." The young lovers are played by Tom Brown and Anita Louise. Both are rising young luminaries in the cinema sky. In the story, Brown as Clay Thorne has a phobia or complex on cut-throats, which are terrifying jewels and not the eyes of a feline. Superstition has long attached itself with these strange jewels and the superstition works on Thorne to the extent of forcing him into a fantastic crime. He commits a murder, but when he did it, or why or where, he has not the remotest idea. It is in the defence of Thorne that Judge Prentice and his romance of long ago play such an important part. If the crime can be called fantastic, the defence is even more so. And, while "The Witching Hour" is a "courtroom picture," it has one scene in the chambers of justice that has seldom been exceeded for dramatic suspense and intensity.

"Wagon Wheels"

Searching for ideal location scenes to be used in the Paramount picture of Zane Grey's "Wagon Wheels," which comes to the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow, studio production executives came across a section of land in northern California, that is rich in early western legend and history. It was the huge ranch of Al Garza, thirty miles from Sonora, California, where for more than two weeks 85 members of the troupe, including Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick, Billy Lee, Monte Blue, and Raymond Hatton, lived as early 1844 pioneers. Other scenes were photographed in rivers, lakes, mountains and in the red-wood country near Sonora. Adapted from the novel, "Fighting Caravans," by Zane Grey, "Wagon Wheels" depicts the actual historic trip of the first wagon train to Oregon in 1844. The film shows in dramatic style the hardships, adventures and perils.

"Clive of India"

The overworked superlatives seem futile indeed when one comes to estimating the merits of "Clive of India," Darryl F. Zanuck's first million-dollar production for 20th Century Pictures, which brings the personable and popular Ronald Colman to the King's Theatre. But, until a better term is coined we must content to tag it "great," "magnificent" and "stirring" entertainment. It is a new Colman, a star of unsuspected power, whom you will see in this Joseph M. Schenck presentation, based on the London stage hit of the same name written by Arthur W. P. Lipscomb and R. F. Minetti, were brought to Hollywood by the producers to assure a true and accurate adaptation of their play to the screen. Loretta Young evidences new powers and gives an unforgettable portrayal of the lovely English girl to whom Clive wrote proposing marriage after seeing her picture in her brother's locket. The love story of this heroic pair is one of the most beautiful and moving the screen has ever shown. The huge cast of principals, including Colin Clive, Francis Lister, C. Aubrey Smith and Cesar Romero, turns in performances of uniform excellence.

A NAVAL QUARREL

Unfortunately, Hongkong is still the haven of refuge of the Chinese cruisers Hai Chi and Hai Shen, which, for reasons not yet wholly explained, chose to leave Canton last week. The presence in port of Northern cruiser, for the purpose of escorting the other two ships back to the North, adds to the difficulties of a complicated situation. The quarrel between two sections of the Chinese Navy—for such it is—is no direct concern of the British authorities, and, as has been explained, until the two vessels which escaped from Canton are definitely regarded by the Central Government as rebels, there is no option left to the authorities here but to regard them as part and parcel of the Chinese Navy. It is clear, from the statements made by Vice-Admiral Chen and Commodore Morse, that there has yet been no settlement reached between the Hai Chi and the Hai Shen on the one hand and the Northern warships on the other. Hongkong's position in the matter is somewhat delicate from the fact that the Nanking naval craft can do nothing, whilst the ships are in British waters, except with the consent of the Hongkong authorities. At the moment, it is not clear why the escaping cruisers should have been driven back into Hongkong when they were encountered outside British waters, thus further complicating the situation. If, as there seems little reason to doubt, the Ning Hai had authority from Nanking to take the vessels North, the matter might have been more satisfactorily settled outside British waters, by the more superior craft insubordinating on the Hai Chi and Hai Shen proceeding to the nearest Chinese port. Whatever the reasons for the cruisers leaving Canton, it would seem that they made their decision without having first taken the precaution to learn Nanking's attitude towards them, doubtless in the hope that they would be welcomed back with open arms. Matters have not worked out quite as expected, however. These two cruisers have, for many years, been a source of anxiety to Chinese naval circles. They have for long maintained a more or less semi-independent status and have seemingly been unable to count on financial support either from the Central Government or

NOTES OF THE DAY

NO MEN FOR MANY JOBS

With more than 2,000,000 still unemployed in Great Britain, certain industries are complaining bitterly, even desperately, that they cannot find men to fill the jobs now open in their factories. The reason is that there are thousands of untrained, or semi-trained, men in the country, who are willing to work but who are not competent. If a factory wants a machinist there is no use in its hiring a longshoreman, employers point out. And yet that is what will have to be done. In a little, employers will be forced to train unskilled labour to certain work in Britain if they are to keep up with production demands. And in the training of these unskilled hands Britain is going to lose valuable time: time which means orders, and pounds, shillings and pence. This is a natural sequel to the industrial slump, it is to be supposed. But in order to guard against it in the future it would seem necessary to reform the system by which the industrial workers are trained. In the past it was possible for factories to keep large staffs of apprentices that the business of learning could be carried on without any effect upon production. The apprentice system has been virtually abolished in most branches of industry. The result is that those who during the years of the depression might have been learning an expert's trade, now that their services are required are not fitted to accept employment. They have not been educated.

CHANGE NEEDED

What is needed in Britain, as elsewhere, is a reformed educational system. Men should be able to fit themselves for work in aeroplane or automobile factories, textile mills or engine-rooms, at advanced technical schools, supported by the Government and the industries for whose benefit they largely exist. This, more than ever, is an age of specialisation. The opportunities for untrained men are few and far between, and it becomes harder to educate one's self with employment increasingly difficult to find. A square peg's edges have to be trimmed, now, to fit in a round hole. And one does not have to be a radical to appreciate it. The time has passed, furthermore, when the untrained man can find that vague "something" in the Colonies. These Colonies, which prefer to be known as Dominions now that they have got into long trousers, don't want unskilled men. They have enough of them already, and to spare. Farming on Canada's prairies, and ranching in Australia's vast hinterland is not a job for a "tender-foot." It takes skill and patience, hard work to grow No. 1 wheat in Alberta and beef cattle in Queensland. And boys don't learn how under the present school system.

TO-DAY'S MOTORING TIP

DRIVING DOWNHILL

Motorists differ considerably in the manner in which they descend hills. Many owner-drivers make a practice of switching off the ignition when the car is travelling downhill.

This is a mistake, since the firing mixture induced into the combustion chambers is not fired, so the unburnt fuel vapour tends to wash the oil from the cylinder and piston walls. This is a serious thing, for until fresh oil seal is formed—this may take two or three minutes after switching the ignition again—wear is excessive.

The best way of descending a hill when the driver is expert at changing gear and the brakes are known to be reliable is to coast in neutral with the engine idling. Failing this the throttle should be closed and a gear should be engaged. A low gear is advisable on a steep hill, since this allows the engine to be used as a more powerful brake.

provincial authorities. Various rumours are current as to how they have been able to carry on, but, whatever the truth of these may be, it seems certain that financial reasons compelled their departure from Canton. At the moment, the officers of these vessels would appear to be attempting to bargain with Nanking for the best terms possible in the circumstances. The pity of it all is that Hongkong has unwillingly been brought into the picture.

LAND OF BLUFF AND TERRORISM

By F. BRITTEN AUSTIN

It may be that one day the U.S.S.R. will ceremoniously add to its Communist Valhalla of Marx, Lenin, and Stalin the plump, bespectacled, charmingly benevolent figure of Mr. Litvinoff (alias Mr. Finklestein, alias Mr. Wallach). For if Marx and Lenin created the Communist Dictatorship, and Stalin very ruthlessly made it work, it is Mr. Litvinoff who has saved it—at least temporarily. Two years ago the Communist Dictatorship was in a very bad way. Russia, indeed, was dotted with the grandiose modernities of the last year of the First Five Year Plan, but these colossal factories had been purchased with the almost complete exhaustion of an enslaved people—and they functioned in an absurdly minimal ratio to the schedule decreed.

The collectivisation of agriculture had also been more or less enforced, amid the agonies of five million exiled kulaks, but the result had been an appalling famine in the Ukraine which, under the old regime, had made Odessa one of the great wheat-ports of the world.

Soviet Russia could no longer dump those cut-price agricultural exports which it provided it with foreign credits; it could no longer pay the salaries of its American experts, and it could no longer purchase the foreign machinery, the foreign material of transportation, of which it was in such urgent need. Soviet Russia had no friends, and none knew better than the Stalin group that a foreign war would be the signal for immediate internal insurrections, especially in the Ukraine and in the Caucasus—where the oil comes from. It was a bad outlook.

Mr. Litvinoff has changed all that. He looked around the world, seeing it in terms of diplomacy. Mr. Litvinoff went to Washington, talked charmingly, if somewhat vaguely, of eventually paying the Russian debts to America, and secured the boon, charged with immense prestige, of American recognition, so long denied. If he did not secure a loan, he secured a promise of railroad material, war material, aviation material, to be financed by a specially created Import and Export Bank, for which America would find the capital and the credits. That Soviet Russia does not to-day enjoy all the advantages he expected is due to the Soviet lack of being too frankly cynical apropos of the imbecility of bourgeois peoples. In the west also Mr. Litvinoff had an opportunity. Hitler's advent sent a shock of alarm throughout Europe. It meant that at no distant date the carefully piled apparatus of Versailles was going to be upset. Particularly it meant, on the evidence of Nazi leaders, that Russia was menaced in her wheat-growing province of the Ukraine. The German-Polish accord confirmed that hideous suspicion.

Once more the Russian steamroller is to loom on the German frontier. We have had some experience of Russian steamrollers. Will the Soviet pattern prove to be more efficient? The Soviet papers—inefficiency and corruption. Nor is the Soviet population imbued with that universal enthusiasm which the Soviet propagandists, and our parlour Bolsheviks, would have us believe. The mass-terrorism, the mass-executions, of last winter are proof of it. Even the Soviet Government does not waste cartridges unnecessarily. There was something serious there which had to be stamped out. The subject erstwhile Republics of the Ukraine and the Caucasus notoriously await only the outbreak of a foreign war to make a fight for freedom. And the Soviet Government, which used to make a crime of anything that was not "internationalism," now exhorts its citizens in the name of the "Fatherland." Most assuredly, all is not well. Soviet Russia is a monstrous bluff. Let those beware who trust to it.

Japanese Competition Beneficial

ANALOGY IN GERMAN EXPANSION

ATTACK ON TARIFFS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1931. Received, June 25, 6.50 a.m.)

London, June 24. Agreement by British and Japanese speakers that Japanese competition in world markets was beneficial, and not harmful, provided the chief interest in the opening day of the Congress of International Chambers of Commerce, which opened in London to-day, being attended by over a thousand of the world's business leaders.

Sir Arthur Balfour cited the example of Germany in the 19th Century, which made a tremendous industrial expansion, due to the low standard of living. Despite prophecies to the contrary, Germany secured the bulk of the world's trade, the standard of living there rose, and, with increasing wealth, Germany became one of the greatest buyers of raw materials.

On the other hand, said Sir Arthur, tariffs, quotas and other trade barriers conferred no benefit and did not eliminate competition. Mr. Yoshikawa said Japan was a debtor country and could only pay her creditors by exports. She needed raw materials. He pleaded with the Congress to foster and not hinder Japan's commercial advance.—Reuter Special.

WRITTEN PACT DENIED

Peking, June 25.

While it is believed that a written agreement was actually signed by both the Chinese and Japanese delegates at a conference held on Sunday night for the settlement of the Chanpei incident, official quarters deny it.

They merely state satisfactory results had been obtained, and submitted to the Nanking Government for approval.

Major-General Dohrman also denied that a written agreement was signed when interviewed after the conference. He is expected to return to Chungking to-day to submit a report of the results of his mission in North China to the Kwantung Administration.—Central News.

ADVISERS FOR CHINA

QUESTION IN THE COMMONS

London, June 24. Asked in the House of Commons whether any other Powers were sending financial experts to China to advise their respective Governments on the situation there, Sir Samuel Hoare said as soon as the Chinese Government had been informed of the appointment of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, the British Government communicated with the United States, French, Japanese and Italian Governments and expressed their hope that they would take similar action. He had not as yet received any intimation of their intentions in this respect.—British Wireless.

R. A. F. PLANES LEAVE

DUE IN MANILA TO-DAY

The two Singapore III flying boats, carrying a special bag of mail for delivery in Manila and Singapore, left Kai Tak this morning at 7 o'clock and shortly after 9 o'clock reported their position as the Pratas Reef. They are expected to reach Manila this afternoon. They are surveying a new route in connection with the possible extension of the Imperial Airways service to Hongkong.

KIDNAPPER'S TRIAL

Tacoma, June 24.

The trial of Mrs. B. Waley, wife of the man who has been sentenced to 45 years' imprisonment in connection with the kidnapping of little George Weyerhaeuser, will commence July 5. She has pleaded guilty, but her husband stated before his conviction that she had no knowledge of the crime.—United Press.

the tri-party pact of Stresa. Sir Samuel stoutly denied that such was the case.

All eyes are upon Mr. Eden on a mission to Rome. He will there talk with Signor Mussolini, the Italian Prime Minister, respecting the effect of the Anglo-German naval agreement, but, more important, will attempt to ease the tension between Italy and Abyssinia.—United Press.

DELICATE SUBJECT

Rome, June 24. Up to the present Mr. Anthony Eden, Great Britain's peace emissary, has not broached the subject of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute in his conversations with Signor Benito Mussolini, Italy's Prime Minister. However, the Foreign Office experts on African affairs support the view that Mr. Eden is anxious to raise this matter.

After three hours' formal conversation this morning, Signor Mussolini and Mr. Eden conversed alone in a corner of the room where they had lunched. Owing to the extensive ground to be covered Mr. Eden is expected to remain here until Wednesday.

It is probable that up to the moment only the effects of the Anglo-German naval agreement have been discussed.—Reuter Special.

LONG TALKS

London, June 24.

In Rome to-day, Mr. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, had long conversations in the morning and again in the afternoon, each of two hours' duration, with Signor Mussolini. They lunched together in the interval.

Mr. Eden was accompanied by the British Ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond. A communique issued this evening stated they discussed the Anglo-German Naval Pact and prospects for an aerial accord and other questions which formed a part of the Anglo-French declaration of February 3. Conversation will be continued to-morrow and Mr. Eden expects to leave Rome for Paris either Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. He will see Mr. Pierre Laval again before returning to London.

In the House of Commons to-day the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, said the Anglo-French declaration of February 3 still represented the policy of the British Government.—British Wireless.

SPEEDS BUILDING

Paris, June 24. France is speeding up the construction of her new 35,000-ton battleship already in the slips and the laying down of another on January 1, 1937, immediately the Washington Treaty expires, is being urged by several members of the Chamber.

They will fight for this expansion when the Minister of Marine, M. Petrie, addresses an important meeting of the Navy Committee of the Chamber to-morrow.—Reuter Special.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

BEWARE OF DOUBT—FAITH IS THE SUREST CHAIN THAT BINDS US TO THE INFINITE.—E. O. Smith.

Local estate to the value of $8,000 has been left by Mr. Suleyman Husein, late of No. 9 Tin Lok Lane, who died at the French Hospital on April 7. Probate of the will has been granted to Mr. Pang Kwok-sui, the executor named in the will.

Mrs. R. Langley, residing at the St. John Ambulance Hospital Headquarters, Tai Hang Road, has reported to the police that some time between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m. yesterday someone entered the premises by climbing a drain pipe and stole two ladies' gold wristlet watches, valued at $50, and four small pocket knives, valued at $2.

Convicted on charges of impersonating a police officer and theft of money from Chan Lin-yau, a bank of the Tai Ping Bank, situated at the Tai Ping Wharf on June 14, Pan Kan, 21, unemployed, was fined $100, or seven weeks' hard labour in default, with an additional month's hard labour by Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning. Det-Sgt. Kinneer prosecuted.

A 31-year-old unemployed man, Lau Chi, was brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with damaging a tree valued at $15 at Bowen Road near Wanchai Gap, by cutting it down. Inspector Smith said the Botanical and Forestry Department viewed the cutting of trees seriously as they took some time to cultivate. In this instance, the tree was quite valuable, and had grown to a considerable height. A fine of $30 or one month's hard labour was imposed.

On a charge of burglary and theft of $4.00 from the Lai Kee Restaurant, 211 Des Voeux Road West, ground floor, Chan Nam, 50, unemployed, was sent to prison for three months by Mr. Schofield in the Central Magistracy this morning. Det-Sgt. Kinneer said defendant was found crawling behind the counter. He had stolen $4.00 from the till. When arrested he had $4.70 and the balance of twenty cents fell to the ground and made a noise which aroused the foki who was asleep. The incident occurred at 3.30 a.m. yesterday.

noise, whereupon the guests laughed.

In reply to Mr. Dennis, plaintiff denied that she was pregnant at the time. She asked the elders to make enquiries and a meeting was arranged, but the defendants did not turn up. She then consulted her solicitors and a letter was sent to defendants demanding an apology, but no reply was received. She then decided to take the matter to Court.

Cross-examined by Mr. Silva, plaintiff said that before her marriage she did not know either of the defendants.

STORY CHANGED

Plaintiff was rebuked by His Lordship for changing her story following her reply to Mr. Silva's question to the effect that her husband did not meet her when she came out of the bridal chair and that he did not brandish a knife. She said it was only Li Sang-kwai who had a knife in his hand. She alleged that after Li Sang-kwai had spoken to her husband in the bedroom, her husband came into the bed-room and struck her.

She denied that the story of brandishing knives was a product of her own imagination or that the words alleged to have been uttered by the defendants were false.

The case is proceeding.

ANGLO-URUGUAYAN TRADE

London, June 24.

Dr. Burgin, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, received Dr. Cosio and members of the Uruguayan trade delegation at the Board of Trade to-day. Negotiations are now practically completed and an agreement was initiated.—British Wireless.

COURT MOVEMENTS

London, June 24.

The King is expected to return to London from Sandringham towards the end of the week. In the meantime, the Queen will return to-morrow to hold alone the third and fourth Courts on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.—British Wireless.

OLYMPIA SUCCESS

London, June 24.

Captain Lewis of the Irish Free State, on Transvaal Bay, won the King George Gold Challenge Cup at the International Horse Show at Olympia this afternoon.—British Wireless.

BRITISH REPLY

Paris, June 24.

A brief British reply to the French Government's note on the Anglo-German naval agreement has been received here. It suggests the utility of a naval conference before the end of the year in view of the expiration of the Washington Treaty.

It is expected that France will agree to this suggestion.—Reuter.

COASTAL CITIES

One of the most interesting and delightful trips in a world gone mad on cruising, and one surprisingly little known to the average tourist, is that between Hongkong and Foochow. SWATOW

Lying at the foot of rocky hills, whose rugged brown and yellow outlines are thrown against the sky in a fantastic pattern, Swatow is reached in the early morning after the first night's stretch of the way.

A visit to the city must be the first day's schedule. Landing from a launch at the Agent Company's jetty, you will find much activity along the bank. Where reclamation is going merrily ahead. Remarkable improvements have been effected in the city since the typhoon some years ago laid it waste and gave the opportunity for rebuilding. There is a city temple well worth a visit, also an old joss wall covered with frescoes in a fine state of preservation.

Those who want to shop in Swatow will be charmed with displays of the finest drawn thread and hand embroidered linen in the world. The pewter industry is another whose output is marked by its beauty as well as by an astonishingly low scale of prices.

On the way back time must be found for a visit to the opposite shore, where the foreign population has settled, and where the schools and houses of a busy Mission peep from among the foliage of tropical gardens.

AMOI

Once upon a time Amoy was known as the dirtiest city in China. Since she became a treaty port, however, in consequence of the wise Government of a fine Mayor, there has been a continual succession of modern improvements. Narrow cobbled streets have been widened, paved and planted with shade trees. Modern sanitation and electric light have been introduced and new buildings erected. But in spite of this Amoy is still, like Swatow, definitely and unalterably Chinese. Her age is written in the evidence of centuries of occupation of the foreign side. There is a temple of surpassing beauty some miles from the city, in the tree grown crevice of a hillside. There are still the twisted roofs of old dwellings peeping over crumbling stone walls, and wherever you look, graves in the earth.

Kulang-su, for the return journey, is an enchanted island lying across the narrow harbour, on which are the homes of a few wealthy Chinese and members of the foreign community.

FOOCHOW

Rise early if you would not miss the way into Min River, on which lies famous Foochow City. Through the narrow gap of Mingan Pass, at Sharp Peak, the ship enters the sixteen miles of winding channel, that brings her to the Pagoda Anchorage. The great river josts the Mandarin's Leg is a curious rock formation on the left, standing out clearly from a tumbled mass of granite. Bright blue river steam boats plying among the villages, and manned by women, are crowded with passengers going to or from the market.

As the galleys flock to the steamer's side, and the whistle of arrival goes, a mirage appears in the mists of morning, and for a moment you see with "that inward eye," the Cutty Sark, Thermopylae, Maiden Queen, and a host more of the old sailing vessels which used to anchor here, fifty or sixty strong, in the great past days of the Tea Trade. The anchor chain rattles, and the famous company vanishes, but the Pagoda on top of the little promontory looks down as it has looked for hundreds and hundreds of years; a beacon it is said built by a mother for the guidance of a son who never returned.

Twelve miles further up the river you go, and come to the city of Foochow, where the story of ten began, when all the world was made for the sake of a good road out, and the paved path to the summit, laid for an Emperor of the Sung Dynasty who decided to worship there, and up which the traveller is carried in a chair by sturdy coolie women, is an experience never to be forgotten.

SHOWERY WEATHER

Pressure remains moderately high over the Pacific to the south and south-west of the Bonins. The depression is passing into the Pacific to the east of Japan. Depressions are situated over N.W. Manchuria and West China and a trough of low pressure extends from Indo-China to North Luzon. Local forecast:—S.W. winds, moderate; cloudy, showery.

Do You Know Where Sploot Is?

The chances are that you do not, yet, from this suburb of Cardiff, Wales, comes a message of hope for people who are suffering from blood impoverishment. Writing from her home at No. 9 Smith Street, Sploot, Miss I. M. Jones states:—"For years I suffered from anaemia, I was always languid, nervous and irritable, and often had fainting fits. Last October I had a nervous breakdown, and was kept away from my work for over two months."

"I lost my appetite entirely. Fits of depression came over me and I used to cry on the slightest provocation. I lost weight to an alarming extent."

"I could not go out alone for fear of being seized with a fainting fit. I was utterly listless and had no interest in anything. I could not sleep at night. I was often overcome by violent headaches."

"My cousin advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after only one bottle of the pills I found my appetite returning. I persevered with the pills and soon I was able to sleep well, and got up in the morning bright and cheerful."

"I began to pick up some of my lost weight, my nerves grew steady, fainting fits no longer troubled me, and, before long my ailments were a thing of the past."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are just what you need if you are run-down and ailing. When the plentiful supply of rich, pure blood which these pills create is flowing in your veins your whole system becomes invigorated. They are obtainable from chemists everywhere.

BOWLS FINALIST ELIMINATED

D. RUMJAHN OUT OF TOURNEY

ARCULLI WINS

(By "Sagan")

D. Rumjahn, runner-up last year to A. W. Grimmett, in the Open Lawn Bowls Singles Championship, has joined the unhappy band of pilgrims whose journeys through the various rounds of the tournament have been unexpectedly terminated. Yesterday he met E. C. Arculli on the Civil Service C. C. green and was eliminated by a score of 20 shots to nine.

Rumjahn, on paper, was and possibly still is, considered the better of the two players but like other local giants of the level green game, he was not able to reproduce his best form at the right time and so he too has had to take the count. Arculli, however, has always been one of the leading players of the Crugisgower C. C., from where Rumjahn also comes, but of recent years ill health has kept him out of active bowls with the result that his form has not been as good as formerly.

This season Arculli has been playing regularly and seems to have regained his lost form again. The standard of bowls yesterday, however, was rarely or never worthy of two such seasoned players and there were really very few heads which could be termed anything like brilliant. Yesterday Arculli was by far the better of the two and played more consistently than did his opponent. He fully deserved to win and although the margin of victory, ordinarily may, somewhat flatter him, the difference in the standard of the two yesterday was well indicated by the score.

Rumjahn was dead off form and could not reveal the same high standard which carried him into the final twelve months ago.

The scoring was on the low side throughout and neither player scored a three, although there were quite a number of twos. The match ended on the 21st end.

Arculli registered singles on the first four ends and was somewhat lucky on the second to draw first shot when his opponent was lying four. However, Rumjahn partially and his revenge on the fourth end when Arculli was lying four and he drew second shot.

By steady scoring Arculli took the score to 10-3 on the ninth end, 15-6 on the fourteenth and 19-8 on the 18th. On this end Arculli had a lucky wick to draw first shot when Rumjahn was lying four.

COUNTY CRICKET FIXTURES

MATCHES FINISH IN TWO DAYS

UNIVERSITIES BEATEN

London, June 24. Gloucestershire defeated Glamorgan by an innings and five runs in a County Cricket match concluded at Bristol to-day.

Glamorgan in their first visit to the wickets could only realise 93 against the deadly accurate bowling of Goddard who secured six wickets for 36 runs. In their second knock, Glamorgan did a little better but could not pass the double century mark scoring a total of 195. Parker took five wickets for 86 runs.

Gloucester in their innings scored 293.

The Marylebone Cricket Club defeated Cambridge University by eight wickets, at Lord's, Sims and Hearne shining with the ball.

Cambridge scored 100 in their first innings, Sims claiming no less than eight victims for only 31 runs. The Varsity totalled 139 in their second innings, Hearne dismissing four batsmen for 18.

The M. C. C. hit up 112 in the first innings and 128 for two wickets in the second.

Nottingham gained victory over Sussex by an innings and 64 runs at Nottingham.

Sussex fared very badly against the bowling of Vane (45 for 31) and scored only 96 in their first innings. They totalled 110 in their second innings.

Nottingham amassed a total of 270 runs.

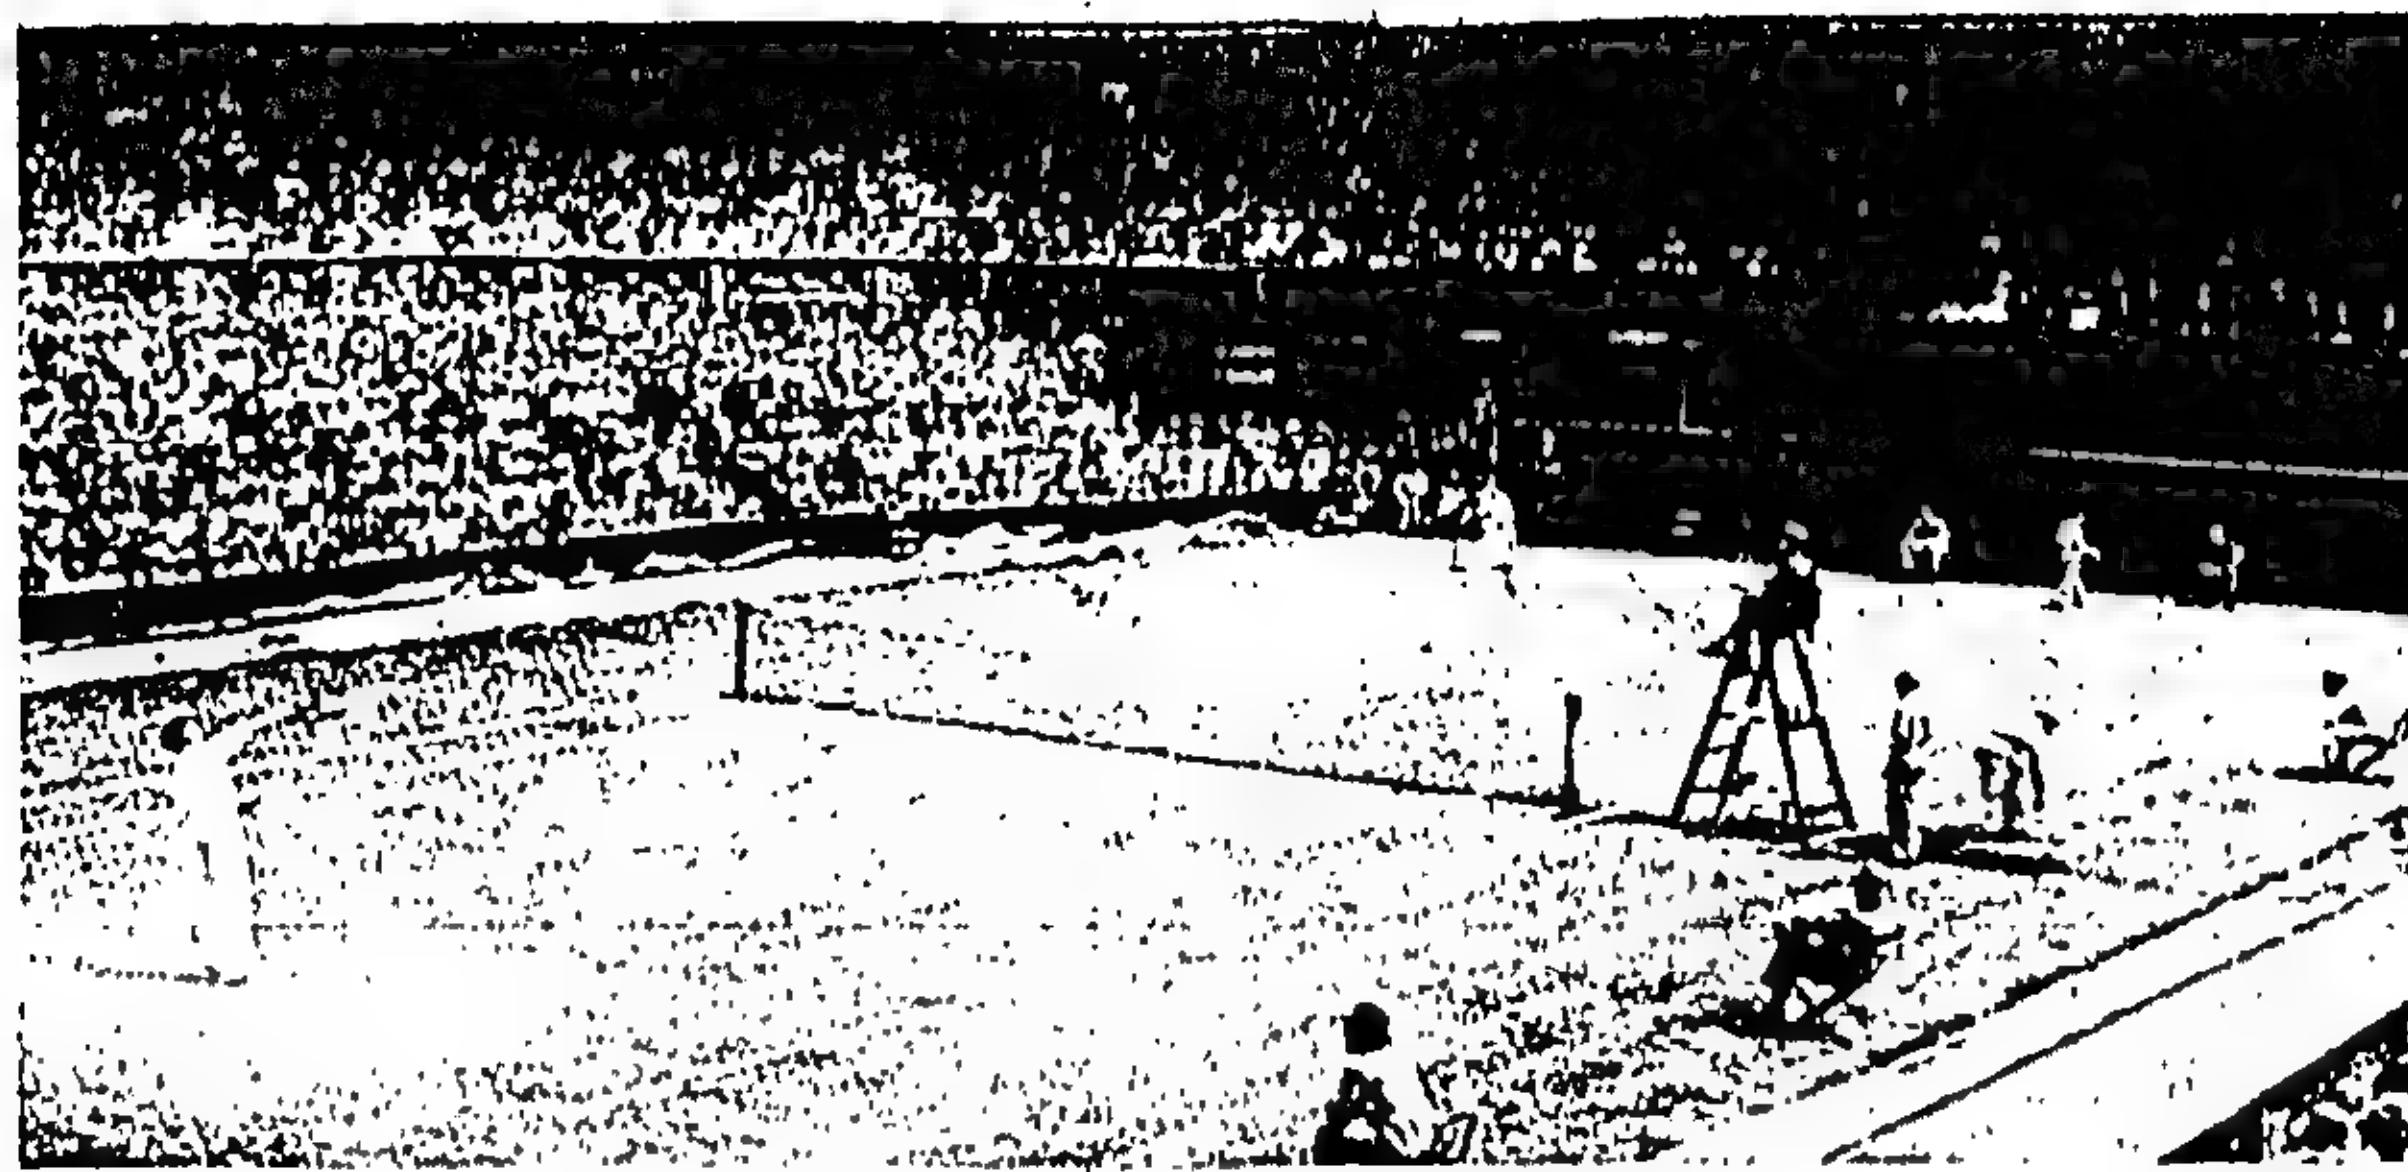

Mr. H. D. G. Leveson-Gower's XI defeated Oxford University by ten wickets at Reigate. Baxter, a member of the winning team, did extremely well with the ball, claiming no less than 13 wickets for 72 runs.

The Oxonians totalled 145 in their first lease at the wicket, Baxter claiming six wickets for 39. In their second visit they were less successful and were dismissed for 78. Baxter dismissing seven batsmen for 33.

Leveson-Gower's XI scored 191 and, in the second innings, knocked out 33 runs with all their wickets intact. —Reuter.

Badminton players should find much of interest in a sports comedy which is being shown at the Alhambra Theatre together with the film "Bordertown."

Hugh Herbert is featured in a short comedy entitled "Good Badminton" and in addition to its appeal as a comedy it shows how the game is played by the world champions, who are seen in action.

Two Bowls Matches To-day

J. C. BROWN AND R. BASA TO PLAY

There now remains only four matches in the second round of the Open Lawn Bowls Singles Championship and two of these will be decided this afternoon.

No date has been fixed for the game between F. L. Rapley and T. Armstrong owing to the recent indisposition of the former. It is more than probable that Rapley will concede a walk over to his opponent.

This afternoon R. Basa, of the Crugisgower C. C. will meet J. C. Brown, of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, on the Club de Recreio Green while H. Rozario, of the Club de Recreio, will play J. J. Whyte, of the Taikoo R. C., on the Kowloon C. C. green.

There is still one match which was started but not concluded owing to rain.

RULES OF GOLF

Mamak & Co. Giving Away Free Copies

Messrs. Mamak & Company, C. well-known sports dealers of Peking Road, Kowloon, have received a number of copies of the New Rules of the Game of Golf as approved by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club at St. Andrews.

These are in book form and issued by Messrs. Robert Porgan & Son, Ltd., the St. Andrew's golf club makers, and will be given away free to any golfer who cares to make application.

Cliff Bastin and Pat Beasley, the Arsenal wingers, were operated on for cartilage and internal troubles respectively on June 1. They are in the Royal Northern Hospital, London, where two colleagues, Drake and Duggall, are recovering from illnesses. Bastin's case was described as a very rare one of "congenital" cartilage trouble.

The annual report and cash statement of the Middlesex County F.A. Just issued, shows a profit on the past year's working of £29, 15s. 10d.

New York Giants Nosed Out By Cubs

BASEBALL DEFEAT FOR LEADERS

YANKEES BEAT INDIANS

New York, June 24. The New York Giants failed to maintain their winning form in the National Baseball League to-day when they played Chicago Cubs, to whom they lost by a single run after the game had been extended to ten innings.

However, they have a commanding lead and the Cardinals' victory against Brooklyn Dodgers has not made a great difference in the relative positions of the two leading teams.

The Yankees, in the American League, won against Cleveland Indians thus further widening the gap between the two top teams.

Results of to-day's matches as enabled by Reuter follow:

NATIONAL LEAGUE
St. Louis	R.	H.	E.
Brooklyn	12	18	2
	7	13	3

(Joe Collins scored a home run for the Cardinals and Fey for the Dodgers.)

AMERICAN LEAGUE
St. Louis	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	4	9	3
	6	11	2

(Carl Reynolds scored a home run for the Red Sox and Benura for the White Sox.)

New York	1	9	1
Cleveland	1	8	0
Philadelphia	2	7	1
St. Louis	1	9	0
Washington	8	15	0
Detroit	9	15	1

(There were fourteen innings.)

THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES

Not Better Than The Male In Horse Races

Palo Alto, Cal., June 8. The male of the species Equus Caballus, (otherwise, the horse) is a faster stepper than the female, according to statistics compiled by Dr. Calvin P. Stone.

Using racing records dating back for several years, Dr. Stone, psychologist at Stanford University, showed that in 2,400 stake races on principal American tracks from 1923 to 1929, seventy-eight per cent. of the winners were male horses.

Records for a period of twenty-five years, covering distances from 440 yards to four miles, showed that stallions and geldings won 80 per cent. of all the races.

VICTORY OVER ALLISON

BEATS AMERICAN IN THE FIRST ROUND

BY EXPLOITING TWO-HANDED BACK-HAND STROKE

London, June 24.

The Wimbledon lawn tennis championships to-day opened in sweltering heat before an attendance of approximately 6,000 spectators. There was a sensation in the first round of the singles championship when Vivian McGrath, the young Australian Davis Cup player, who lost all his recent matches in this competition, eliminated Wilmer Allison, the leading American player in four sets. A number of notable names appear among the first round winners, Fred Perry, the present holder of the title, G. von Cramm, the German champion, Jack Crawford, the Australian champion, Sidney Wood, the American player and Jean Borotra, still the idol of the Wimbledon crowd, all entering the second round.

Jiro Yamagishi, the Japanese Davis Cup player, had little difficulty in accounting for H. L. de Morpurgo, the former Italian Davis Cup player, and now of the Belgian Congo, by scores of 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

The Japanese quickly realised that his opponent, who has not been playing much serious tennis of recent years, was out of touch with his back-hand strokes and Yamagishi hammered this department of the Italian's game mercilessly.

De Morpurgo's main stroke was his first service which was excellent and which he exploited successfully to obtain many points, but his second service was singularly weak.

The Italian tried desperately to evade the back-hand shots by running round them but he not only lost time but became outpositioned.

There was a close struggle for the first set although the Japanese only lost three games, but the second went to the Japanese with comparative ease.

The Italian made a fight for the third set but Yamagishi's quickness on the court and brilliant drop shots won him a deserved victory.

De Morpurgo lacked his pristine power and was rarely able to produce the form of his Davis Cup days.

HOW MCGRATH WON

By exploiting his brilliant two-handed back-hand shot with lightning pace and great accuracy, Vivian McGrath, the young unseeded Australian, furnished a sensation on a glorious first day at the Jubilee Wimbledon by defeating Wilmer Allison, America's leading player, by 6-1, 6-3, 7-6, 7-5.

There was a record crowd, including Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, who was not engaged to-day, to see Allison wilt under McGrath's inspired play. Allison made a great recovery and won the third set after being 3-6 down, and then he obtained a 6-1 lead in the fourth but McGrath made an irresistible rally and won six games in a row.

Allison, however, showed a strong hand throughout and made McGrath go all out for victory.

FRED PERRY THROUGH

Fred Perry, the holder, has an easy passage into the second round when he was drawn against Marcel Binville, Canada's No. 1 ranking player, who entered unofficially. The Wimbledon champion won by 6-1, 6-1, 6-3 without being extended.

Bunny Austin, England's No. 2 player, also had an easy task against E. R. Avery, a nephew of the late Judge Avery, who died last week. Austin won 6-3, 6-1, 6-3. G. P. Hughes accounted for an American player named Culley by 6-3, 11-9, 6-2 but Great Britain lost many players, including F. H. D. Wilde, Freshwater and I. G. Collins.

The reserves will be W. Orchard and T. P. Sanderson.

A. P. Tarbuck, J. F. Barron, L. de Rome and A. Webster (skip).

The reserves will be W. Orchard and T. P. Sanderson.

Jack Crawford, of Australia, beat Jacques Brugnon, the French Davis Cup player, by 6-3, 6-1, 6-4 and G. von Cramm, the German Davis Cup player, won from Deleone, of South America, 6-1, 6-0, 6-3.

WOOD WINS

S. B. Wood, the American Davis Cup player, easily eliminated the Japanese player, E. Itoh.

The American player was entirely confident of his superiority, and showed his ability to win when and how he liked.

He aimed piercing returns into the far corners of the court and quickly rushed to the net, and dealt as he liked with the Japanese player's returns.

Wood ran away with the first set taking five games without a reply, from his opponent who seemed de-

Miss Wanda Morgan Wins Golf Title

BEST FINAL SINCE MISS WETHERED
BEAT MISS COLLETT

By Eleanor E. Helme

London, May 31.

Miss Wanda Morgan beat Miss Pam Barton 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final of the Championship at Newcastle, Co. Down, and so holds at last the title which has seemed overdue to her ever since she was runner-up to Miss Enid Wilson at Portmarnock in 1931.

Never has Miss Morgan given on-lookers such a glorious feeling of confidence as she did in this final, hitting the iron shots without a trace of effort, playing everything well within herself, and above all, putting supremely well. That old bogey of being an uncertain putter is once and for all buried and done with, and there was much to test nerve.

It has also been said of Miss Morgan that she lacks the little grain of cruelty which enables the golfer who is up to rub in her advantage or to fight to the death when it is threatened. Miss Morgan can no longer be criticised on that score. Down in the early stages, she squared the match at the 9th in the morning, took the lead at the 11th, made it two at the 12th, lunched 2 up, made it 3 immediately after, was pulled back to one at the turn, and yet hung on all the way until the final putt was dead.

THE LOSER'S COURAGE

As for Miss Barton, she, too, played grand golf, and if it were more of the brilliant recovery and one putt type than Miss Morgan's, that is only all the more tribute to her splendid pluck and the power which she can apply when the ball has reached depths that would drive some golfers to despair. The word despair evidently has no place in Miss Barton's vocabulary; she stuck to a losing game with a smiling determination which was good to see—her turn must inevitably come. Meantime the golfing world is content to say that this was the best golf any open final had seen since Miss Joyce Wethered beat Miss Glenn Collett at St. Andrews in 1929. Miss Morgan was round in the morning in 70 to Miss Barton's 78, and in the afternoon took the sixteen holes in 68 to Miss Barton's 69.

The weather was still sunny and the run considerable, but the course measured 6,437 yards as played, and no amount of run on the ball can soften the hazards. Yet the whole day only saw three 6's—Miss Barton's at the 6th and 8th in the afternoon and Miss Morgan's at the 9th.

The first hole in the morning was no bad index to the round. Miss Morgan played it like a model of propriety; Miss Barton, after exploring the sandhills, recovering finely, and then having a loose pitch, holed a twenty-yard run up for a 5, the orthodox figure—vociferous applause. Miss Morgan had a ten-yard putt for the hole; the ball crept up and up, with cries from the crowd of "Go on with you, go on," but the ball stuck a foot short, and the hole was halved.

MISS BARTON UNDERCLUBS

Miss Barton won the next, Miss Morgan again nearly holing the long putt. At the 3rd again she near as nothing holed the chip, but this time she had no need of it, for Miss Barton had underclubbed the second shot in taking an iron, and so found a bunker instead of the green, which was undoubtedly within shot if she had taken woods. At the 4th Miss Morgan showed that she was going to sink the doubtful putt, as well as shave the hole with the long ones, for after a frightening bold try for a 2, she rattled in the return one for the half.

Both bunkered their drives to the 5th. Miss Morgan was perhaps unlucky to be stymied at five yards' range and could only halve the hole, and failing to complete a mastery chip with a two-yard putt at the 6th, Miss Barton was 1 up again.

Two halves followed, and then once again Miss Barton seemed to underclub the second shot, and so lost the hole, which Miss Morgan felt no shame to take wood to with the second and so took the par figure. Square at the turn, both out in 38. Putting from both of them halved the 10th in 7, good putting from Miss Morgan, and suddenly faultily from Miss Barton, gave Miss Morgan the 11th, and a particularly perfect iron second to the 12th won her that in 4 as well. Two up.

To the 13th Miss Barton got her very long drive, precisely the right spot, and her iron second four yards past the pin, winning the hole, since Miss Morgan's three-yarder went in only to come out again. A tee-shot four yards from the 14th pin, and Miss Barton away on the left, gave Miss Morgan that hole, and she ought to have added another at the 15th, but she missed a short one after Miss Barton had holed a (Continued on Next Column.)

moralised and made many mistakes. The final result was:

Wood beat Itoh, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0.

G. Palmieri beat Hideo Nishimura

6-2, 3-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Palmieri's extra dash prevailed in a splendid match in which neither player spared himself. Play continually covered the whole court and both players indulged in low, backhand volleys, many of which were picked up and returned almost from the baseline.

Nashimura imparted more spin to his backhand shots but his positioning was weak and long rallies frequently ended in Nishimura being beaten by yards but still gallantly chasing the ball.

Nashimura showed signs of being very tired in the fourth set, but, after holding his service for four games, the Italian player broke through to finish the set and match.

In the first round, C. E. Maffroy (New Zealand) beat W. C. Ghoy (China) 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.—Reuter.

JUBILEE DONATION

A donation is being made jointly by the Lawn Tennis Association and the All England Club to King George's Jubilee Trust. The whole of the cash receipts taken at the gate of the Championship Meeting to-day will be set aside for this purpose.

Crystal Palace just managed to beat Fulham for the signature of professional forwards of Harry Newell, centre-forward or inside-forward, of Leytonstone. Palace have also signed as an amateur A. J. Huddell, a 15-year-old left-back, an ex-Hackney schoolboy.

good one, and it was a half. The putt again looked at the hole only to stay out at the 16th, Miss Barton running up beautifully to win it in 3, but Miss Morgan's faultless 4 won the 17th, and the 18th was halved, Miss Barton again having a clever run up and one putt.

Miss Morgan's figures read: 5, 5, 4, 3, 5, 6, 3, 5, 4—39 out; 3, 4, 4, 5, 3, 5, 4, 4, 5—37 in.

Miss Barton's figures were: 5, 4, 5, 3, 5, 4, 3, 5, 5—39 out; 3, 5, 5, 4, 5, 3, 5, 5—39 in.

UNDISMAYED

After lunch Miss Morgan holed a good putt to win the 1st in 4, and that was 3 up, but Miss Barton showed herself entirely undismayed was a magnificent recovery at the 2nd and won it in 4, and the next in the same figure, one putt being enough. That was a crucial point, especially when, at the 4th, she neatly holed a long putt, and Miss Morgan only got a win by laying the chip dead. At the 5th, however, Miss Barton had an encounter with a cautious bunker, whence she went into another, and Miss Morgan was 3 up.

Back came Miss Barton again, with a couple of 3's, lost the 8th, won the 9th, halved the 10th. Still anybody's match.

The 12th would have seemed a crisis had not every hole in such a match merited that word. A two-yard putt of Miss Morgan's tottered in for a 4, Miss Barton missed a short one, but Miss Morgan only halved the 12th, lost the 13th and was now again only one up.

A faultless 3 won her the 14th, she halved the 15th, and put a perfect tee-shot home at the 16th. Miss Barton was short, the chip by no means dead, in a silence broken only by a cuckoo away in over the gorge, Miss Morgan studied her long putt, ran it up stone dead, and when Miss Barton failed to hole hers, the match was over.

Miss Morgan's figures read: 4, 5, 5, 3, 5, 4, 4, 5, 6—11 out; 3, 4, 4, 5, 5, 3, 5, 2—28 in.

Miss Barton's were: 5, 4, 4, 4, 6, 3, 4, 6, 4—39 out; 3, 5, 5, 4, 4, 5, 4—30 in.

The cups and medals were presented by Mrs. Thompson, wife of the captain of the Royal County Down Club. The special bogey competition prize, presented by the Royal County Down Club, was won by Miss Elsie Corlett with all square.

Why does Chevrolet keep repeating "DRIVE IT ONLY 5 MILES"?

Chevrolet engineers have tried all the cars in to-day's low-priced field. They have compared performance on rough roads, in traffic, over hills, through sand and mud and water. They have proved the same thing that hundreds of thousands of Chevrolet owners are proving in their daily driving:

HOW MUCH MORE SMOOTHLY A CAR TRAVELS WITH GENUINE FULLY ENCLOSED KNEE-ACTION.

HOW MUCH MORE COMFORTABLY IT HANDLES WITH SHOCKLESS STEERING.

HOW MUCH MORE RESTFULLY YOU RIDE IN A FISHER BODY CAR WITH TURRET TOP.

HOW MUCH MORE SAFELY YOU DRIVE WITH CABLE CONTROL BRAKES AND IN A STEEL BODY.

They have proved how much finer performance and better economy are secured from an over-head valve 6-cylinder engine.

In other words Chevrolet engineers and the hundreds of thousands of owners know for sure that the Chevrolet ride simply cannot be matched by any other in the low price field. AND NOW WE WANT YOU TO KNOW IT TOO. BEFORE YOU MAKE YOUR FINAL CHOICE OF A LOW-PRICE CAR.

THAT'S WHY WE URGE YOU TO "DRIVE IT ONLY 5 MILES" AND THAT'S WHY WE PROMISE "YOU WILL NEVER BE SATISFIED WITH ANY OTHER LOW-PRICE CAR."

SERIAL STORY

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Scribner, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

KATHARINE STRYKERHURST, 25, is a contented and restless because her wealthy father, VICTOR TRYKURHURST, and her aristocratic stepmother, BERTINE, refuse to let Katharine undertake any sort of work. Katharine rides daily with MICHAEL HEATHERTON, young westerner who runs a riding club. She assures herself she is not interested in Michael but feels a pang of jealousy when SALLY MOON, local coquette, enrolls at the club for lessons.

CHAPTER IV

Zoe glanced at the riders—Michael and Sally Moon—and said, "So she's got her hooks into him!" Katharine felt the hot colour burn her cheeks. She pretended not to hear. Her heart had plunged—now righted itself. She steeled her hand against the door of the car so that Zoe should not see how it was trembling.

Ahead of them, under the high arch of trees, Michael and Sally rode on. The sound of horses' feet was strangely loud in the stillness. Katharine could see a flash of sunlight on the red crest of Michael's head. Sally dropped toward him and his attitude toward her, even at this distance, seemed protective, solicitous.

It was all absurd; it was not Katharine's affair, certainly, if Michael rode with Sally Moon.

"So I'll count on you, then, Kay," she heard Zoe say, in the silence.

"What? I didn't hear you?" Katharine's tone was confused, her cheeks flushing.

"But a darling and think over what I said about taking a trip to Maine," Zoe coaxed. "Mother wouldn't mind a bit if you suggested it. She wouldn't even suspect."

"Oh, really?" Katharine was unaccountably nettled by the suggestion that she, at 25, was so stupid and unreliable that a wilful, pretty child like Zoe might be trusted with her any.

"What of it?" She had feelings like the rest of them. Anger swept her, swift and unreasoning. She wanted, recklessly, to strike out, to hurt someone. She felt savage—she who was usually so cool and judicious.

Zoe was in no hurry to get on. She lit a cigarette now, from the little silver case she always carried, and offered Katharine one. The other girl refused.

Zoe nodded in the direction of Sally Moon's departing figure. The absurd yellow cap could be seen, bobbing in tune with the mare's jouncing trotting movements. "Hear she's refused Howe Mackenzie?"

"Oh, I don't believe it," Katharine said sharply.

Zoe giggled. "Why, Kay, I believe you don't like that girl."

Katharine shrugged her shapely shoulders. She hated the subject, but was fascinated by it. Howe Mackenzie, 20, fat and rather stupid, a lover at 25, was in the nature of a joke. Yet Sally had been caught in marriage.

That was something, Howe was rich. Some day he would be important in local politics; that was the way the straws pointed. Sally Moon, foolish and deceitful and cheaply pretty, had had a chance to become a wife.

Not that Katharine wanted marriage. But, from her chilly and rather bewildered heights, she wondered how it was done. Sally knew how. She had a system, involving caresses of eyes, of furtive, delectable glances, of murmured words on dance floor and veranda. Katharine had always held herself aloof from what she called "that sort of thing." Now, suddenly, she was curious.

"Sally has her points," Zoe said carelessly, as if she read her companion's thoughts. "I don't doubt it!" Even to Katharine herself the words sounded vaguely bitter. She wouldn't stoop, she told herself, to the sort of thing Sally indulged in—breaching against a man's shoulder, appearing to stumble and catching the nearest masculine hand or arm, spraying oneself with the most seductive perfumes.

"You're a funny girl," Zoe said curiously, almost speculatively. "Don't you like men?"

Katharine slid the door lever open, jumped lightly to the ground. In the bright light of early morning her skin was flawless, ivory stained faintly with an apricot glow. Her fair hair curled in little tendrils about her face.

"Why, she's gorgeous looking, really," the other girl thought. "What wouldn't she be like if she waked up?" "Don't be a goose," Katharine said good-naturedly. "I don't know how we got on the subject. Of course I like men. Don't I dine and dance and swim with them?"

"Oh, it isn't that. I know you have heaps of beaux," Zoe hastened to amend. "It's just that—well, you're so sort of casual with them. I don't believe you've ever even felt a flutter. Have you?"

Katharine shrugged. "All this talk of flutters," she said with a bit of sick. "It makes me—well, just a bit sick."

"There, you see?" cried Zoe. "I knew it! You're on the heights most of the time. And, the added mysteriously, 'they don't like it!'"

"Who doesn't?" Katharine, comprehending perfectly, was purposely icy. "Men," said Zoe softly. "They're afraid of you."

"Let them be!" said Katharine. "Oh, don't be cross," coaxed the little girl at the wheel of the roadster. "I only wanted—well, it does seem such a waste—your being so gorgeous and all that."

"You think," began Katharine with superb scorn, "that being in love's such fun. Is that it?"

Katharine shrugged. "All this talk of flutters," she said with a bit of sick. "It makes me—well, just a bit sick."

"There, you see?" cried Zoe. "I knew it! You're on the heights most of the time. And, the added mysteriously, 'they don't like it!'"

"Who doesn't?" Katharine, comprehending perfectly, was purposely icy. "Men," said Zoe softly. "They're afraid of you."

"Let them be!" said Katharine. "Oh, don't be cross," coaxed the little girl at the wheel of the roadster. "I only wanted—well, it does seem such a waste—your being so gorgeous and all that."

"You think," began Katharine with superb scorn, "that being in love's such fun. Is that it?"

Katharine shrugged. "All this talk of flutters," she said with a bit of sick. "It makes me—well, just a bit sick."

"There, you see?" cried Zoe. "I knew it! You're on the heights most of the time. And, the added mysteriously, 'they don't like it!'"

"Who doesn't?" Katharine, comprehending perfectly, was purposely icy. "Men," said Zoe softly. "They're afraid of you."

"Why, Johnny Kaye!" Katharine exclaimed. "Wherever did you drop from?"

Zoe, remembering her tears and furies and impressions, when dragged away from the adored Gibbs, had the grace to colour.

"Not—not fun, exactly. Oh, but it's what makes life worth living. Haven't you ever, for one single time, waked up in the morning to find the sky blue and the sun brighter and everything—oh, marvellous—just because you were going to see someone?"

"No, I haven't," murmured Zoe, "quite believe it."

Any moment now, Katharine's errant thoughts ran, any moment Michael and Sally Moon would be fording the low river. Sally's dark curls bobbed deliciously on her shoulders—if you like that sort of thing, it was all right—and Michael would be speaking in a low tone to Sally, urging her up the bank.

Suddenly everything was hateful; Zoe with her bubble of puppy love and surprises and blue skies—everything! "I've simply got to see Gibbs," Zoe cried abruptly, reverting to her original theme.

"I won't have a thing to do with it," Katharine declared.

"Oh, how mean of you!" Katharine strode up the lane without a single backward look as Zoe, after one or two reproachful mutterings, slid the car into gear. Oh, it was altogether a horrid day! Now Zoe would be angry and Katharine felt within herself the murmurings of a deep discontent. She longed, suddenly, to be back home, to listen to her stepmother talk prettily of bridge and new slipcovers for the morning room, seemed unendurable.

Terrible to be a girl—even in this day of much wanted freedom for women. Poor girls, Katharine mused, had all the luck. They could strike out for themselves. They could have the infinite satisfaction of doing work that was fascinating or important or both. She hated her soft, easy, uninteresting life. To go back home, to listen to her stepmother talk prettily of bridge and new slipcovers for the morning room, seemed unendurable.

The house was dim and shaded when Katharine reached it. Wisteria and ivy swung before the drawing room windows. Striped cherry and white awnings shut out the sun from the long veranda facing the water. The Parker place was some few hundred yards away, separated from the Strykerhurst's only by the grounds of a convent. Through the wooden lattice work, Katharine could see a few nuns moving gently up and down the paths. An old nun was reading from her daily office book. In the grape arbor, two or three lay sisters worked busily, talking softly together. How happy and busy they all seemed, thought the girl with envy. Here there was literally nothing to do. In the garden a grained Italian worked as Mrs. Strykerhurst, moving capably from bush to bush, gave orders in her concise voice. Maids were busy above stairs, shaking out fresh linen for the beds. The cook sang over her pudding sauce in the kitchen.

Katharine clenched her hands. "I've got to do something," she said. "I can't just drift around here. It seems to me that everyone else in the whole world has a place—a meaning. Her eyes filled, to her dismay and anger, with tears.

Ellen, the pleasant Irish parlour-maid, came out upon the veranda at the moment.

"There's a gentleman to see you, Miss. I left him in the library."

Katharine took the card from the little silver tray and read, "John Gilder Kaye."

Instantly she was on her feet, running along the hall to the dark, cool vault that was lined with her father's books.

"Why, Johnny Kaye! Wherever did you drop from?"

The people in Luncheon who thought Katharine Strykerhurst cool and self-contained would have been amazed at this transformation in her. The man of 20 who rose from the deep leather chair evidently was not surprised at the warmth of her welcome. Her two hands were clasped in his. There was a duct of voice as Mrs. Strykerhurst passed the window and glanced curiously within.

"So John Kaye's back," observed BERTINE Strykerhurst with satisfaction. "Well, perhaps we shall have Katharine moping any more."

TRADE MARK CASE CHARGE RULED NOT PROVED

The summons by Cheung Chau-sin, manager of the United States Drug Store, 5 Wing Lok Street, against Chang Yat-fan, general manager of the Sino-German Dispensary, 8A Wing Lok Street, for selling medicine to which a trade mark, so nearly resembling complainant's trade mark, "Senkasin", as to be calculated to deceive, had been applied, on June 3 last, was dismissed by Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning.

No order as to costs was made by the Magistrate.

Mr. F. G. Nigel appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. Hing-shing Lo, instructed by Mr. F. I. Zimmern, was for the defence.

Mr. Lo alleged that evidence on the part of the prosecution, the statement made by counsel and contented the case was conducted in proper manner. It was quite in order for the complainant to send a man to buy the article to see if his information were true.

TRAFFIC CASES

ALLEGED RECKLESS DRIVING

R. Sperr, of 314 Exchange Building, pleaded not guilty before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning to a summons for driving car No. 2322 without due care and caution near Repulse Bay Hotel on June 16.

Traffic Inspector Alexander, for the prosecution, said that it was alleged that Mr. W. B. Hillyer, of the Harbour Office, was driving his car on the Island Road going towards Aberdeen from Stanley when the defendant overtook him and continued to drive right in front of Mr. Hillyer. Defendant then took the road to the right towards Repulse Bay Hotel, causing Mr. Hillyer to put on his brakes to avoid a collision.

Hearing was fixed for July 2 at 2.30 p.m.

The Chinese driver of lorry No. 947 was fined $25 for dangerous driving in Queen's Road East near Wellington Barracks.

Sergeant Morris said he was travelling in a motor bus when the defendant attempted to overtake it. Seeing there was not enough room between the bus and the electric standard he swerved to the other side of the road and continued to drive practically to Arsenal Street. The coolies on the lorry were obviously scared and their shouting attracted the attention of the police officer.

COLONY HOUSING COMMISSION

PUBLIC INVITED TO GIVE VIEWS

In connection with the inquiry which is being undertaken by the Housing Commission recently appointed by the Government, the public is invited to submit its views in writing or by verbal evidence before the Commission. Those interested should communicate with the Secretary of the Commission, c/o the Public Works Department.

HONGKONG TRAVEL ASSOCIATION

GOVERNMENT VOTE FOR $25,000

Five votes totalling $44,950 are to come before the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council on Thursday.

The biggest of these is one of $25,000, as grant in aid of the Hongkong Travel Association. It is explained that the Committee recently appointed to consider the formation of a Travel Association and to make recommendations for the development of Tourist Traffic to Hongkong Travel Association be formed and that the Government should subscribe to the funds of the Association the sum of $25,000 for this year and include a similar sum in the Estimates for 1936. The Secretary of State has approved of this vote being submitted to Legislative Council.

Another vote is for $13,000 for dredging. It is explained that at the request of the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company an area north of the Company's Permanent Pier No. 54 was dredged to a depth of 34 feet below L.W.E.S.T. The amount provided in the Estimates was based on dredging this area to a depth of 32 feet below L.W.E.S.T. The whole expense of this extra dredging estimated at $26,000 is to be shared equally between Government and the Godown Company, and a supplementary vote for $13,000 is accordingly requested.

The other votes are $4,900 for reprinting police regulations and code, $800 for incidental expenses at animal depots and slaughterhouses, and $1,250 for legal expenses in the Crown Solicitor's Office.

JUMPED FROM MOVING BUS

YOUNG MAN DIES FROM INJURIES

Jumping from a bus while in motion at Lai-chikok Road near Nam Chung Street at 7.15 p.m. yesterday, Fung To, aged 23, received severe head injuries, to which he later succumbed.

The injured man was removed to the Police Station immediately after the accident, and his injuries were not thought to be serious. He refused to go to hospital, and went back home where he later died of a fractured skull.

GERMAN ATHLETE SENTENCED

SERIOUS OFFENCE COMMITTED

Berlin, June 24.
The famous runner, Dr. Otto Peltzer, has been sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment for unnatural vice, against which the secret police have been campaigning since the Rohm affair last year. Dr. Peltzer was sentenced several days ago, but the news was only learned when journalists enquired into an erroneous Paris report that he had been imprisoned and had committed suicide.

RICKSHA COOLIE CHARGED

AMERICAN SEAMAN ALLEGES SNATCHING

Ng Sze, aged 41, ricksha coolie, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning with stealing a pocket book containing certificates, the property of E. J. Maloney, an American seaman, of the steamer Dryden.

Mr. M. K. Lo appeared on behalf of accused, while Detective Sergeant Gullid was for the prosecution.

Giving evidence, complainant said he hired a ricksha at the Hotel Cecil at 11.30 last night to go to the Star Ferry. When he reached there he found that his friend had not accompanied him, so, after leaving a parcel on the Wharf, hired another ricksha to take him back to the Hotel. When they reached the entrance, and just after defendant had put down ricksha, defendant turned round at once and snatched the pocket book from witness' left hip pocket. He ran away and witness chased him. They passed an Indian constable on the way, and he blew his whistle. When the chase had reached Murray Road, defendant was arrested by another Indian watchman. The wallet was found in the gutter some distance back.

In reply to Mr. Lo, witness admitted having given defendant a blow after he had been caught, but only after he had requested the Indian watchman to let defendant go. He also admitted having had a few drinks that night. Witness could not remember the streets through which the chase proceeded.

Witness then left Court, as he had to go back to his ship which was sailing at noon.

The next witness called was the Indian watchman, Guard No. 74. He stated that he was on duty inside the offices of Messrs. Butterfield & Swire, and heard shouts raised. He opened the door, and saw defendant being chased by a European. He also saw defendant throw an object away. Witness then joined in the chase, and arrested defendant in Connaught Road. The European then came up and said defendant had snatched his pocket book.

Witness said he did not see the ricksha, and denied seeing complainant strike the defendant. Defendant's injury was caused through his striking his face against a pillar, he declared.

Defendant was next put in the witness box. He stated that complainant hired his ricksha and told him to proceed towards the Naval Dockyard. When they had gone half-way, witness was requested to turn back, and because he was unable to go faster, complainant jumped out of the ricksha, and in doing so, fell. When he got up, he struck witness, who ran away, and was then arrested by the Indian watchman. He denied having snatched the wallet from complainant, and said it might have fallen out when complainant jumped out of the ricksha.

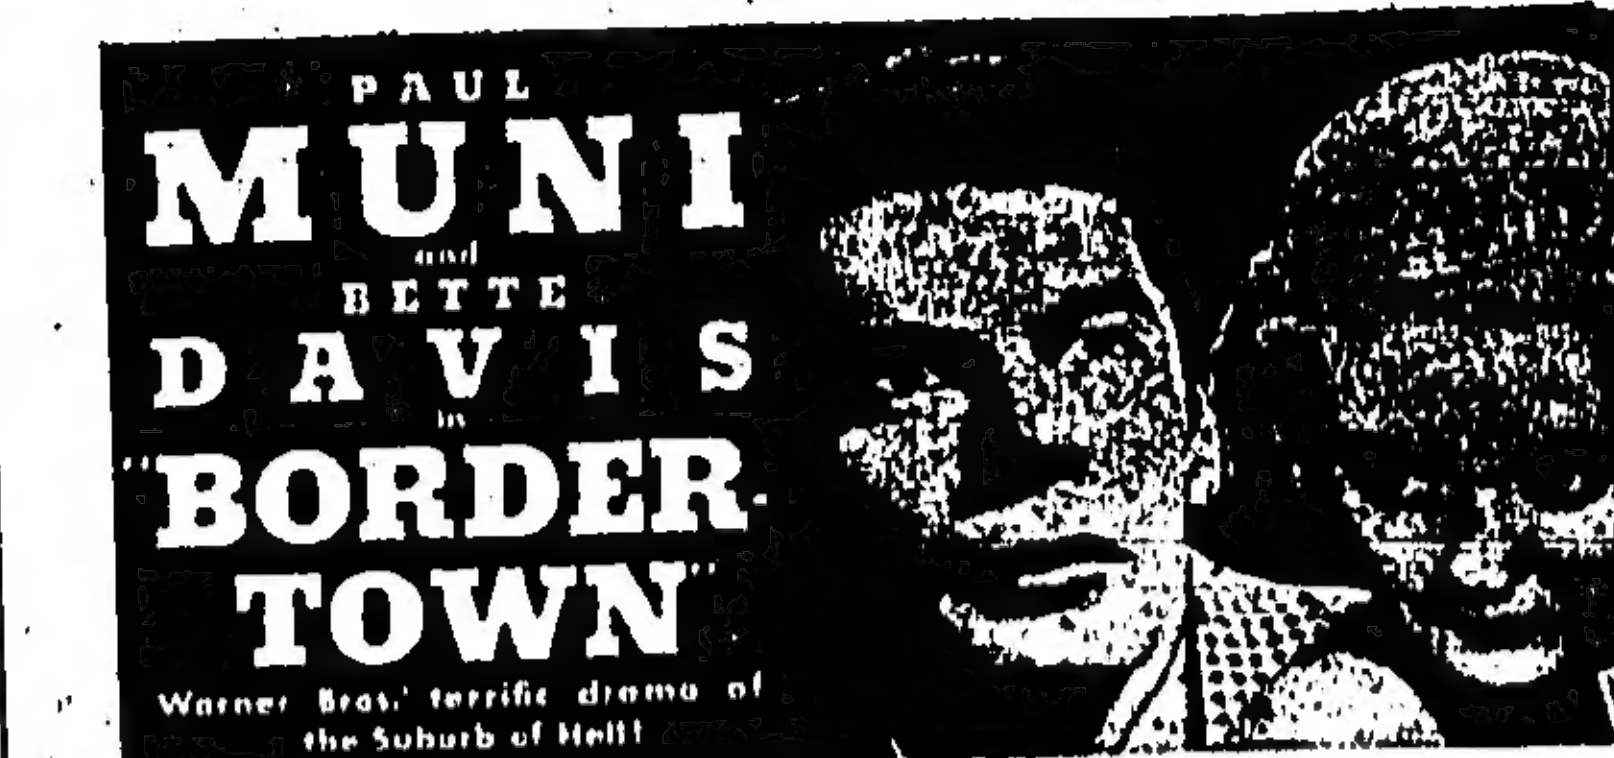

Mr. Lo submitted that there were grave doubts in the case, as there were no witnesses of the snatching outside the Hotel premises. There were also discrepancies in the Indian watchman's evidence.

The case was then adjourned until 10.45 a.m. to-morrow.
